Board here is reasonable, and all ordinary students should graduate here within six months. Write or see me for terms. The greatest and most successful managers of to-day have, with rare exception, risen from the ranks of the operators.

Salaries of operators run from $50 to $80 per month, according to the importance of the position. Operators who are Agents, make from $60 to $100 per month, and are always eligible for promotion. Lady operators for commercial work are in great demand.

Qualifications necessary are few but absolutely essential, viz: a common school education, strict sobriety, honesty, industry and carefulness.

Sir William C. Van Horne, of C.P.R. fame, began his railway career as an operator, so did J. W. Leonard, C. W. Spencer, Geo. C. Jones, and scores of others, all now holding high positions.

JUST FOR A CHANCE.

I'm sort of tired of things that is. There ain't no ginger in life's jar. With things a-goin' as they are, The fault may be with me, and then, It may be otherwise again. I ain't a-tryin' to fix no blame, Because all tastes about the same. However it is, I wish it might Have things turned round a bit some night.

So that instead of as they be, I'd like to see some mountain rill. Have spunk enough to flow up-hill. So that old Nature might be shown I had opinions of its own.

I'd like to see the action 'sun. Out in the east when day is done, Just as a hint, when goin' to bed, To prove it wasn't bigoted.

I'd like to hear a halloo sing Like nightingale upon the wing. Instead of that eternal "olunk" With which he seeks his swampy bunk.

Tain't discontent that's vexin' me. With life so everlasting! But just a sort of parchin' thirst. To get a peek at things reversed. They've been the same so very long. A change would strike me pretty strong.

And, though I'm makin' no complaint, For once I'd like 'em as they ain't.—John Kendrick Bunge, in The Century.

FALL MILLINERY OPENING

Miss Mitchell's Parlors Come of Elegance and Taste.

With the advent of the fall season, Miss Mitchell, as usual, is showing a full stock of millinery goods, in the latest and most charming styles, and comprising everything that will be in demand. For the opening the parlors were beautifully and tastefully decorated with colored chiffons, trays of flowers, wings and fancy feathers of all descriptions, and the many visitors who went through on the opening days were more than delighted with the general aspect.

Drumming shades, which were so popular during the summer season are still in vogue. Fancy feathers, flowers, foliage, felt and beaver hats, ribbons and plateaus are used extensively. Trimmed hats, exquisite creations of the latest design are being produced at these parlors, at reasonable prices. One very pretty model was shown here in a drooping shape, covered plaited with tan, couve velvet and trimmed with plaidings of two shades of tan ribbon, finished at left side with flowers and of bare monizing shades, and at the right folds of ribbon, caught to crown with fancy pin and folding to brim. Another much admired design was in rich velvet black, with narrow front and long drooping back, the only trimming being that of a knot of velvet in front and two long handsome egyptian plumes falling at either side of crown. The visitors had much praise for a handsome creation in black velvet, with wide orim rolling upward at left side, over which fell two stylish ostrich feathers, and two simple crepe de satin ribbon thrust with a silver pin.

In popular shades of brown attention naturally turned to an elegant design in brown felt with puff crown of velvet in corresponding shades and trimmed exclusively with wings of lighter shade drooping at sides and back.

The whole display of these parlors was an elegant showing of choice effects in fashionable headwear.—w1.

OBITUARY.

Dr. D. V. Beacock.

The Brockville Times says, Brockville's veteran dental surgeon, and one of the oldest and most influential practitioners in the Province of Ontario, died about 7.30 this morning at his home on Orchard-st.

Dr. Beacock was born at Alker, Raisin, Lincolnshire, Eng., on Feb. 14, 1837. A the age of 16 he came to Canada, and after attaining the necessary qualifications, he taught school for nine years, a thoroughgoing and other places in Ontario. During this period he re-visited England on two occasions. He then entered up on the study of dentistry with Dr. Neelands, of Lindsay, and completed his course at the Ontario Dental College, combining with it the study of medicine at Toronto University. After graduating about forty years ago, Dr. Beacock settled in Brockville, remaining here continuously until his death. Dr. Beacock took a keen and intelligent interest in local affairs. He was a member of the Public School Board for four years, and served five terms of two years each on the Board of Hygiene. He built up a most lucrative practice and was considered one of the best posted men on all branches of his profession in this province. He was a familiar figure at gatherings of the Ontario, Dominion and American Dental Associations, and quite frequently contributed valuable papers on different subjects. His opinions always carried much weight and gave rise to thoughtful and helpful discussions.

Dr. Beacock married Miss Rae of Beaverton, Ont., who died in January, 1901. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. A. M. Patterson, Brockville, and two brothers and two sisters, viz., George Beacock, of Brockville, Edwin Beacock, Mrs. James Lovell and Mrs. Wm. Blackson, of Lindsay.

Breezy Local Brevelites.

—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eyles, of Glen Grove Farm, Cameron, announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruby Luella, to J. R. Naylor, on Wednesday, Oct. 16th.

A Malicious Individual.

A marriage notice appeared in The Post a few weeks since sent in by mail and accepted in our editorial rooms in good faith, announcing the marriage of two young people, Shine and Whiten. We have since been informed that it was a malicious foundation, and was sent in by some malicious maker, whose name we would like to ascertain. If we do we will cause him some uncomfortable moments.

A Correction.

In last week's Post a paragraph appeared stating that Henry Campbell stole a hat from the Star Clothing Store. We since find that the hat was not stolen, but was badly broken by Campbell, who was drunk, and refused to pay for it. As that hat was a valuable one, worth $2.50, the proprietors of the Star Clothing Store were compelled to put the matter in the hands of the police for adjustment. We cheerfully make the correction.

AS TOLD IN THE POETS' CORNER.

THE WARDEN OF THE CINQUE PORTS.

A mist was driving down the British Channel. The day was just begun. And through the window-panes, on floor and panel, Streamed the red autumn sun.

It glanced on flowing flag and rippling pennon. And the white sails of ships; And from the frowning rampart the black cannon Hailed it with feverish lips.

Sandwich and Romney, Hastings, Hithe, and Dover Were all alert that day. To see the French war-steamer speeding over, When the fog cleared away.

Sullen and silent, and like couchant lions, Their cannon, through the night, Holding their breath, had watched, In grim defiance, The sea-coast opposite.

And now they roared at drum-beat from their stations. On every citadel; Each answering each, with morning salutations. That all was well.

And down the coast (all taking up the burden, Replied the distant forts, As if to summon from his sleep the Warden, And Lord of the Cinque Ports.

Him shall no sunshine from the fields of azure, No drum-beat from the wall, No morning gun from the black fort's embrasure, Awaken with its call.

No more, surveying with an eye impartial The long line of the coast, Shall the gaunt figure of the old Friar, Marshalled, Be seen upon his post!

For in the night, unseen, a single warrior, In sombre harness mailed, Dreaded of man, and surnamed the Destroyer, The rampart wall had scaled.

He passed into the chamber of the sleeper, The dark and silent room, And as he entered, darker grew, and deeper, The silence and the gloom.

He did not pause to parley or dissemble, But smote the Warden hoar; Ah! what a blow! that made all England tremble And groan from shore to shore.

Meanwhile, without, the surly cannon waited. The sun rose bright overhead; Nothing in Nature's aspect intimating That a great man was dead.

Cinque Ports.—Five ports on the south coast of England, whose duty it was to look after the coast defences. The name has long ceased to have any significance, although the honorary post of Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports is still filled. The Duke of Wellington was the Warden at time of the poem.

MERRY WEDDING BELLS.

Staunton—Steen.

In St. Mark's church on Wednesday at high noon, a very pretty event took place, when Jesse Phoebe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Steen, Augusta-st., was united in marriage to Edward Staunton, of Lindsay, the Rev. Cobb officiating. The bride looked very pretty in a smart, tailor-made suit of tan, and a tan Guinevere hat with blue plumes. She wore a pearl grey stole and carried a beautiful sheaf of orange roses. The only attendant was the bride's niece, little Miss Marion Mitchell, who looked sweet in a French dress of Persian lawn with Valenciennes lace and pink ribbons, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bride's mother was in grey robe and mauve trimming, and the groom's mother in black tulle. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a dainty dejeuner was served and the young couple received the congratulations of the guests.

The large array of valuable presents testify in some measure of the esteem in which the bride and groom were held by their large circle of acquaintances. The groom's gift to the bride was a hundred dollar check and to the flower girl a gold locket and chain.

Mr. and Mrs. Staunton left by the flyer for a brief tour in Toronto, Detroit and other points, and on their return will take up their residence at 8 Durham-st., Lindsay.

Their many friends join with us in wishing them all the joy this world can afford.

The Progress of Invention.

Benedick—That luminous paint is a splendid invention. Singleton—What do you use it for? Benedick—We paint the baby's face so we can give him a drink in the night without lighting the gas.

Good Showing in Horses.

At the recent Mariposa fair, held at Oakwood, Mr. A. E. Webster, made a splendid showing in heavy draught horses and carried off a number of the coveted red tickets. He took second on entire horse, and third on brood mare, heavy draught, and first on best foal of 1907 heavy draught, besides first on agricultural class foal of 1907 and foal sired by Ensign Favorite.

DOMINION TO PAY UP

Canada Will Settle Japan's Claim Without Protest.

VANCOUVER TO MAKE GOOD

Government Will Look to Western City For Re-emboursement—Damages Will Run Over $5,000—Special Meeting of the Cabinet Discusses the Whole Situation—Consul-General Made His Demands.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—The Dominion Cabinet met yesterday afternoon, with Sir Wilfrid Laurier presiding, but only three other members, Hon. Mr. Scott, Secretary of State; Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, and Mr. Lemieux, Postmaster-General, were present.

According to one of the gentlemen there, no business was touched on except that relative to the claim made for the Japanese Government.

Dr. Munro, the Canadian immigration agent at Vancouver, was asked on Monday as to his authority for demanding passports direct to Canada from Japanese upon arriving there. A telegram was received from him yesterday, stating that it was formerly the custom to do this, and he was merely reverting to it. He has been asked to stop it, as it is an infringement of a treaty.

Japanese Consul-General Nosen waited on the Government yesterday and presented claims for damages caused by the riots in Vancouver. The damages will amount to between $5,000 and $6,000. The Cabinet was to meet and pass the amount. There will be no quibbling over it. The money will be paid and the City of Vancouver will be asked to refund the amount.

At yesterday afternoon's meeting, said one of the quartette that were present, we had barely a quorum and did nothing definite about the matter. Mr. Munro will be heard from in a day or two—at least that is what we expect—and until he is we thought it wiser to do nothing formal and so the claim was not passed yesterday.

Notwithstanding this, it is known practically certain that it will be passed, and as indicated above, the Government will then look to Vancouver to settle.

FRANCE TO COMPETE.

Proposal to Send Rifle Team to Enter For the Palma Trophy.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—France may send a team for the next Palma trophy match. A letter to this effect has been received by Major Winter, secretary of the D. R. A., from the French National Rifle Association.

In July, Major Winter sent to the French association the regulations of the last match. The communication, however, apparently reached the president too late for action.

He has written for the results of the recent contest at Rockliffe, and has further stated that if a comparison with their own efficiency is favorable, a team will doubtless be entered in 1908. Les Tireurs Francaise would add even greater international interest.

Canadian Clergy Swindled.

New York, Oct. 2.—Israel Salinski, a young Russian Jew, pretending conversion to Christianity and missionary work to proselyte the Jews from Judaism for the Christian Church, was exposed by Dr. Daniel H. Overton, pastor of the Greene avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, and Rev. Hickman Denning, rector of Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, last week, as being a rank fraud and swindler, having victimized clergymen and congregations in Boston, Montreal, Cleveland and other cities, including Toronto, by begging contributions and taking up church collections.

Finding the police here after him he skipped out. From papers found in abandoned luggage he swindled clergymen and congregations in Toronto out of nearly nine hundred dollars.

Found Mother Dead.

St. Thomas, Oct. 2.—Mrs. Annie Muir passed away some time during Monday night at the home of her brother Mr. Sam Grant, Talbot street east. Deceased had not been in good health for some time, but her sudden demise was not expected. When her daughter went into her bedroom yesterday morning she found her mother dead. Deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Donald Grant, and was born in Peel Township, Wellington County, 50 years ago.

Bishop Won the Match.

Washington, Oct. 2.—Before leaving for Richmond, Va., yesterday, to participate in the triennial convention of the Episcopal Church, the Bishop of London held an impromptu reception at the station. He admitted that he won the tennis match at the White House on Friday between himself and President Roosevelt.

New Steamer for Lake Trade.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—A new steamer, destined for the lake-carrying trade, arrived in Montreal last night from Dundee. She is the G. R. Cole, and was built in Great Britain for the St. Lawrence and Chicago Navigation Co. for the grain carrying trade. She left for Toronto last evening.

Crushed Under Whistle.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—Frederick Gutmann, aged 15, is dead at Arnprior. He fell off a wagon, was crushed by the wheel and died in his sister's arms before a doctor arrived.

Constitution For China.

London, Oct. 2.—A special despatch from Peking says the Dowager Empress has issued a decree declaring the Government of China to be a constitutional monarchy.

Study Jap Language.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 2.—The general staff has ordered the introduction of the study of the Japanese language at the military academy.

ROUND UP BANDITS

Magoon Will Crush Out Cuban Insurrection.

DEALS WITH A STRONG HAND

Orders Troops to Capture, Kill or Drive Rebels into the Ocean—Signs of Unrest But No Further Disturbance Expected—Danger From Strikes—The Government Has Ample Means.

Sancti Spiritus, Cuba, Oct. 1.—Thirty additional men of the rural guard left here yesterday on a special train to deal with the Cuban insurrection. The guard is being organized in running down the rebels. The band of forty men who have been located in the vicinity of Sancti Spiritus is being paid cash for his supplies at the country stores.

Exchanged Shots.
Havana, Oct. 1.—The small band of rebels, which has been traversing the country about Mayarí, in Sancti Spiritus, has, according to late despatches, again exchanged shots with the pursuing rurales. The latter are close on the heels of the bandits.

While there are signs of unrest in various parts of the island, the opinion prevails here that no serious disturbance is likely. In commenting on the situation The Diario de la Marina says:

"There is no reason, therefore, for extraordinary alarm, or for believing Cuba is on the brink of an abyss. Even the strikers have not yet committed any act of violence. If their disagreement with the railway companies is not settled other men will be found shortly to run the trains. In this case any attempt on the part of the strikers to resort to force will be punished according to law. The situation, for all these reasons, is not so grave and the Government has ample means to cope with it."

JUDGE RESERVED SENTENCE.

James Wadsworth Found Guilty of Receiving at Queenston.
St. Catharines, Oct. 1.—James Wadsworth was yesterday morning convicted before His Honor Judge Carman on the charge of receiving stolen goods.

Clarence Stevens, Harry Lammon, and Cecil Dore, who were last week convicted at Welland, gave evidence to the effect that Wadsworth knew the goods were to be stolen from cars, and later received from them at his hotel in Queenston.

Evidence of several other witnesses was also given, and though the judge held the prisoner guilty, he reserved sentence till today, and will in any case at the request of P. W. Griffiths, the prisoner's counsel, prepare a statement for the Court of Appeal.

GREETING NEW DOMINION.

(Signed) Laurier.

From Wellington, N. Z., Sept. 25.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Ottawa: The Dominion heartily thanks her elder sister and hopes to follow in her footsteps. (Signed) Ward.

Hon. Mr. Prevost Resigns.

Quebec, Oct. 1.—At yesterday's meeting of the Provincial Cabinet at the Parliament Buildings, the resignation of Hon. J. B. Prevost, Minister of Colonization, Mines and Fisheries, was received, and after discussion accepted.

Hon. Mr. Prevost's case against Mr. Ameline was heard, it will be remembered, in the spring and the jury disagreed. It is on the list for the fall term of the Criminal Court opening here next week.

Beat Off Highwaymen.

Chatham, Sept. 30.—William Stedman, a local butcher, who boards on Edgar street, was the victim of a couple of hold-up men while crossing a dark lot near the G. T. R. depot. Stedman had been in Toronto with some cattle. He was waylaid by two unknown men, one of whom struck him on the head with a short stick. Stedman, however, swung out and hit the nearest of the men with all the force of his strong right arm. The men decamped.

A Customs Record.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—The customs receipts of the Dominion for the six months since March amounted to $31,402,735, which is an increase of $6,418,290 over last year. The revenue for September alone was $5,203,639, an increase of $548,225, and far and away the best showing on record.

Two Killed in Wreck.

TO RESTRICT PASSPORTS.

Commission on Jap Question to Appeal to Mikado.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—A complete statement of Canada's argument against a continuation of the present large influx of Japanese immigrants into this country is being prepared by the Government for presentation to the Government of Japan.

No doubt a commission or commissioner will present the argument to the Mikado's Government at Tokio. It will be pointed out in this statement that when the treaty with Japan was signed by Canada there was an express understanding that the Japanese law restricting the issue of passports to intending emigrants to a limited number each year would continue to be enforced.

In the Japanese emigration laws it is expressly stated that any emigrant obtaining a passport under false representation is liable to a heavy fine in addition to the cancellation of the passport. The enforcement of this clause by Japan would have a large influence in stopping the influx of Japanese into British Columbia by way of the Hawaiian Islands.

Other points that will be emphasized are that public opinion in this country, as shown by the utterances of public men in the press, and by the resolutions of the Labor Minister, is unanimously opposed to a large or sudden influx of oriental immigrants, and that the present rate of immigration, if continued, will result in unnecessary racial friction in British Columbia, and will militate against the development of trade between Canada and Japan as desired by both Governments.

EDITOR FIGHTS DUEL.

Fight With Swords in Old Style at St. Pierre Rink.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 1.—Contrary to expectation a duel between Editor Mazier of The Rebell and Dr. Dupuy was fought in the rink at St. Pierre Miquelon.

It is believed that the difference had been settled in court, but the opposing factions clamored for satisfaction in the ancient French style and the two met. There was a large gathering in the rink. Swords were chosen as the weapons. After ten minutes of fierce fighting the editor received a bad thrust of the sword in the right breast. His second, Dr. Thibaud, seeing the nature of his friend's wound, declared Mazier unable to continue the fight.

The duel was the result of an article in The Rebell, questioning the honor of Dr. and Mrs. Dupuy. It is reported that Mazier will be compelled to accept another challenge to a duel from Lefebvre, a prominent shipowner of St. Pierre.

SHOW BIG FALLING OFF.

Grain Shipments Not Nearly So Large as Last Year.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—The Department of Trade and Commerce has received from Mr. C. Castle of Winnipeg, a statement of the shipments of grain by vessels from Port William and Port Arthur from the opening of navigation, April 29, 1907, to Aug. 31, 1907, and also for the crop year of 1906, which is from Sept. 1, 1906, to Aug. 31, 1907.

From April 29 to Aug. 31 last, there was carried in Canadian vessels from these ports 20,731,617 bushels, and in foreign vessels 5,839,069 bushels, making a total of 26,570,686 bushels of wheat.

For the crop year 1906, Canadian vessels carried 51,719,562 bushels. There was in store on Aug. 31, 1906, 507,574 bushels, and on Aug. 31, 1907, 4,660,919 bushels, an increase of 5,333,545 bushels of wheat.

Grampian Broke the Record.

Montreal, Oct. 1.—Having broken the record from Glasgow to Quebec and Montreal, the new Allan liner Grampian arrived last night in charge of Capt. Outram, the only Canadian in charge of an Allan steamship.

The Grampian is an exact counterpart of the Corran, which has made three trips to the St. Lawrence. She left Glasgow a week ago Saturday at 6 p. m. and reached Quebec Sunday afternoon at 2:30, making the voyage under eight days.

The new vessel has accommodation for 136 first-class, 292 second and 1,428 steerage passengers. There was a crew of 210 would make 2,066 souls on board. Her cargo carrying capacity is 7,000 tons.

FLOOD'S HEAVY TOLL

Thirty Emigrants Swept Off Quay Into the Sea.

MANY PEOPLE ARE STARVING

Bodies Found in the Mud—Eight Persons Killed by Collapse of Church—Three Houses Washed Away—Many Stores Ruined—Total Damages Estimated at Nearly Four Million Dollars.

Malaga, Oct. 1.—The greatest distress is everywhere prevalent as a result of the storms and floods of last week. The Government with difficulty is preventing famished persons seizing and eating decayed foodstuffs that have been thrown out by storekeepers. The work of clearing away the foul-smelling mud left in the streets by the floods is being pushed rapidly. Many bodies have been found in the mud. A band of emigrants which was encamped on a quay the night of the flood awaiting a steamer has not been seen since, and it is feared all its members perished. The damage done by flood is placed at $3,800,000. A number of stores were ruined. A number of steamers arriving here reported having seen a number of bodies floating in the bay. These are believed to be some of the emigrants who were washed off the quay, and who numbered more than thirty. A church and three houses at Benamerrara, a town twenty miles from this place, collapsed, killing eight persons.

KIPLING IS PLEASED.

Famous Author Says Canadians All Look Happy and Prosperous.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—Rudyard Kipling, the famous writer, known to Canadians, not only as the author of "My Lady of the Snows," but because of his many notable works, passed through Ottawa on the transcontinental train yesterday afternoon en route to the coast.

"Anything to tell us?" was hazled at the distinguished traveler. "It is just 15 years since I was last on Canadian soil," he replied. "I must say I feel really happy to be back among you once more."

"Of course you must have observed great changes in the interim?" "Remarkable," was the expression of Mr. Kipling. "I noticed the change everywhere right up from Quebec. You Canadian people all look so happy and prosperous," went on Mr. Kipling, "that it really does one good to come amongst you."

Kipling Goes West.

Montreal, Oct. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Rudyard Kipling left yesterday morning for Vancouver and Victoria. They will return east in three weeks.

BLAZE ON "BICKERDIKE."

Firemen Had Close Call—Were Overcome by Gas.

Kingston, Oct. 1.—Yesterday afternoon shortly after one o'clock the steamer Bickerdike arrived in port and was found to be on fire.

The fire steameders received a hasty call to the drydock and soon the water was playing on the flames. The blaze was down in the hold.

About three o'clock the firemen stopped putting water into the vessel and the work of removing the cargo was started. The fire was extinguished at 5 o'clock. The greatest injury will be to the cargo.

Two of the firemen, suffocated by the gases, had to be carried out. The steamer Bickerdike belongs to the Montreal and Great Lakes Navigation Co. and was built in Buffalo in 1873. She is 233 feet long and is loaded with package freight for Port Arthur.

Power Commission in Shape.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—All that so far has been announced in the press with reference to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, remarked Hon. Mr. Whitney yesterday, "is pure conjecture. But we are moving ahead steadily, getting everything into shape."

The Power Commission are to meet this morning at the Parliament Buildings with a Cabinet meeting directly afterwards. Among the matters to be considered are the power question and the Soo loan guarantee.

Hon. Mr. Matheson, in respect to the Soo loan guarantee, yesterday said that negotiations were in progress, and that if the guarantee were renewed there was no chance whatever of the amount in question—$1,000,000—being reduced for some time to come.

Two Prisoners Released.

Killed at Allandale.

Barrie, Oct. 1.—Three freight trains following each other in rapid succession from Hamilton pulled into the Allandale station Sunday night about 11 o'clock. The failure of the brakes to work on the third, permitted it to strike the centre train with some force. The engine on the latter buckled, killing the fireman, a young man named Robert Blackburn of Cox Hill. The crew of the last train was unfamiliar with the road, this being their first trip.

His Head Blown Off.

Hamilton, Oct. 1.—A fatal accident occurred on Sunday at Bronte. John Armstrong, employed as a farm hand by James Penecot, accidentally killed himself by shooting. He found a shotgun in the driving shed, and started to examine it. The gun went off, and Armstrong's head was blown to pieces.

TRAIN WRECK IN OHIO

Operator's Negligence Causes Death of Eight Passengers.

SWITCH WAS NOT TURNED

Twenty-One Badly Injured—Four Will Die—Express Dashed into Freight Train on Siding—Impact Was Terrific—Speeding to Make Up Lost Time—Occupants of the Smoking-Car Suffered Most.

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 30.—Eight men were killed, four fatally injured and seventeen more or less seriously hurt late Saturday evening, when the Chicago & Wheeling express train No. 14, on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, was wrecked in the yards at Bellairs, O., a few miles below this city. There are no Canadians among the dead.

Operator Responsible.

The wreck was due, it is said, to the failure of an operator to throw a switch. The westbound freight had received orders to meet the passenger at the western limits of the Bellaire yard, and was moving slowly along the siding. At the point where the wreck occurred, there is a very sharp curve, which prevents the engineers from seeing a train from coming more than a few feet ahead. The passenger train swung around the curve very rapidly, being three hours late, and should have gone on in safety on the main line. The switch to the siding, however, had not been turned, and the train shot on to the siding and into the freight. There was scarcely time to apply the brakes and no time for the engine men to jump.

The two big engines were reduced to junk by the impact, but the worst damage was done by the smoker, which was telescoped so completely by the baggage car that every seat was thrown out of the coach. Every occupant of the smoker was badly injured. The passengers in the other day coaches and two Pullmans were thrown from their seats, but not seriously injured.

Engineer Galbraith was burned to a crisp. The injured were taken to the Glendale, W. Va., and Bellaire hospitals.

General Manager Fitzgerald, who was in the neighborhood on an inspection tour, and General Superintendent W. C. Loree of Wheeling personally superintended the rescue work. Great difficulty was experienced in removing the injured passengers from the wrecked smoker. Work was slow because every movement of the debris caused someone to shriek with pain, the victims being entangled in a mass of timbers and twisted iron.

Theatrical Company's Experience.
Among the passengers on the wrecked train were the members of Richard Carlos Spring Chicken Opera Co., which was to have played at Wheeling yesterday. All the members of the company escaped serious injury, except Alfred Bely, the musical director. It was found necessary to amputate his right arm, thus ending his career in the profession. He was riding in the smoker and was found with a heavy timber tightly binding him by the arms.

Engineer's Terrible Ordeal.
Engineer H. A. Lipcomb of the passenger train was caught beneath his engine, and it was found impossible to remove the broken iron from his body on account of the way in which one of his legs was entangled. Escaping steam across his face made it impossible to administer anaesthetics, and as a result physicians contemplated the leg as he lay there conscious.

Despite the burning steam and the pain of the operation he bore it bravely.

Found Dead on Track.

Hamilton, Sept. 30.—James A. Plant, aged 23, who lived with his grandfather, Joseph A. Plant, of 13 Fisher street, was found dead on the railway tracks near Burlington yesterday morning. A kit of machinist's tools was found near him. His mother lives at Trafalgar, near Oakville, and his father is a manager of a big plant in Oregon.

Midland Prince Struck Dyke.
Saint St. Marie, Sept. 30.—The steamer Midland Prince, upbound with coal, struck at the dyke through the parting of her steering gear. The No. 1 tank on the starboard side is full of water. Temporary repairs are being made here.

London Election Date.
Ottawa, Sept. 30.—On account of some delay in arranging for the manhood suffrage vote, the London election for the Dominion House bye-election will not take place until Oct. 29. All three bye-elections take place on the same day.

DOCTOR IS ACCUSED

Alleged to Have Administered Poison to His Rival.

WIFE IS ALSO CHARGED

Woman Was Formerly Wife of Murdered Man—Suggested "Dr. Jekyll" and "Mr. Hyde" Existence—Accused the Poison Used—Was Previously Arrested For Killing His Child For Insurance.

Baltimore, N. C., Oct. 1.—A murder trial of widespread interest was begun yesterday, when Dr. Thomas L. Rowland and his second wife, the widow of Charles E. Strange, a locomotive engineer, faced the charge of having murdered Mr. Strange by poison, so that they might wed. Effort will be made to prove that Dr. Rowland was a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" in real life, and that to all appearances he led an exemplary existence, while secretly making a study of deadly poisons and plotting murder. He was even arrested on a charge of having poisoned his own child in order to get some insurance money, but he was let go because the chemists could find no trace of poison in the tests which they made. In the present case Dr. Rowland is alleged to have used aconite, a rare and deadly vegetable poison. Judge Benjamin P. Long will preside at the trial, while prominent counsel appear on each side of the case. A special venire of one hundred and fifty men has been drawn for service on the jury.

CHAUFFEUR HAD HARD LUCK.

Finds Bridge Washed Away and Is Arrested For Speeding.

St. Catharines, Oct. 1.—Arthur Geyer, a chauffeur employed by Harry Vars of Buffalo, was fined $5 by the magistrate yesterday morning for fast going in Beamsville.

He left Toronto for Buffalo. At Burlington he found a bridge washed away and took his car through the creek, where it struck a rock and the services of a team of horses were secured, for which the owner demanded $10. Going through Beamsville Geyer exceeded the speed limit. Constable Tufford telephoned the police here and Geyer was arrested. He deposited his money as security.

Six miles from here Geyer's gasoline began to run short, and as they descended 33 feet for six callons at the little store, about double the price, he decided to come back to St. Catharines and wait until morning.

Yesterday morning Magistrate Comfort imposed the usual fine of $5.

AFFAIRS IN MANCHURIA.

China's Resistance to Japan Causes Complete Deadlock.

Pekin, Oct. 1.—There has been a complete deadlock between China and Japan over Manchurian affairs since June last, and the attitude of the United States towards Japan has now become a feature of the situation.

The new administrations at Mukden and Pekin welcomed what the officials call a "revival of America's spirit," in sending the battleship fleet to the Pacific after apparent indifference to the far eastern situation, and, as a result, the Chinese officials are resisting the demands of the Japanese.

Monument to U. S. Soldiers.

Niagara Falls, Oct. 1.—Ninety-three years ago British and United States soldiers fought at Lundy's Lane. On Sunday a monument was dedicated to the memory of Capt. Abraham Haller Hull and nine men of the Ninth U. S. Infantry, who fell in the fight.

The Niagara Frontier Landmarks Association and the Daughters of the War of 1812 of Buffalo, to whose lot the dedication fell, were welcomed by the Lundy's Lane Historical Society, who escorted them to the scene of the campaign.

The monument is built of huge blocks of grey granite.

Grand Duke Frederick Dead.

Constance, Grand Duchy of Baden, Sept. 30.—The Grand Duke Frederick of Baden, who has been suffering from intestinal inflammation for some time past, after remaining unconscious for many hours, died early on Saturday morning.

Throughout the night the Cabinet Ministers and the court officials and chaplains had waited in an apartment adjoining the death chamber for the end to come.

At the grand duke's bedside when he expired were the Grand Duchesses, Princess Louise of Prussia, the hereditary grand duke, Frederick of Baden; Prince Max of Baden, the brother of the grand duke; the Crown Prince of Sweden and others.

The public life of the deceased was for fifty years intimately connected with the efforts to unite the German states of the empire.

London's New Lord Mayor.

London, Sept. 30.—Sir John Charles Bell, ex-herald of the City of London and head of a big brewery company, who has held a number of important offices in connection with the municipality, was on Saturday elected Lord Mayor of London, to succeed Sir William Treloar, Bart.

The election took place with all the customary ancient ceremonies in the Guild Hall at noon. The new lord mayor will be installed in office November 9.

Hanged Himself In Station.

Montreal, Sept. 30.—A gruesome discovery was made by officers in one of the waiting-rooms at the Grand Trunk Bonaventure street station on Saturday, when the body of a young foreigner was discovered hanging by means of his belt and a couple of towels. The man's name is Oesky Yakowanko, supposed to be a Russian, and his ticket was purchased at Milwaukee.

KILLED BY REVOLVER

Macedonian Tradesman Mysteriously Shot in Toronto.

SUSPICION OF FOUL PLAY

Dead Man's Brother Says It Was Accident—But Police Think Otherwise—Weapon Was Hidden Under Mattress—Alleged Quarrelling Is Denied—Doctor's Statement Doubts Accident Theory.

Toronto, Sept. 30.—Michael Turpenoff, a Macedonian shopkeeper living at 21 Eastern avenue, was shot and killed in a room above his shop yesterday morning. The explanation of the shooting, as given by his brother, Leo, and two boys, who were in the room at the time, does not satisfy the police, and has only possibility to favor its truth. The brother says that Turpenoff had an argument in his room with the brother and two boys employed in the grocery. Turpenoff threw open his coat, and the revolver, dropping from his right breast pocket, fell to the floor. As Turpenoff stooped to recover it, it exploded.

The bullet entered the right arm on the outside slightly above the wrist joint, passing upward diagonally through the forearm. It came out on the inner side of the arm, just below the elbow, then penetrated the right breast slightly above the nipple and came out almost directly opposite at the back but did not penetrate shirt, coat or vest at the back. The pistol is hammerless, and the only explanation which bears out the brother's story is that the thumb or fingers of the hand stretched out to regain the pistol up-ended it so that the barrel pointed against his wrist pressed the trigger.

Another theory is that the dynamite said to be in the cartridges exploded with the concussion when the gun fell, and that the dead man having reached over to catch the gun as it dropped, received the wound.

Dr. Glendinning, in addition to his telephone call, was summoned by a Scotchman who is engaged in missionary work in the vicinity. This man and another son of J. K. Lee, the drugist, told him that a Macedonian had fainted in the street. It was not until the doctor had examined the man, who died as he entered the room, that he discovered he had been shot. Turpenoff was lying across the bed with his head to the wall. Dr. Glendinning moved him lengthwise in the bed and bound the hole in the right breast. The man was not bleeding from the wound and the doctor made no further examination of the body, giving him only an injection of strychnine.

The room was filled with Macedonians. Only one of these could speak English. Of this man the doctor enquired: "Were they quarrelling?" And he, coming close to the doctor, whispered "Yes." In reply to all other questions put to him he consulted with those in the room before answering.

The pistol with which the man is supposed to have been shot was mysteriously hidden when Dr. Glendinning arrived. He asked where the pistol was. After asking the brother of the dead man the reply came "in the bed."

Found Under Mattress.
The Macedonian looked between the mattress and springs from the outside. Finding nothing, he turned up the mattress from the bottom uncovering an old revolver, 32 calibre. The doctor examined it. The spring of the trigger was broken, and the gun had evidently not been used for some time. The men then turned the mattress from the far side of the bed, which was placed close against the wall and found another revolver resting on the springs about the centre of the bed. Dr. Glendinning took possession of the pistol, which was fouled at the muzzle, apparently from recent discharge. Dr. Glendinning says that the pistol could not have been placed where it was found by the man before he died, nor indeed would the man have been capable of any intelligent movement after he was shot.

Motorman Killed.
Ottawa, Sept. 30.—Hugh A. Hayes, a York street motorman, died in the General Hospital yesterday.

On Saturday a car he was running, belonging to the Ottawa Electric Railway Co., in some way collided with another. Hayes had a leg so badly injured that amputation was necessary, and he never rallied after the operation. He leaves three children. Coroner Baple is investigating.

Cass Chadwick's Condition.

THE CHAMPIONS

The Vectors, the champions of the Junior League, lined up as follows for the majority of their games:

P. Spratt, c.
J. Spratt, p.
R. Williamson, 1st b.
C. Patton, 2nd b.
D. Spratt, 3rd b.
H. Elliott, 4th b.
K. Touchburn, r. f.
F. Dennison, c. f.
(Capt.)
H. Williamson, l. f.

The team had the remarkable record of not losing a game, one protected game being declared a tie.

"CLOWN" CLYMER

Bill Clymer, manager of the Coulburn team, has played in Toronto many a time before. He was a member of Ed. Barrow's 1900-1 team, and was a great favorite with the crowd because of his amusing antics on the coaching line. No clown in a circus goes to such limits as Clymer. Anything to make the crowd laugh and smile the other team.

One day at Diamond Park Clymer, when he went to the plate, was greeted by the umpire, on behalf of some friends in the stand, with a huge box, the contents of which, after much unwrapping, turned out to be a pair of pink corsets.

Clymer accepted the present with much deference. Then he promptly laid down his bat and fastened the corsets around his waist. Assuming a clownish attitude, he got the pitcher laughing, and with two men on bases he knocked out a home run, winning the game.

Later the umpire put him out of the game for back talk. Clymer continued to chatter, and the umpire ordered him out of the grounds. He went outside, but a few minutes later he bobbed up on top of the centre field fence. Next he appeared in the left field bleachers, and finally the umpire chased him out of the grounds again.

FIX UP THE DIAMOND

Dear Sir,—I see by your paper that the baseball players have in view a banquet to use up the money collected at the ball games. Now, I think this is all right, but could the money not be put to a better use by fixing up the diamond, which is badly in want of some repairs? Lindsay is the best ball town in the Midland district, and should have the best diamond, as who knows but Lindsay may be in the Midland League next season, as the League was never as successful since Lindsay has been out of it. Next year I think you will see the best Midland League that has been, as the towns on the front have had their fill of pick-up and professional games. That makes me think they will stay in the "Simons" article and play the game legitimately. Let us here from some one on this matter, and be ready to put a good line on the diamond when the Robins nest again.

McGinley, of Toronto, carried off first honors among the Eastern League pitchers for the season.

It is announced that "Iron Man" McGinley, the New York National pitcher, may not return to baseball next year.

The Gay Columbus baseball team, Toronto, walked out a few days ago. The pitcher seemed to make a noise like A. D. 1492.

Joe Kelley received a thousand dollars in gold last Wednesday. Now he knows the feelings of school teachers, preachers and other wealthy persons.

Catcher Origer, of Boston, has had several accidents this year, but the worst came in Friday's game in Boston. The bones of his right hand were broken by a foul tip, and he is out of the game for the season.

The Eastern League season is ended and the standing of the teams is as follows:

Toronto	83	51	619
Buffalo	73	58	537
Providence	72	62	537
Newark	67	66	504

Beaverton Express: Talk about the bribery and rackets, rampant in the senior and intermediate C. L. A., but when it comes down to the threatening of a weak-voiced humble umpire in an amateur corner lot game of baseball, we have lots about reaching the limit. Such, however, was the case Saturday when Beaverton and Eden boys met to do battle on Lakeview grounds, and the captain and pitcher of the Beaverton nine openly threatened the umpire, three sizes smaller than himself, with dire punishment if he did not cheat. The umpire, however, was not easily intimidated, and positively refused to be a party to any such game, and to escape the wrath of the fiery pitcher made a record trip down town on the handle bars of a friend's bicycle. Such conduct, in the eyes of the league, is to say the least, deplorable, and the offending club has been dealt with by the officers of the league, and his certificate cancelled. If such conduct as this is allowed the game will soon deteriorate and few will care for the job of umpiring, with the possibility of being roughly handled thereon, as an extra inducement. The game, however, was a victory for Eden by the score of 16-7, which about shows the relative merits of the teams.

FOOTBALL

Toronto Star: The senior football team of the Parkdale Public school defeated Queen Victoria team on Exhibition grounds on Friday by the score of 1 to 0. Parkdale lined up: Goal, G. Corley; backs, J. McMath, L. Knox, Chas. and Ron. and are still eligible; L. Cole has left town, and is now in Marquette, Mich.; McDougall is in Fenelon Falls, and is over age, as are Stoddard, Sullivan, and Newton, the stockholders.

It is, however, a foregone conclusion that a team will be formed.

HOCKEY

HOCKEY PROSPECTS
It is hardly probable that a junior O. H. A. team will be placed on the ice in Lindsay this winter. The majority of last year's Midgets are over the age limit. Knox, Chas. and Ron. are still eligible; L. Cole has left town, and is now in Marquette, Mich.; McDougall is in Fenelon Falls, and is over age, as are Stoddard, Sullivan, and Newton, the stockholders.

It is, however, a foregone conclusion that a team will be formed.

probably an intermediate seven—for which there would be plenty of material available. Joe Killen, of last winter's St. Michael's, is in town; Boyd Sylvester, a former player, is home again; and with the pick of last year's Midgets and some older players of strong intermediate team should be formed.

LACROSSE

FINAL GAME ON WEDNESDAY

The district committee of the C. L. A. met at Toronto recently, there being T. F. Doyle, chairman; J. K. Forsyth and Secretary W. H. Hill. Arrangements were made for the final game to be played next Wednesday, Junction Shamrock vs. the winners of today's game at the Island between Guelph and Bracebridge. The Maitlands are running an excursion Saturday to Guelph, leaving North Toronto at 1.30 for their intermediate final with Elora.

INTERMEDIATE CHAMPIONS

The Rocks of Elora proved themselves better mudders than the Maitlands in Guelph Saturday, beating the latter by 2 goals to 3. The attendance, which was very good, considering the rainy day, was made up mostly of the supporters of each team, as about one hundred and fifty went with the Maitlands and fully two hundred accompanied the Rocks from Elora.

As the game was played in a down-pour of rain, there was little opportunity for brilliant play, but, as it was, the Elora team were the best, and won because they played better lacrosse.

Early in the third quarter a fight started between the players near the Elora goal, and in a few seconds scores of supporters of each team were on the field taking a hand in the scrap. The solitary policeman on the grounds was unable to handle the unruly crowd, and was not until the mayor telephoned police headquarters for reinforcements that order was restored and the game finished.

THE TURF

JOE ALLEN AT HOME

Joe Allen, W. H. Simpson's pacer, has arrived home with her driver, Charlie O'Neil, after a strenuous campaign at the surrounding fall fairs, and is resting in his stable. The work the speedy Joe has done during the fall has been extremely satisfactory to his owner. He will be entered in the events at the Markham fall fair on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. After that he will be prepared for the ice-racing season, when Mr. Simpson expects to follow the circuit with him. He will also be entered in the 218 class at Ottawa for the stakes of $1000.

RUNNING

"BOBBY" KERR, SPRINTER

Bobby Kerr, of Hamilton, has won 39 first prizes this year. He has only been beaten once in a 100 or 220 yards flat race, and that was by Walter Knox, at the C. A. A. U. spring championships. Knox beat him by a yard in the hundred, but Kerr didn't run his race that day. Kerr says he wasn't in shape, but those who watched the event closely say that the Hamilton boy had the speed, but that Knox got his nerve on the mark by suddenly remarking to him just as they were on the mark: "I'll beat you to-day, Kerr." Kerr can't beat Kerr again, for he'll never get the fair-haired boy's nerve again, and there are hundreds who would like to see him meet Kelly Parsons, Hain, Eaton and other United States sprinters—Lou Marsh in Toronto Star.

RUNNER FELL ASLEEP

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Because John Lindquist, of Brooklyn, fell asleep three miles from the finish of the twenty-five mile Marathon race of the New Illinois Athletic Club yesterday, he lost what his friends and followers of the race thought surely he would win. Lindquist was as unconscious as a man asleep for the twenty-third and twenty-fourth miles, and had not the mechanism of his legs ceased a mile from the finish he would have won by a big margin.

from Alexander Thibau, who was the eventual winner.

When Lindquist finally fell at Chicago avenue, a mile from the finish, he was so dead to the world that no amount of effort by his trainers could arouse him, and although he was then leading by the margin of margins, his friends were forced to see other competitors one by one, plod past.

At the beginning of the twenty-third mile, Lindquist, who wore the number of the Syracuse Athletic Club of Brooklyn, showed the effects of the tremendous strain he was undergoing. He lost consciousness and from then on ran like an automaton, guided by his trainers.

THE ILLINOIS MARATHON

The time of the Illinois 25-mile Marathon, run Saturday was woefully slow. Alex Thibau, a son of a half-bred Canadian and an Englishwoman born in Quebec, won in 3:06.25. Sidney Hatch, the Chicago crack, who won the St. Louis Marathon this year was fifth, in 4:25. Lindquist, the Swede, who was supposed to be the man to beat Tom Longboat at Boston, led for 23 1-2 miles and collapsed. He was then 10 minutes ahead of the record. The course record is held by Denis Bennett, of 2:41.33. Thos. J. Hicks, of Boston, who finished well up in the Boston race, was also beaten. There were 37 starters and 21 finishers.

SHRUBB DEFEATED NEBRICK

Nebriek proved no match for Alfred Shrub, the four-time professional champion, in a match race at the Island Saturday afternoon. It was Nebriek's defeat in the "pro" class. The Englishman won by about a quarter of a mile, in 20.15. His times were: 1 mile, 4:45; 2 miles, 10:10; 3 miles, 15:17 1-2.

Toronto Star: John Bennett, who won the Lindsay five-mile race on a rough, hilly course, in 33 minutes, is a young Englishman. He weighs 125 pounds. George Thornbury, the farmer's lad who chased him so closely, was beaten by the Englishman's frequent sprints—a la Shrub.

Peterboro Review: "Longboat" Bennett, the local lad, who won the five mile road race at the Lindsay fair, said there were no other skaters floating around that he did not really win the race, but that it was another runner, altogether, that breathed the tape first. These rumors are, of course, without any foundation, and were obviously originated by some irresponsible person. The Englishman, however, that Bennett won—even the Lindsay Post says so, and anything good the Post says of a Peterboro man is bound to be true.

GENERAL SPORTING NOTES

COME ON, SWEDEN!

Stockholm, Sept. 30.—The Swedish Yacht Club has addressed an enquiry to the New York Yacht Club as to whether the latter would accept a Swedish challenge for the America's Cup.

WILL HE EVER LEARN

Jimmy Reynolds, Port Hope's veteran pedestrian, offers to wager $300 against $500 that he can walk from Port Hope to Toronto and return in 35 hours, which is three hours less than the time limit of his former attempt.

"GET THE HOOK"

Jimmy Reynolds is to attempt to walk to Toronto and back, from Port Hope in 38 hours. We admire his grittiness, but Jimmy has got an enormous amount of free advertising and it's time the veteran had retired. It looks, however, as if Jimmy would get a few more boogies from the press, and another attempt would be made. When the sporting world grows tired of such attempts, the cry will be to "get the hook," and Jimmy from public view.

CHALLENGE IS ACCEPTED

A telegram from New York received Thursday announced that Boston, together with Eugene Tremblay, claims the title of lightweight champion of America had consented to meet the Canadian in a match which is to decide the much disputed question as to which is actually the champ. The match is to be in Montreal, probably in the old Schmeck Park wrestling barn, and in addition to the title, the winner will receive a purse of $500, the loser to be satisfied with the remainder. The match will take place on September 28.

"Winny" Winchester, the crack gold minder, has been in Peterboro during the fair days.

Max Tremblay, the Canadian wrestler, defeated the Yankee Goe, both for the lightweight championship of the world on Friday at Montreal.

The upstairs classes and the downstairs of the L. C. L. played a football match at the Union School grounds on Friday. The former won by the score 2-0.

The long distance walking "fad," for it is nothing more, is beginning to die out. All "fads" generally do after a length of life. When a few more aspiring "tramps" end up in their attempts like Jimmy Reynolds and Scattergood did, the craze will die out.

The gold and silver medals are now being made for the Ward Marathon races. Toronto. They are designed with a cut of Minerva, the Greek goddess, and Canadian coat-of-arms on the front and donor's name on the back. The white and light blue and white are the adopted colors for the Marathons.

ROLLER SKATING IN LINDSAY

Popular Amusement to be Inaugurated Here.

Evening Post of Sept. 26.

The popular and healthy recreation, roller-skating, is to be inaugurated in Lindsay, and the rink for this purpose will be ready in a little over a week.

Mr. S. J. Sheridan, owner of the Peterboro roller skating rink, is in town, and made this statement to a Post reporter this morning. The Lindsay roller skating rink has been leased and a gang of men commenced the work of putting in a hardwood floor this morning. The rink will be extensively improved otherwise, and Mr. Sheridan expects to have it ready for the skaters in a little over a week's time.

During the past year this form of amusement has received a distinct impetus in public estimation owing to the healthful form of enjoyment. Everywhere rinks are being built, and roller skating has "caught on" to stay. Mr. Sheridan is the owner of the Peterboro rink, and also has one in Ottawa—the largest in Canada.

A full supply of up-to-date steel roller bearing skates will be kept by the management, and these will be rented with the use of the floor for a nominal fee. The rink will be open practically all day, and the band will arrive at the rink in the evening. The morning and afternoon will be largely at the disposal of beginners. For the benefit of ice skaters who have never been on rollers, we would say that the change is easily acquired, a day or so being sufficient to get one accustomed to the new form of skates. Many from town are already skillful skaters, having learned in Peterboro. The people here are enthusiastic ice skaters, and it is expected the new sport will be popular. It is preferred above the other form of skating in large towns and cities. A full staff of assistants will be employed, including six or seven "skate boys" to fasten on the rollers. Both waiting rooms will be fitted up in good style, and the room above the office is to be a smoking room. A place will be reserved for spectators. Coat and hat will also be checked free of charge.

Mr. Sheridan, the originator of the enterprise, is an old Mariposa boy, having lived here some twenty years ago. He was employed as a tailor in Milne's tailor shop at one time, but later left for Toronto. He has been into the roller skating business in Peterboro last fall, and has been very successful. Mr. S. is not decided as yet whether he will run the rink as an ice skating rink or not this winter.

THE STOMACH ON STRIKE.

The Tonic Treatment for Indigestion is the Most Successful.

Loss of appetite, coated tongue, bad taste in the mouth, heavy dull headache and a dull sluggish feeling—these are the symptoms of stomach trouble. They indicate that the stomach is on strike, that it is no longer furnishing to the blood the full quota of nourishment that the body demands, hence every organ suffers. There are two methods of treatment, the old one by which the stomach is humored by the use of pre-digested foods and artificial ferments, and the new one—the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills method—by which the stomach is toned up to do the work nature intended of it. A recent cure by the tonic treatment is that of Mrs. J. W. Haskell, Port Maitland, N. S. She says: "For years I enjoyed perfect health, but suddenly headaches seized me. I had a bad taste in my mouth; my tongue was coated; I grew tired and oppressed; my appetite left me and such food as I did eat only caused distress. I had severe pains in my chest. I lost all interest in my work and with vomiting. At different times I was treated by some of our best doctors, but although I followed their treatment carefully I did not get any better. One day while reading a paper I came across a case similar to mine. It had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I immediately purchased a supply and it was not long before they began to help me. I grew stronger day by day, till now I am as healthy as I ever was. I have a good appetite, am strong and active and can attend to my household duties without fatigue. I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all sufferers from indigestion."

Rheumatism, kidney trouble, neuritis, St. Vitus' dance, headache and backache, palpitation, general weakness and a host of other troubles find their root in bad blood, just as in the case of stomach trouble. That is why the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills treatment is always a success—they are a powerful blood builder and nerve tonic. Sold by all druggists or direct from The Dr. Williams' Medical Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

About the Saloon.

St. Catharines Journal: That is a question worth considering by the electors of this city. That the saloon is responsible for much poverty, lawlessness and crime is evident to all. Many reputable men who are in a position to judge, lay 85 per cent. of crime at its doors. According to the present law the citizens may choose some places if they so desire. Many municipalities in Canada have done so already. It is found that where there are no licenses granted there is less illicit selling than where they are granted. In other words, the law is effective.

Would it be to the interest of the citizens of St. Catharines individually and collectively if the open bars were entirely abolished? This question was discussed by a number of electors early in the summer and at their call a public meeting of all men and women who wish to see the saloons driven out, or greatly reduced in number, is called for Tuesday evening next, October 1st, at 8 o'clock, in the Standard Hall, Queen-st.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH MEET

A TWO HOUR SESSION TAKEN UP WITH LITTLE BUSINESS.

The Mayor Gives His Views Concerning the Lock Up.

"They have left undone what should have been done and have done what they should have left undone." This sums up in a general way the progress of the Board of Health for the past year.

Last Friday's meeting was a brilliant example of the manner in which the Board has been run. In the first place, merely a handful were present. There were Mr. A. Horn, chairman, Mayor Vrooming, J. Keith, O'Reilly and Mills. Dr. McAlpine, M.H.O. and Sanitary Inspector Douglas. In the two hours that were taken up, a bare half dozen matters, most of them of secondary importance, were discussed. That was about all that was done to them. Strides on how things should be done, and conditions elsewhere, were the order of the meeting, and helped to get in the time.

An account of $60 sent in by Mrs. Davey for nursing her sister, raised a small storm and brought forth contradictory opinion, the Medical Health Officer asking Board to pay account, and the majority of the members against it. "It was fyled."

BACTERIAL REPORT.

Gumley's well had been tested twice, and the second test proved it to be bad. The Sanitary Inspector had orders to close it. Mr. Gumley point blank refused to do so, and as no active means were forthcoming to compel him to close it, the well has been left with out the shed door locked.

On motion the north ward committee were instructed to meet Mr. Gumley, and by means of diplomacy or otherwise settle the dispute. Reports from Toronto laboratories of samples of water submitted to them, from the wells of Messrs. R. Knowlson and A. D. Mallon showed chemical pollution in both. Mr. Mills did not have much faith in Toronto reports and suggested sending the samples to Ottawa. Sanitary Inspector Douglas must have thought the Toronto experts were negligent in their work, for he said the reports appeared to him to be too much alike in many cases. There were evidence of typhoid germs in the water. Cleaning up a well is useless says the M. H. O.'s opinion, the surface water should not be allowed to get in.

Moved by Mr. Mills, seconded by Mayor Vrooming, that the owners of these wells be instructed to have their wells surface water proof, and that the Sanitary Inspector should enforce the draining away of surface water on all suspected wells—Carried.

The Medical Health Officer advanced the theory that families got injured to infected water and are thus proof against the germs.

An account of O'Loughlin & McIntyre for $10.35 for goods for sanitary patients was ordered to be paid.

SANITARY INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

The report of the Sanitary Inspector was read. Besides other things, he mentioned that he had inspected the lock-up and found it to be in bad condition, and that James Carroll had an unsanitary cellar.

On motion Mr. Carroll was ordered to put his cellar in proper sanitary condition.

THE LOCK-UP

The mention of this brought the mayor to his feet. "The trouble is," he commented, "that the place has not been properly cleaned. I do not believe Mr. Wilson knows when he has cleaned it properly. He's employed as a matter of fact, 'It is easy for Dr. White' he went on, 'to see the place was dirty, and he immediately flies to the press to pose probably as a public benefactor. Instead of speaking to Mr. Bezz. The grand jury expected to find a nicely furnished place and were disappointed.' He went on to insinuate that their ability to judge was not that of experts. 'True,' he continued, 'the location is bad.' He added the Council had power to have the magistrate place a special constable in charge.

Aid. O'Reilly—"We're not building a lock-up to entice people to come in and we cannot fit it up for frames. Let the windows be kept open."

"A lot of rubbish over a small matter" added the Mayor.

Mr. Skitch had been notified before to tear down his horse near his carriage works, because it was unsanitary. He wrote to the Board asking for more explicit instructions. It appeared to the members they had been misinformed concerning the affair, but he was ordered to put it in proper sanitary condition, whatever he can make of that.

The Board then adjourned.

Old Lindsay Boys in West.

A half page advertisement in the Edmonton Journal announcing the sale of one hundred town lots in the R. A. Pikkie sub-division of Vermilion, has been received by The Post. The Pikkie boys evidently have some fine property in the West and know how to advertise when they have anything they wish to sell.

Painless Teething.

There is no period in baby's life that mothers dread more than teething time. The little gums are tender and inflamed; the child suffers and is sleepless and cross, and the mother is usually worn out caring for the child. The Boon of Baby's Own Tablets allays the inflammation, softens the tender swollen gums, and brings the teeth through painlessly. Mrs. N. Saure, St. Rose de Lima, Que. says: "When my baby was cutting his teeth he was feverish, and did not take the Boon of Baby's Own Tablets he never used any medicine for children I prize so highly as the Tablets." Sold by all medicine stores, or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Right Rubber Goods

A good portion of the "rubber goods" on the market are sold under an "alias"—they are part rubber and part filling. Our rubber goods are the all rubber kind, and don't cost much, if any, more than the inferior sorts. When you get syringes, hot water bottles, nursery supplies, etc., here you can depend upon quality and price being right.

WILSON & WILSON, Proprietors.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4th.

SCHOOL TEACHERS SCARCE.

The day of our supply of teachers is gone, says the Oshawa Reformer. Oshawa School Board cannot get applications for positions on their public school staff, and this state of affairs is pretty general throughout Ontario. It is not now a question of salary, as teachers are not to be found at any price. Low salaries for the past ten or fifteen years have driven nearly all male teachers out of the profession, and have not been a sufficient return for the outlay in time, effort and money to induce even females to qualify.

WEAKENING ON THE PLATFORM.

Kingston News (Con.)—The proposal to hold a big conservative convention for the west should be enlarged so as to take in all Canada. The News, some time ago, advocated a general convention for June last. We believe still it would have been better for the party. Mr. Borden then could have submitted his platform to the convention and had the benefit of any criticism that might be made on it prior to going on his present tour. But it is not too late yet to hold one.

THEY THINK TOO LATE.

It is astonishing the concern for the feelings of their parents that young men assume as soon as they get into some trouble that opens disgrace upon them. A young fellow disregards the admonitions and feelings of a mother by getting into an company, by contracting bad habits, or by committing some crime. He is brought before the bar and receives punishment for his misdeeds. He then remembers his mother and other friends, and pleads that the matter be hushed up. It is not at all of any reputable newspaper to turn any man's career by publishing the details of his fall. The best way, however, for any young man to avoid having the papers publish what will break his mother's heart and wound his friends is to live so as to give the press no occasion to publish his disgrace. The time to consider the feelings of one's friends is before, not after, one commits the act that would bring disgrace.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Mail & Empire demands that Canada be a "white man's country." The Montreal Herald, The Great and Only Sam Hughes has been saying that Mr. Borden is too modest. As Sir Hibbert Tupper also claims to be modest, the reversion to the leadership would seem to rest between Sam himself and Mr. Fowler.

J. W. Curry, K. C., liberal candidate in East York, warns the electors that he will not stand for any majority in elections, and if any illegality are committed he will resign the seat. He wants a clean, straight fight, and will have nothing else.

Montreal Herald; Booker T. Washington observes in a magazine article that if he had his choice of rebirth he would say, "Make me an American Negro." Mr. Washington was evidently been reflecting on the awful possibility that he might be born a San Francisco Chinaman or a New York strike-breaker.

Bishop Ingram, of London, who is now in Canada, is a believer in a cheerful Christianity. He says, "To have a proper influence over your fellow, be absolutely straight, have no 'side,' be sympathetic, show a sense of humor, have the spirit of faith." Here is a terse philosophy that strongly appeals to an up-right common sense.

Port Perry Star: A mass meeting of the Liberals of Reach, Port Perry and Scugog will be held in the Council chamber, Port Perry, at 2 p. m. on Thursday, Oct. 10th. Addresses will be delivered by F. L. Fowler, Esq., of Oshawa, Candidate for the House of Commons; Jas. Carnegie, the Provincial Legislature; T. E.

Crugg, Esq., of Greenbank. A full attendance of all Liberals is requested.

Action was taken last week by the town council of Collingwood to raise the license fees of the hotels to two thousand, five hundred dollars.

Bread in Ottawa is twelve cents a loaf. But little does Ottawa care, being one of those superior cities in which government officials who do not live on cake eat pie.

The Liberal party in Ontario may be taking the rest cure, but, says the London Advertiser, there'll be no rest for the Government when A. U. MacKay gets his war-paint on.

Toronto Star: One hundred Chinamen paid the $500 poll tax yesterday and were admitted to Canada. The fifty thousand dollars the country is ahead by them represents about ten per cent. of what these almond-eyed soldiers of fortune will take home to the Flowery Kingdom say ten years from now.

The Government has adopted the regulations for the new mint. The silver coins to be turned out by the mint are the same as now, in use in Canada, namely five cent pieces, ten cents, twenty-five cents and fifty cents, and 1 cent copper. Later on the question of nickel coinage will be considered.

It remained for this Mail and Empire to suggest the suspicion that the Japanese immigration is chargeable to W. T. R. Preston, who is now in Japan. The fact that the Japanese immigrants are not coming from Japan, but from Hawaii, doesn't bother the cheerful idiot of the Mail a bit.—Hamilton Times.

Victoria Times, Conservative: Very promptly and very properly the Ottawa government has refused to entertain the suggestion of the Trades and Labor Congress that notices should be given of the abrogation of the treaty with Japan. Only desperate disease require desperate remedies, and the country is not yet in extremes over the invasion from the Orient.

Brantford Expositor: President Cockshutt, of the Manufacturers' Association, views with alarm the advance in wages that employees have been getting. According to his own figures the number of employees has increased 13.8 per cent. from the years 1900 to 1905, and in the same period there has been an increase of forty-five per cent. in the wages paid. But the products of the factories have increased nearly fifty per cent. in the same time, and prices have arisen. All the advantage has not been secured by the workers.

How much of Wentworth county may be under local option another year is now a question of no little interest. The latest township to take up the matter is the big township of Beverly. A goodly number of the people of that township are of the mind that its people, both old and young, can manage without the bars, and there does not seem to be much fear that the absence of booze would adversely affect the World's Fair. So the people, in spite of Whitely's 60 per cent. vote required, will have the question voted upon at the coming municipal elections.

The Christian Guardian has this to say of Hon. George P. Graham, of whom it publishes a portrait in this week's issue.

The Hon. George P. Graham, recently appointed minister of railways and canals in the Dominion cabinet, is just now a much talked about individual. As the son of a Methodist minister and an official in the Methodist church, thousands of our readers, irrespective of party, are cherishing high hopes for him in the responsible and exceedingly trying position to which he has been called. To give one's self up to an active political life is, we believe, to make a severe testing of the reality and thoroughness of one's moral and religious convictions, but then we suppose convictions are made for testing, and should they break down under it is only a proof that they were not of any great value before it came. Our best wish for Mr. Graham is that as the years go on he may prove himself a politician built on the four-square plan.

WOODSTOCK

To Vote on Local Option in January—City Assessment.

Woodstock, Sept. 30.—It is probable that a local option by-law will be submitted to the electors of Woodstock at the municipal elections in January. A meeting was held on Saturday of the Executive committee of the North Oxford Prohibition Association, and it was decided to submit a by-law in Woodstock and the townships of Blandford and Enderbury. A public meeting will be held shortly, and if the action of the committee is endorsed, the campaign will be proceeded with.

Might Have Been Serious.

One of our well known and aspiring financiers, who daily visits the big store of Dundas & Flavell's Limited, Kent-st., was making one of his usual calls when he slipped on the oiled hardwood floor in front of the beautiful clothing cabinets used for carrying their famous clothing for men, and in trying to regain his feet he crashed through one of the glass fronts of the cabinet, inflicting a bad cut in the palm of his hand, necessitating a hasty visit to the corner drug store to have the wound attended to.

LUMBERING IS AN IMPORTANT INDUSTRY.

The Carew Saw Mill and Box Factory Models of Modern Improvements—Over 125 Men Employed During the Season—Cut Will be a Large One—Description of Interiors of Buildings.

Lumbering is one of Canada's principal industries. The Dominion's vast natural resources, combined with the extensive chains of waterways, render feasible the operation of the large lumber mills throughout the country. While the vast, unbroken forests are a thing of the past in this vicinity, the lumber industry is still an important commerciality, and thousands upon thousands of feet of lumber cut annually.

Lindsay, through the use of the Scugog, is the centre of considerable industry in this line. The Carew lumber mill is known throughout the province, owing to its immense annual cut, and its steady enlargement from year to year. This mill, with the adjoining box factory, is owned by Mr. John Carew, one of our foremost citizens.

Apart from the commercial side of the business, the industry is an interesting one. Coming direct from the woods, where they are cut by gangs of lumbermen, the logs are towed in cribs and on scows down the different waterways. Here they are manufactured into lumber and turned out at the other side of the mill, dressed and ready for use. Strict economy prevails, and every end is manufactured into some article of use.

THE CAREW SAW MILL.

THE WOOD SUPPLY.

The extensive woodyards of the Carew mill have been depleted during the past summer owing to the good weather and mill wood promises to be scarce there as well as in other places, with the resultant rise in price. Carew's have 1200 cords of fire wood at Burnt River. This, however, is destined for other places, and will not reach Lindsay. At present dry mill wood is at a premium, the mills selling wood right from the saws. The Alexandria, the Carew tug, brought up three scow loads of wood to-day, the most of this, however, being purchased by a local dealer.

THE BOX FACTORY.

What formerly was Parkin's brick mill at the northern limit of one town, has been transformed into one of the most up-to-date box factories in Ontario, if not in Canada. Every labor-saving device and machine has been installed, and the work is not out with remarkable rapidity. The facilities for transporting manufactured material have not been completed as yet, and in the near future a siding will be run up to the factory door at the west side.

Three drying kilns, of the capacity of three or four carloads of lumber, extend the breadth of the yard, and take the moisture out of the lumber. The kilns are heated by air forced through them by a fan after passing over steam pipes. The entire mill is fireproof, and has its own electric plant. The machinery is run by two boilers, which carry 110 pound pressure of steam each.

On entering the main room the whizz of machinery in rapid motion prevails, and makes talking almost impossible. Everywhere is industry and men hurrying to and fro. From fifteen to twenty men are employed here, many of them being skilled mechanics. A system of pipes with openings at every machine and a powerful fan, causes a suction of air, through the system which draws up the shavings and sawdust, thus making the factory to present a more cleanly aspect.

A complicated machine for the turning out of mouldings comes first in the row. The operation of this takes a skilled mechanic. An automatic emery wheel, which grinds and sharpens blades itself, is a useful adjunct to the mill. Next comes a saw for sawing lumber to desired width, and beyond that is a Madsen Williams lathe for turning banister posts, etc. A sander for the finishing of lumber for floors is one of the most interesting pieces of machinery in the factory. From this the lumber is pushed along a prepared way by the action of the machine itself and loaded onto the cars. A double surface finishes off both sides of the lumber, if so desired. Two cut-off and two rip saws comprise the box-making division. At present boxes are being got ready for Flavell's and poultry house. One of the most up-to-date pieces of machinery in the place is an end matcher, which matches the ends of lumber, making it fit snugly all round. This is a recent innovation and will be a useful one.

Downstairs is located the sash and door factory, in charge of Mr. Geo. Henley who has the reputation of being Mr. Henley has the reputation of being the most capable man. Resawing, mortising machines, and a buzz saw, or assist the men in their work. A "hollow-arm sander" is a labor-saving one, and a door clamp turns the doors put with rapidity. A room at the barked sides of it. Then it is placed on another machine, where the ends are taken off, and it is sawn into any required length, after which it is placed on the cart. To go back a little, a certain portion of the log is useless for boards and is thrown to one side, where it is cut up for lathe, to another place where lathe are manufactured or planed used merely as firewood, thus utilizing the entire log.

SHINGLE MAKING.

To watch the workings of the shingle mill drives one a cold chill with the possibility of one of the busy workers miscalculating a movement and allowing a hand or arm to fall on the swift whirling saw, but each man deftly and quickly works away, seemingly remote from danger. Two men are engaged in cutting shingles to the desired width and three joiners are employed, the shingles then being tossed down below to be packed. A filing room, where the log saws, with their jagged teeth are sharpened, swaged, or gummed, is an important place. The care of saws is one of the difficulties that confront a mill man, and to get lumber they have to be kept in condition.

The Carew mill has had an exceptionally busy run this year, but have still large quantities of logs in Ball Lake, at the mouth of Squaw river. Their tugs will be towing till navigation is closed.

Another "Pat" Story.

Pat was visiting a friend in the lion country. Borrowing a gun, he set off one day in search of game. Some time after, his host heard a distant report, and, going to the window, spied in the distance Pat racing for game, and behind him a huge lion, roaring with every step. Nearly spent, Pat reached the door just in time to say, "Quick, quick, Mike, open the door. I'm bringing him home alive."

CAPTURED A LIVE DEER

Janetville Man Will Attempt to Domesticate Animal.

Quite an interesting wild animal story is on everybody's tongue in Janetville and vicinity. Not very far from Janetville there are miles and miles of swampy and wooded land, which is almost impenetrable. It is an ideal spot for ducks, partridge and other game, as the famous bear story of a few weeks ago will testify.

The latest denizen of the northern forests to seek these wilds and then forsake them for the haunts of men is a fine four-year-old deer. It seems that about a week ago Mr. Robert G. Bradburn was out in his lower pasture salting his cattle he noticed among them an animal of a different shape and color from his usual good breed of stock. He looked closer. It was a deer! Mr. Bradburn then started walking slowly backward with the salt, and the cattle and deer followed him right up to his deer yard, where he called his wife to come and see what he had brought home. The animal stayed round for a few minutes, and then becoming frightened at some movement on the part of Mr. Bradburn, leaped over the fence and made off into the woods near the pasture. In a day or two Mr. Albert McNeil, who lives about a mile from Mr. Bradburn's, saw it come into his barnyard with the cattle one evening. There were two men present, and while the deer didn't seem at all afraid of them, it wouldn't let them get near it. The farm dog then caught the animal's eye, and the two stood riveted watching each other's movements. The two men then stole around behind among the cattle and caught the deer by the hind legs. Mr. McNeil now has it in a box stall in his stable where he can tend to it. Everyone for miles around has been to see it, and it has now become quite tame.

Onions Make Mirth.

(The Table.)

If people would eat more onions the population would be a great deal healthier. Why are we bilious? Because we don't eat onions. You never saw a dyspeptic man eating onions. He thinks they are poison, but, in fact, they are the medicine that he most needs. Whenever you see an onion eater you see a whole-souled, open-hearted, jolly good fellow, who knows what he ought to eat to keep him good-humored. Talk to him about the health of his family, and he'll be in the same way with the best of you. There is more nourishment in an onion than there is in a roll.

EDITOR TO ENTER MINISTRY.

W. H. Cline, of Port Perry Star, Will Go to Buffalo.

W. H. Cline, for many years past editor of the Port Perry Star, has given up newspaper work and returned to the ministry. For years he has conducted the bright little Star in a progressive and business-like way, and has ever been advancing the interests of Port Perry through the columns of his paper. His removal to Buffalo, N. Y., will be regretted by his fellow townsmen.

Mr. Samuel Farmer, of Toronto, who for two years past has been a member of the staff of Saturday Night, has taken over the Star and will conduct it in the future. In the hands of such a competent man the Star is bound to progress, and with it the village.

Why Didn't He?

An Irishman in a brown study unthinkingly entered a field, where he soon awoke to find that he was not the only occupant. The beast, with horns down and tail horizontal, bore down on him, who, straining hard and nerve, and feeling that every bound was hastening a crisis, he heard to exclaim, "What am I running the same way with the best of you? When he ran away, why didn't he run the other way?"

A CITIZEN'S GRIEVANCE

My lawn has taken a lot of hard work to keep it in good condition, but recently it has been made a sleeping place for a neighbor's ducks, and its appearance is being spoiled. One does not like to impound any animals belonging to a neighbor, but some things get to be too much of an imposition, and there is a limit to human endurance.

SOUTHWARDER.

A flourishing crop of burdock holds undisputed possession of the east side of Bond st. on the west bank of the river. In a few days this ripening seed will have scattered on a wider area, insuring a larger crop for next season. The Street Commissioner should have them cut and burnt at once.

CITIZEN

Fair and Cool.

The sweet September days of song
The days of dream and story,
The days of sweetness that belong
To wonderlands of glory.
The sweet September days go by,
With all their tender feeling,
Through earth the air and sea and sky
A mystic sweetness stealing.

GRAPHITE IN HALIBURTON.

Expert to Investigate Deposits of the Valuable Mineral.

The presence of graphite among that of many other valuable minerals in Haliburton county is attracting attention from outside capital, and if the deposits prove to be in sufficient quantities mining industries may ensue. The mineral is a valuable one in that it is used extensively in the manufacture of lead pencils besides other things, and the discovery will be a splendid thing for the county, if the results pan out as expected.

Lindsay had a distinguished visitor yesterday in the person of Mr. Eugene Mcweeney, of Saginaw, Mich., president of the United States Graphite Co., one of the largest in America, who was on his way to Haliburton to investigate the deposits of graphite along the L. E. & O. railway and elsewhere.

On motion they were ordered to be paid.

Mr. J. D. Flavell said on his return from Winnipeg he was astounded to find that at a meeting of the Board in his absence the resignation of Mr. Harstone, head master of the Collegiate Institute, had been asked for. He understood no formal charges had been made by any person and the conclusion of the board had evidently been reached by paying attention to street rumors. He thought it a very unfair way to treat a man who had been in the service of the board for over 21 years, and during that time not one complaint had been made against him by the inspector. He believed Mr. H. was the best principal in the province, who had given our collegiate a provincial reputation that he should be proud of. He thought the board had been stampeded during his absence by several of the older members, who had some personal feeling towards the principal and who had influenced the younger members. He did not expect to influence the older members, but he thought that they had been stampeded without cause by stories that the principal had lost his grip, the school was not doing good work, etc. He had been told in Toronto that Lindsay Collegiate sent up better students to the University than any school in the province and hundreds of their pupils could testify of the good work. He thought it foreign to the interests of the school and the education of the children of our town to make a change in the principal and he wished to bring in the following resolution: "That the resignation of Mr. Harstone as head master of the Collegiate Institute be not accepted."

Dr. Walters as a seconder of Mr. Flavell's resolution, said that since the last meeting of the board he had made enquiries in reference to Mr. Harstone's work, and now thought it would be for the best interests of the school if his services were retained notwithstanding he had voted for the resolution passed at the last meeting of the Board asking for his resignation.

Mr. Staples said he wished to look the matter in the face. The school had not been making the progress it should and they had been looking for the trouble and could locate it in no other point than with the principal. The matter had been brought up at a special meeting of the Board, and it was decided to vote on it. He thought it was to the interests of the school if there was a change, and he was still of the same opinion. It was not a personal matter with him as he had the greatest regard for Mr. Harstone as a gentleman and a colleague.

Moved by Mr. Staples seconded by Dr. Blanchard that the resignation of Mr. J. C. Harstone as principal of the Collegiate Institute be accepted.

Dr. Blanchard said that as seconder of the resolution, he had not come to his conclusion in a week or even a month, but it had been reached through several years of observation as a member of the Board. There was no personal feeling on his part as he respected Mr. Harstone, but only supported the change as he thought it to be in the best interests of the school.

Mr. Flavell thought that the conclusion had been reached by private caucus meetings engineered by the chairman, Mr. Anderson, and Mr. Staples. Mr. Stewart emphatically repudiated the accusation and said he had not discussed the matter outside of a board meeting with any member of the board.

At this point Mr. Anderson claimed a hearing, as a point of privilege, and read the board an anonymous threatening letter he had received which intimated that if he voted for the acceptance of the resignation of Mr. Harstone his own official life in the employ of the Whitney Government might be brought to a conclusion. Mr. Anderson, after dealing with the contents of the letter, said he could not be influenced or intimidated by threats, but would do what he thought was right in the matter under any circumstances. He was not acting from any personal spleen, but what he thought would be in the best interests of the school. His conclusion had not been formed hastily but after due consideration. If Mr. Harstone could give satisfactory results in his work he would not oppose his retention. He did not care how the board accomplished it but results must be obtained that would satisfy the ratepayers.

Mr. McIntyre said he had received a good many complaints of the results of the last departmental examinations from the ratepayers and he would not be doing his duty as their representative if he did not heed them. It was true he was one of the younger members but he had given the matter careful thought when he had voted at the previous meeting and he was not prepared to move from his position as another member of the board had done.

Mr. McWaters said it was not a personal matter with him, but he had been moved by complaints from parents who had children attending the school who were not satisfied with the results of their work.

Mr. Carey said he was influenced in no way but for the interest of the school. The matter had been fully discussed at a former meeting of the board, and he would take the same stand as he had done at that meeting.

Mr. J. W. Anderson said he personally was friendly to the principal, and his boys could understand his methods of teaching, but there were many people who could not, and he thought that for the general welfare of the school, a change would be beneficial.

Mr. Edwards said he had been at the former meeting when the action was taken, and he would like to know the charges.

Chairman Stewart said he had been accused by Mr. Flavell of having some personal feeling in the matter, which he wished to emphatically repudiate. He had always had the best of feeling for Mr. Harstone, and had counted him among his personal friends. He had given the interest of the school a great deal of thought and consideration. The chairman was often the last one to hear complaints, but many had reached him. He had seen for a long time that a change in the principalship would be an advantage to the school. He was the only man on the board when Mr. Harstone was engaged twenty-one years ago, and it came doubly hard to take the stand he was compelled to take, but the interest of the school would have to be considered before anything else.

Mr. Harstone said, he wished to hear some of the complaints that had been made against him. He said he had had no complaints from the board but he did not claim to be perfect. The complaints should be put in writing that he might defend himself. He did not wish, in any case, to withdraw his resignation.

Chairman Stewart said it was not necessary to formulate charges. It was an accumulation of complaints which the majority of the board felt they must recognize.

TWILIGHT IN THE COUNTRY.

(W. J. Funk.)
As twilight falls, the restless cares of day
Are softened, one by one; the toiler rests
Beside the stream, and sadness steals away.
The solemn hush of evening fills the air,
Waiting for night.
Along the western ridges, rosy-fair,
Lingers the light.
From out the glimmering distance
Draws the river.
Slowly gliding by,
While scarcely stirring breezes dusk and shiver
The mirrored sky.
All sounds are stilled; the breathless woods and fields
Are steeped in rest.
High is the star-clear air, a lone bird wheels
Back to its nest.
All's still; save from the mountain distance comes a tinkling bell.
And shifting swarms of insects softly hum,
A drowsy spell.
The last light fades; the toiler's head is bowed
And bowed in reverence and fed with peace.
His self-recovering soul low breathes a prayer.

Mrs. J. A. Lang, Lindsay.

On Sunday morning, at ten o'clock, occurred the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Dolan, wife of Mr. J. A. Lang, Mrs. Lang was a member of one of Lindsay's best known families, being the daughter of the late John and Margaret Doherty, well known among the older residents of the town. If sterling worth and an unblemished reputation for true honesty of purpose have any avail, then the deceased lady will live long in memory after her presence has fled. Perhaps none among us had more true friends in heart as well as in name than the late Mrs. Lang.
The funeral will take place from the late residence, 54 Lindsay-st., and from St. Mary's church on Tuesday morning, at nine o'clock.

MERRY WEDDING BELLS.

Ferguson-McNevin.

The marriage of Miss Jean MacNevin, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James MacNevin, of Ottawa, to Mr. John M. Ferguson, barrister-at-law, Osgoode Hall, Toronto, was solemnized very quietly at St. Mary's church Wednesday, Sept. 25th, Ven. Archdeacon Casey officiating. Only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present.
The bride, who was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. L. V. O'Connor, barrister, wore a handsome lace gown over soft satin and chiffon with tulle veil and orange blossoms, and carried a shower of roses and lilies of the valley. She also wore a pearl and amethyst necklace, the gift of the groom.
Miss Anna MacNevin attended her sister, and was prettily gowned in pale pink chiffon over taffeta with a belt of shirazacross lace, white picture hat with plumes, and carried a sheaf of pink roses. The groom was supported by Mr. R. L. Brackin, of Chatham, and Mr. W. H. McGuire, of Niagara Falls, Ont., was usher.
After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, later Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson left to spend their honeymoon in New York and Washington, the bride wearing a smartly tailored suit of blue with touches of tan, white hat trimmed with velvet and flowers.

Heart Disease Caused Death.

Mrs. Stevens, mother of Wm. Stevens, of the G.T.R., and Robert Stevens, of Alplina, dropped dead at Longford from heart disease, on Thursday last, and was buried at Seaford on Saturday. The deceased was well known to the older residents of Lindsay who will sympathize with the family in their bereavement.

Died at House of Refuge.

The death of James McIndoo, an inmate of the House of Refuge, occurred last Sunday about 9.30 o'clock, after a lingering illness of nearly two years.

Horse Races at Peterboro.

The result of the 222 race at the Peterboro fair was,
Hazel Bell, Dr. Johnston,
Peterborough..... 1 1 1
Joe Allen, Wm. Simpson, Lindsay..... 2 2 3
Dr. Mac, Dr. Broad, Lindsay..... 1 3 2
Lady Gotchard, M. Connors, Peterborough..... 3 4 4
The Review says: Joe Allen, the fast stepper, owned by Mr. Wm. Simpson, of Lindsay, covered the ground in fine style. He was a good second to Hazel Bell in all the heats of the 222 class, except the last one, when Dr. Mac, owned by Dr. Broad, another Sougezite, beat him out for second place.

Kipling in Canada.

Rudyard Kipling is coming to Canada. We hope he will hand us out something this time better than the "Lady of the Snows." Daily paper.
Ghosts of our fathers, known of old,
Poet of snow in old Quebec,
By flights that failed, and harp's quick rooms.
By many yawns I little reck, Kipling, you've wronged us sorely—yet
We can't forget, we can't forget
When you resided in Old Quebec.
A flapping snowball in the neck,
You shouldn't think that snowballs fly.
The moist of June and all July,
Kipling, that's one thing we regret,
But we'll forget, yes, we'll forget

PETERBORO POSTAL DELIVERY.

System inaugurated on Saturday Last Three Daily Deliveries.

Peterboro Review: The long looked for free postal delivery system has at last been inaugurated in Peterboro, and on Saturday morning the postmen delivered the mails for the first time. All the men were on hand sharp on time, and covered their districts with accuracy and quickness. Mr. R. B. Durston, the Deputy Superintendent of Post Offices, who has been here for some time superintending the work in connection with the system, is well satisfied with the way everything has proceeded, and says the men are more intelligent than the average mail carrier recruits.
A complete census of the city has been taken, and the name and address of corresponding members of different families in the city are known.
There will be 3 daily deliveries taken on commencing at 7.30 a.m., and one at 1 p.m., which include the entire city. The whole staff of carriers will be employed in the distribution of the mails at these deliveries. At 10 o'clock in the morning there will be a delivery conducted by three men to the business section of the city.

SLOPER'S REFLECTIONS.

Some women are so deucedly particular that they would whitewash their coal if they weren't afraid of beetles in the cellar.

There's no doubt that men and women were made for one another, otherwise why is a man's arm twenty inches long and a girl's waist nineteen round?

Some chaps who take too many sips to select the brand of whiskey they are going to drink, don't even look at the water before they pour it in. The woman who says "I won't" the loudest at the altar, is often the most emphatic in saying "I won't" afterwards.

Some people blame everything but themselves, like the man who cursed the eel because it wouldn't keep still to be skinned; or the sportsman who grumbled that hares were not made four inches longer, as he always shot that much behind them.

and then he would go to the Low Countries.

Meanwhile Denise had returned safely to the Queen's apartments and after supper sat alone in her misery in the room which opened off the hall of the Queen's Guards. The curtains were drawn, but the door was ajar and she could hear a group of young nobles chattering as they played cards. Scattered remarks broke in on her bitter self-reproaches. Women's names, some of them her friends, some of them dancers at the opera, were being freely bandied about. It was intolerable, vile, and her cheek burned to think that she was with these men that the priests and the ministers and herself were working to overthrow the Pompadour.

She rose to close the door and shut out the scandalous babble, when a remark stammered out by the Comte des Forges sent a shiver through her.

"I tell you it is quite true," he was saying. "Mont Rouge has learned that she met the Chevalier by the Fountain of Neptune this very evening."

"But how did you learn?" several voices demanded.

"As one always does, from another woman, of course," Mont Rouge was carelessly rattling the dice-box.

"And you believe it?"

"Certainly. You turn to throw, Des Forges. Gads! your hand is shaky tonight. Why should I not believe it? The Marquise, I suppose, is like the rest of her sex, and," he laughed softly, "the Chevalier is—the Chevalier."

Des Forges sniggered fatuously. "Sixes—sixes. Name of St. Denis! You speak like a married man, Mont Rouge."

"What is Mont Rouge's last scandal?" Andre had entered.

"Quite a dozen tongues eager with malice repeated the story. There was a pause. Denise stood thrilled. Her fate was in his hands.

"This is not scandal," Andre said slowly and very clearly. "It is a lie."

Chairs were excitedly pushed back. Dice-boxes and a table rolled over. Then dead silence.

"Yes," said the clear voice. "I repeat it is a lie."

"Monsieur le Vicomte," Mont Rouge was speaking with an affectation of marked politeness but his voice shook with passion. "I beg you to remember who is responsible for the story. You will withdraw that insult."

"At half-past six," Andre proceeded calmly. "I was at the Fountain of Neptune. The Chevalier de St. Amant was not there. The Marquise de Nezac was not there. The Comte de Mont Rouge will therefore no doubt see fit to withdraw his insult."

"Where is the Chevalier de St. Amant?" Have the Chevalier fetched," suggested two or three.

"No," said Andre firmly. "This is not the Chevalier's affair. The Comte de Mont Rouge can deal with him when and how he pleases. For my part I repeat that the statement about the Marquise de Nezac is a lie, and I have proved it."

"The Vicomte de Nezac talks," Mont Rouge answered fiercely. "As if his hand had been questioned."

"Yes, sir, it has until you have withdrawn what you said."

"And supposing I refuse to withdraw it? Your dictation?"

"It would be only what I expect. Gentlemen, I now assert in the presence of you all that the Comte de Mont Rouge is a liar, and I shall continue to repeat it until—"

"No, sir," Mont Rouge interrupted. "You will not repeat that at half-past six to-morrow morning you will also in the presence of these gentlemen do less permit me to teach you that I am not to be insulted even by a Gordin Bleu!"

Andre bowed. "The Comte de St. Amant will make the necessary arrangements," he said quietly, "with the gentlemen whom you will name."

The room slowly emptied. Andre paced to and fro. The curtain was sharply flung aside, and he saw Denise pale and trembling.

"You will not fight?" she pleaded.

"I have no choice, Mademoiselle."

"Oh, why did you say it?" she questioned passionately.

Pontchartrain. "It would put the most embarrassing ideas into his head."

The Abbe titrated into his lace handkerchief till he was checked by the ferocious glare of the devotees at his elbow. "You will see how vulgar the Pompadour can be," he said hurriedly.

"Inside out or outside in?" asked the Comtesse des Forges to annoy Mademoiselle Eugenie.

"Oh, do let it be seen," the Duchess pleaded, "whichever way it is."

The Abbe nodded mysteriously. He was as pleased as the rest of the company that afternoon with the progress of the great plot.

"You saw His Majesty's confessor?" The Duke de Pontchartrain had drawn Denise into a corner. "Is it satisfactory?"

"Eminently so. His Majesty listened with great attention, and was much impressed, his reverence thought."

"Good!" The Duke studied Denise's eyes and figure. What a magnificent corymb he would have made, but he just given to that perditional mix Babette would have suited her. "The ministers," he added quietly, "have followed the confessor's recommendations up, I hear. They urged how unpopular the lady was in Paris. His Majesty likes her popularly, you know, with the canaille."

"Yes," said Denise, "everything is going as we could wish."

Her eyes, like the Duke's, had unconsciously crossed the room, where Andre was talking to the Comtesse des Forges.

"We miss Mont Rouge," his Grace remarked carelessly. "He was a valuable friend to the cause." Like the rest of the Court the Duke was ignorant of what had brought about the duel, but the sudden color in Denise's cheeks and her silence confirmed his shrewd suspicions. "And," he added with the same carelessness, "I am not sure that De Nezac is—what shall I say?—altogether a friend."

"Why do you think that?" Denise asked almost proudly.

The Duke shrugged his shoulders. "My fancy, I suppose," he answered lightly. "Perhaps, however, my dear, existing friend, you will permit me to say that he is a man of honor."

Denise shrank at the remorseless taunt. Andre's face was pitiless.

"Do not be distressed," he added as if he were addressing the wall. "I have long accounted with the Comte de Mont Rouge and I welcome the opportunity of settling it so satisfactorily. Besides it is high time that these shameless tongues should be silenced. I do assure you that after to-morrow the Marquise de Beau Sejour will have nothing to fear—but the truth."

Denise turned appealingly to him. "Andre!" she whispered softly. "Andre!"

For a moment his hands clenched. "Monsieur le Vicomte," he corrected, frigidly, "who is your servant, Marquise."

He raised the curtain with a stately reverence. In silence she walked past him, her head bowed, and in silence he saluted as became the Captain of the Queen's Guard, to a maid of honor and a marquise. The gleam of the candles in their gilt sconces fell on her hair and neck, on the jewels on her breast. Then the curtain slowly swung between them.

When the woman of the Marquise de Beau Sejour brought in the morning cup of chocolate she found her mistress had passed a sleepless night of tears, but she was able to tell her that the Vicomte de Nezac had for the fifth time vindicated his superb swordsmanship, and that the Comte de Mont Rouge would not use his right arm for many weeks to come. And Denise knew that the Court had heard the last of that meeting by the Fountain of Neptune.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Queen's ladies had been entertaining their friends, and the ante-chamber was well filled with a company of the most fashionable and powerful of the noblesse, particularly of those high-born ladies and gentlemen who devoted whatever time they could spare from breaking the Ten Commandments with a dutiful courtesy to the amusement of political intrigue.

Strangely enough the Queen's friends were drawn from three very different types—there were the "devout," les devotes, les rigoristes, to whom the free-thinking of the fashionable philosophers coming to be the mode in the Faubourg St. Germain was anathema.

There were the "snobs," the high-born women who were their obedient pupils; there were the "fribbles," the great seigneurs with their wives and sisters and daughters privileged morally as well as politically if only the breach were made within their own class and with due regard to etiquette and good manners, the men and women born within the purple who sincerely believed that God could scarcely condemn a person of such quality for what would be mortal sin to a bourgeois; and there were the "snobs," the women above all of the inferior noblesse remorselessly struggling upwards who snatched at the splendid opportunity a queen's cause and a minister's cause offered. Monsieur the Dauphin, the princesses of the blood were known to hate Madame de Pompadour, to be plotting her overthrow; that was enough. Surely with royalty lay the social future.

"Yes, to be sure," the Abbe St. Victor was explaining with the smile of the lay route to the Duchesse de Pontchartrain, "the King's sin would be only one-half as heinous if Madame de Pompadour were simply a widow or even a demurelle"; he took a pinch of snuff and regretfully shrugged his shoulders.

"Or if she were really vulgar," the Duchess interposed with the pouting staccato which she knew became her best. "I wonder if all bourgeois women are like her. She is not vulgar, alas! and really it is her duty to be vulgar. Pontchartrain says she dresses better than I do."

"That is mere outward show," the Abbe remarked, "as well as being not true."

"Wonder," the Duchess asked with an air of profundity, "if a woman can be vulgar inside without being vulgar outside."

"She is not a Christian," Mademoiselle Eugenie pronounced. "That is enough for me."

"But she goes regularly to mass," objected the puzzled Duchess.

"To show her fine dresses to the Duke de Pontchartrain," Mademoiselle retorted with sour severity. "Clothes, Madame, have nothing to do with religion."

"For heaven's sake," cried the Duchess, alarmed, "don't say so to Andre saluted her as he passed out on the threshold he paused to not quietly to the Chevalier de St. Amant who was entering. The young man was as gaily dressed as usual, but his boyish face was grave and sad. He whispered something to the Duke de Pontchartrain.

"Good heavens!" exclaimed his Grace, "impossible!"

"I wish it were," said the Chevalier. "Is it quite true?"

"Dismissed!" The Comptroller-General dismissed! "St. Benoit repeated and the news flew round the room. "But why? Why?"

"It is an intrigue," the Chevalier explained. "Messieurs Paris, the bankers, who are related to the Pompadour, have refused to do any further business with the Comptroller-General. And so His Majesty has dismissed not the bankers but the minister."

"You mean," remarked the Comtesse des Forges, "that the Pompadour has dismissed the Comptroller-General?"

"Exactly."

The consternation was general. "It is no laughing matter," the Duke de Pontchartrain pronounced. "This is the first time that that woman or any woman in her position has interfered with high affairs of state. It will not be the last."

"I knew she must be vulgar inside," cried his Duchess triumphantly. "It is a pity she dresses so well. The bankers pay, I suppose."

"It is an outrage," Mademoiselle Eugenie said.

The Duke answered the Duke Andre with his most finished scorn, "when a king owes twenty million livres to a pair of money-lenders and wants twenty million more you will find that it is they, not the Court, who can protest."

"And that is not all," the Chevalier proceeded grimly. "His Majesty has been pleased to promise the reversion of the Comptroller-General's place to the Marquis de Vaudreuil."

"Impossible! Impossible!" The consternation increased. For the Marquis till a few weeks before had been better known as Abel Poisson, Madame de Pompadour's brother.

"Charming," said the Duke, "if His Majesty must make marquises from the gutter at the bidding of a grizzled old fellow like you, I am glad to see that he should enable them to be masters of the public finances and to pay their way by plunder. What is His Majesty's next whim, Chevalier?"

"What it will be to-morrow, Monsieur, I cannot say. The King has been pleased to do no more to-day than what I have said."

"And a very pretty day's work it has been," Grace replied. "Well, ladies, I have only one piece of advice to offer you. Smile, smile, smile, for if you protest Madame la Marquise de Pompadour will turn her attention to you. Do not forget that she has a pretty bourgeois daughter eight years old to whom the post of maid of honor to her Majesty would be a delightful and profitable education."

He saluted the company, and taking most of the men with him withdrew, for the situation was sufficiently grave to demand an instant conference.

All the heart and gaiety had already been struck out of the ladies. The Chevalier's dejected air, so strange to his careless and irrepressible spirit, was the most telling comment on the menace in his news. To the angry indignation and the angry indignation of the ladies now replied with melancholy brevity. The King was infatuated and obdurate, and Madame de Pompadour was plainly determined to make him the instrument of her vulgar vengeance.

"She has captured the King," the young man remarked in his gloomiest tones. "She will now coerce the Queen. Her ambition is to be mistress of the robe and to rule all Versailles."

The mere suggestion of such an outrage on precedent and etiquette made the ladies speechless with horror. A bourgeois mistress of the robes! It was unthinkable—blasphemous. As if her Majesty in dressing could take even the simplest garment except from the hands of a princess of the blood or of a duchess.

"You forget, Madame," the Chevalier remarked drily, "that the King's will is law. Le Roi gouverne par lui-même."

They were the words of Louis XIV. To-day they can still be read as the motto of Le Roi Soleil in the centre of the superb ceiling of that Galerie des Glaces at Versailles which enshrines for all generations the imperial ambitions of the king who made it. Arrogant words, but true.

The Chevalier became gradually dejected. The Chevalier stood at the window watching the gathering gloom. His dejection was not acting. His boyish face was almost tragic in its gravity. Presently he rose and began to pace up and down, wrestling with his thoughts, until he became suddenly aware that Denise had re-entered and was looking at him in questioning silence.

"Mademoiselle," he advanced to meet her. "I have no comfort for you. Before long I shall be bidding you adieu for ever."

Her eyes invited an explanation, but she said nothing.

"I speak seriously," he proceeded. "You and your friends, Mademoiselle, are aware that I am with you heart and soul in the desire to overthrow this woman who will ruin us all. I have been able to serve to the cause by bringing you information that I learned as His Majesty's confidential secretary. At your request I have to the best of my power abstained from appearing publicly to be of your party, for His Majesty is suspicious and jealous. But I fear from to-day my services must end."

"Why?" The single word revealed both anxiety and sympathy.

"His Majesty has signified that for the present he will conduct his private correspondence by himself. It is the first step. The next will be that His Majesty no longer needs my services in any capacity, that I am free," he laughed, with gentle bitterness, "to leave Versailles. Yes, Mademoiselle, I can no longer help your cause."

"That—that woman!" Denise began.

"Certainly. This is her doing. I stood between her and such secrets as His Majesty was pleased to entrust to me, secrets not known to ministers and to the Court. So long as I was private secretary, that woman was not the King's master. But when I am finally dismissed she will rule the King body and soul."

"Oh, cannot it be stopped?"

"No, Mademoiselle. I am not as his grace of Pontchartrain a great noble, not even a Comptroller-General. I am the King's secretary. Just as she is, His Majesty cannot unmake me to-morrow."

"This is dreadful," Denise murmured. "Without your help, your information, your private influence with the King, we shall be beaten, humiliated."

County Police Court

Evening Post of Sept. 28.

(W. B. Fee had a grievance against G. H. M. Baker for anchoring crib to a post he claimed was his, and the trouble was brought before Magistrate Moore to decide. The affair was so trivial the Magistrate advised them to settle it out of court, while the case was enlarged until next Saturday. McDuirmid prosecuted, Fulton defended.

Albert Walker was fined $22 in all, with an option of two months at hard labor by Magistrate Jackson yesterday for assaulting Charlie Curtin on Friday last. It seems Curtin was too drunk to effectually defend himself. He had brushed past Walker in a drunken way, tilting the latter's hat, and Walker had "lit into him," to use a pugilistic expression, badly battering him up. The affair occurred in the King Edward hotel.

Another assault case was threshed out. A man named Davis had attacked Special Constable McGill on the middle day of the fair. Davis was in an inebriate condition, and persisted in staying on the race track, and McGill had struck him with his baton. That night while McGill was standing in the C. P. R. uptown ticket office Davis came along and attacked him with his fist, inflicting a wound. The offence cost Davis $10.65, including costs.

Magistrate Jackson expressed his views concerning when a policeman should use his baton, and said that only in extreme cases should it be used. Mr. McGill, in the Magistrate's opinion, had no right to use his baton and he (the Magistrate) would report him to the County authorities.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical anæsthetic manœuvre suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, secures the repair of all organs, all tissues, and all blood animals.

The "Night Cure" as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, cures nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambulation, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

Some Remarks on Things in General

By "THE STROLLER."

In the early part of the month one, Larkin, a professor in astronomy in California, addressed the San Francisco Sociological Society, and made some very astonishing statements. One would almost conclude from them that he was joking. He stated that marriage for life is the greatest crime that can be committed in the world, viewing it from any standpoint, and the man who joined the parties, and the witnesses were the greatest criminals in the world. That would seem to be stretching it out pretty well, but he goes on further, and says that ninety-five per cent. of the crimes in the world are due to marriage for life. If it continues, the Anglo-Saxon race will be wiped out.
He knows he is right, because he has answers from 1800 women in the U. S., talented ones at that, many who, intellectual and college-bred, who say he is right. (We take it for granted that this—very hardly know what to call him—is not married, or he would hardly dare to go home and utter such a ridiculous statement as that. There are presumably 15 million married women in the U. S., a million of whom would be classed as cultured and intellectual, and we would venture the assertion that if they were all asked the question, and considered it worth while answering, that at least ninety-nine per cent.
of them would tell him he was wrong, what he is, a fool. It is really surprising what the people of the U. S. will put up with in order to have their ears tickled, and it is surprising how foolish some people will allow themselves to appear, in order to do the tickling. Now we don't believe for one moment that Larkin believes a word of what he says, or else he has lost the grey matter of his upper story, if he ever had any, that is supposed to counter-balance the ape that is in us. No one who has studied these anthropological questions from the time of Adam down, but will come to the conclusion that marriage for life is the only possible way that the human race could exist, and be as strong and healthy as it is.

We are afraid that there is an atmosphere of doubt and driven on our western coast that does not tend for the uplifting of our race. It is not so bad in Canada as it is farther south, especially in California, but as both peoples are very closely associated, our own people will certainly not improve by the contact. The
U. S. claims to be the land of liberty, and it is in a kind of a way, although in Canada we would call it license. Their idea of what constitutes liberty and ours are very different, but if the word license was used, where they use liberty, we should understand their view of it better. They will endure all sorts of annoyances and affronts and actual loss, rather than set a limit to this license. For instance, a few cowboys come into town to "put it red." In the process of putting they shoot off their horns as they gallop up and down the street, and when the job is done, no one is hurt, it is more good luck than good management. If they would be restrained, their liberty (if) would be restrained, and that could not be thought of. The comfort, or convenience, or lives even, of the rest of the community, for the time being, are of a secondary consideration. In Canada they would be about two minutes at the process, when their liberty would be seriously curtailed, and when sobered up, a fine of $50 and costs imposed, for carrying deadly weapons. In our case the public is guarded on every hand, in theirs the individual. Their idea may inconvenience other people without number, but they will survive with a smile rather than resist (if). The privilege of free intellectual matters, even in spiritual matters, but after all it is only the froth we see or hear of. The great body of the nation are sufficiently right at heart, or they would not prosper in the way they have done.

Our friend, the Rev. Mr. Welch, has taken objection to several comments in some of our remarks, some of which are well taken, and some of which are not. He starts out with saying that it is contrary to his usual custom to notice passing utterances or opinions that appear in the press. We could not tend to be understanding, but we believe that Mr. Welch and his confederates to "come down" a little more, and take that part in general affairs, that their position entitles them to take.
Our friend is somewhat contradictory in his compliments—some are much banded and some are left. For instance, he speaks of us as a "fair-minded correspondent" and yet virtually accuses us of being "ill-advised," "insinuating," and "sherring," hardly compatible with "fair-mindedness." We may say, however, that in anything we say, we always endeavour to be as fair as we know how.
That of course, may not amount to much, but even if it did, it is not likely that we would please everybody.
Our aim is to touch on current happenings, fairly and honestly, and yet in such a way as to get people out of this deadly rut that we all seem to be in. We will answer the gentleman's question first, as to what practical assistance we have given to stop Sunday work. That is a pretty difficult one to answer, but we can at least safely say that we do more work on that day than the law allows, nor for that matter, do we on any other day. We do not know whether the reverend gentleman has been noticing the amount of noise and confusion that has been drifting northward from the G.T.R. yards this summer on Sundays or not, the chances are he is so used to them that he has not, but if he has,
and compares them with the comparative quiet, that has reigned since he called attention to them, we think he will give us credit for having done something towards abating the nuisance.

Now, our friend has taken us wrongly in saying that we accused the ministers of guilty silence, and also that the Lord's Day Alliance was a useless organization. He is in just about as far astray, when he says we never see the hands of churchmen, and spend the day "strolling."
It is these little points that, taken wrongly, impart that uncommodious debates and controversies, and accuse from the good they otherwise might do. We endeavour to go to church at least once a day, unless we have a headache, or the weather is unduly hot or cold, or the rain excessively wet. We are not able to get around to all the churches almost, but we have been in the three north ward churches, and that includes Mr. Welch's, very frequently. We do not see the hands of churchmen, and spend the day "strolling," Frankly, we do not see the hands of any Sunday work they have their employees to do. We do not say this in condemnation of the ministers, simply state it as a fact, in connection with this particular circumstance. The matter has no doubt been mentioned from the pulpit by all the ministers, but surely Mr.
Welch does not think that this thing will "down" by a kid-gloved reference once a year. This is a matter where the ministers are the leaders, and where in the language of the ring, they will have to take their coat off their backs, and use bare knuckles. And one day won't do it to be a continual rag-in-foot knock-out blows are the only effectual ones that will give points. These corporations are of the nature of bullies—go for them and they will believe. We certainly will try to make much, very much, of the responsibility on the ministers. They should be the first and last to act. Mr.
Welch can understand, of course, that we speak to more people than all the ministers put together. Our circulation manager informs us that we address fully 4000 people in town alone, every time we write so, and we are striving for more, so right, we ought to be commended, rather than have left-handed compliments flung at us. Because we ask what others are doing, it does not mean that we insinuate any thing, it is knowledge we are after.
We give second place to no one in our respect for the ministry, and gladly acknowledge the not-generous content, but that does not mean that they are always right, or are even doing right, and as for strolling around—if more of our own citizens, including the ministers, would take a stroll occasionally, especially on Sunday, and see with their eyes and hear with their ears, and then they would not several of the things that would not linger around the way they are doing.
There are twelve hours of daylight,
so there is plenty of time for a stroll, as well as attend church services. We must apologize to Mr. Welch for our meagre ebullient on the predominant feature of his denomination, at the same time we don't take any anything we said regarding the invisibly, and having all creeds educated, our own people will certainly not improve by the contact. The
U. S. claims to be the land of liberty, and it is in a kind of a way, although in Canada we would call it

the froth we see or hear of. The great body of the nation are sufficiently right at heart, or they would not prosper in the way they have done.

There was a queer sort of a case came before the courts in Manitoba the other day regarding the voters' list of the town of Neepawa. It appears that Neepawa has been a type town since its incorporation, and the fact that it has been doing this ever since. The trick for it can only be described as such, and a very shabby one at that, is a fair sample of what they are prepared to do anytime, anywhere. They built a large hotel and distributed it among the voters, 230 places, principally in Winnipeg, expecting that each would be put on as a voter and thus swamp the local voter at the next election. Supposing they had succeeded, it would have cost them at least $2500 for railroad fares and incidental expenses. They built the hotel for "boozing" that would be supplied, simply to carry a by-law carrying the right to sell liquor in a town of less than 2000 inhabitants. Now there are some respectable voters who are honest and reliable, and who yet believe in the liquor traffic, and who are permissible, and we would just ask them in all fairness, what they think of a business that will so "stoop to conquer." Take another case, Pilot Mound has voted local option, and immediately the leading minister is blackguarding the voters, and saying that they are doing it for the "boozing" that would be supplied, simply to carry a by-law carrying the right to sell liquor in a town of less than 2000 inhabitants. Now there are

Telegraphy Opens the Way

TO A SUCCESSFUL LIFE

Several thousand Telegraph Operators will be required by the various Railway companies within the next nine months.

ON AUGUST 1st, I will open a School in Lindsay, to be known as the

National School of Telegraphy

Based here is reasonable, and all ordinary students should graduate here within six months. We are not for terms. The greatest and most successful managers of today have, with rare exception, risen from the ranks of the operators.

Salaries of operators run from $50 to $80 per month, according to the importance of the position. Operators who are Agents, make from $60 to $100 per month, and are always eligible for promotion. Lady operators for commercial work are in great demand.

Qualifications necessary are few but absolutely essential, viz: a common school education, strict sobriety, honesty, industry and carefulness.

Sir William C. Van Horne, of C.P.R. fame, began his railway career as an operator, so did J. W. Leonard, C. W. Spencer, Geo. C. Jones, and scores of others, all now holding high positions.

REPORT OF POLICE COURT DEPARTMENT

For June, July, August and September—Statement of Receipts Commentaries by Chief Vincent—Grand Jurors Report on Look-up Exaggerated—Items of Interest.

At the recent meeting of the Police Commissioners, the following reports of the Police Court Department for the months of June, July, August and September were presented:

JUNE REPORT.

To the Police Commissioners of the Town of Lindsay:

Gentlemen,—Herewith I beg to submit my report for the month of June, for your consideration. The number of cases dealt with by the Police Court Department for the month of June were twenty-five, being ten more than for the month of May.

Amount of fines and penalties imposed ..... $138.00

Amount of fines and penalties collected ..... 57.70

Amount of carters' licenses collected ..... 5.00

Amount of cab licenses collected ..... 15.00

Amount of delivery licenses collected ..... 10.00

Amount of Town Property rent collected ..... 1.00

Amount of poll tax collected ..... 1.00

The suggestions made last month with reference to a police office and sundry repairs to and articles wanted in the look-up have not yet been attended to. I am afraid if the polls are not supplied for the various wards, that a nuisance will be caused by effluvia arising.

RALPH C. VINCENT,
Chief Constable.

Lindsay, June 30th, 1907.

JULY REPORT.

To the Police Commissioners of the Town of Lindsay:

Gentlemen,—Herewith I beg to submit my report for the month of July, for your consideration. The number of cases dealt with by the Police Court Department for the month of July were twenty-six, being one more than for the month of June.

Amount of fines and penalties imposed ..... $181.90

Amount of fines and penalties collected ..... 105.90

Amount of carters' licenses collected ..... 5.00

Amount of cab licenses collected ..... 10.00

Amount of delivery licenses collected ..... 10.00

Amount of Town Property rent collected ..... 1.00

Amount of poll tax collected ..... 1.00

County fees received by me and paid town treasurer ..... 7.75

The necessity of the town Council providing a police office has been shown during the present month. In connection with the counterfeiting case, we had occasion to take into our possession for search, certain trunks and bags, and as we had no other place to put them for security, we had to take the said trunks and bags to the county jail. This was very inconvenient to all parties, and could have been avoided if we had suitable accommodation.

The suggestions made with reference to the look-up have not been acted upon.

RALPH C. VINCENT,
Chief Constable.

Lindsay, July 31st, 1907.

AUGUST REPORT.

To the Police Commissioners of the Town of Lindsay:

Gentlemen,—Herewith I beg to submit my report for the month of August, for your consideration. The number of cases dealt with by the Police Court Department for the month of August were twenty-seven, being one more than for the month of July.

Amount of fines and penalties imposed ..... $36.00

Amount of fines and penalties collected ..... 15.00

Amount of carters' licenses collected ..... 5.00

Amount of cab licenses collected ..... 15.00

Amount of delivery licenses collected ..... 10.00

Amount of Town Property rent collected ..... 1.00

Amount of poll tax collected ..... 1.00

There have been a number of complaints made in regard to vicious dogs. These I have inquired into in every case. The town Council have complained of injury to the grass in the public park by people walking across it, and I am now taking such steps as to cause a cessation of the offence.

RALPH C. VINCENT,
Chief Constable.

Lindsay, August 31st, 1907.

SEPTEMBER REPORT.

To the Police Commissioners of the Town of Lindsay:

Gentlemen,—Herewith I beg to submit my report for the month of September, for your consideration. The number of cases dealt with by the Police Court Department for the month of September were twenty-eight, being one more than for the month of August.

Amount of fines and penalties imposed ..... $371.90

Amount of fines and penalties collected ..... $109.54

Amount of carters' licenses collected ..... $11.95

Amount of cab licenses collected ..... 5.00

Amount of delivery licenses collected ..... 45.00

Amount of Town Property rent collected ..... 10.00

Amount of poll tax collected ..... $371.90

At the late sessions the Grand Jury visited the look-up, and subsequently gave into the learned judge a report which was much exaggerated. True, the place lacks ventilation, but it is kept as clean as a pin, and situated as it is in the town, it is a nuisance to the Council see fit to have the few repairs done, and the gabled roof I mentioned some months ago, obtained. I believe we shall have everything shipshape for the winter.

I regret that, owing to the illness of the caretaker, the police court is being neglected, and dust and dirt are accumulating. This should be seen to without delay and I should be glad if the commissioners would embody this in their report to the Council.

Chief Constable.

John D. Rockefeller's Conception of Himself.

IS PROTECTING THE WIDOWS

Responsibility For His Wealth Weighs Heavily—Holds Property For Orphans and Poor—Dare Not Let Go His Interests Because Their Welfare Would Be Imperilled—For Their Sakes He Stays.

New York, Oct. 8.—John D. Rockefeller's private conception of himself, that he is only the steward of the Standard Oil wealth, responsible to God alone for his stewardship, was quoted Sunday by the Rev. Dr. Robert MacArthur, the pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, before his young people's class.

"I am the trustee of the property of others," he said, "through the Providence of God, committed to my care. I am the steward of vast interests belonging in great part to widows and orphans, and other who are actually or relatively poor."

ROSS COMING HOME

Young Canadian Still Asserts He Was Robbed.

TO PURCHASE RACE HORSES

Gives Erratic Answers to the Press—Will Return to Canada at Once—Hotel Bill Has Been Paid—Declares He Has Money to Burn—Says He Has Done With the Old Country—Will Go West.

London, Oct. 8.—(C. A. P.)—Dugald Ross, interviewed by the Canadian Associated Press, declared his finances were in an excellent condition, and that if no money came yesterday he would today have money to burn. He repeated his story of being done by two Americans whom he met at the Waldorf-Astoria, but cut the story short on the Canadian Associated Press telling him that the story was old. He spoke of purchasing a Daresbury car, but only a half share, and from the Daresbury car he jumped to the farm in Strathville, saying he had horses there worth $5,000 each.

He then stated his intention of bringing home money to his country, but in the next breath declared he had done with this country and would never come back, but would go to Western Canada and buy up a few thousand acres of land.

"I had some intention of selling some shares in a bank in this country, but I guess I'm done for here," he said. Mr. Ross, manager of the Metropolitan Bank Strathville, was a relation of his he replied, "None," and then added, "he might be a distant relation."

He declared his intention of returning to Canada immediately. Ross was astonished to learn his doings had been cabled to Canada. "Oh," he said, "I told my story to a Toronto newspaper friend this morning, and he cabled it out."

The manager of the Burlington Hotel, Dover, informed the representative of the Canadian Associated Press that Ross left the hotel Thursday night, leaving as his address St. Yvoch's Station Hotel, Glasgow. The Canadian Associated Press learns, however, that Ross is in London.

Few More Japs Coming.

Tokio, Oct. 8.—(C. A. P.)—With reference to telegrams reporting that a Canadian commission is coming to Japan to negotiate for restriction of Japanese immigration to Canada it was related here on trustworthy authority that the Japanese Government will not consent to any restriction, inasmuch as immigration may be restricted when the Government considers it necessary without any formal agreement, which is regarded here as a contravention of the Anglo-Japanese commercial treaty. Moreover, the Japanese consul-general at Honolulu reports that the bulk of Japanese immigrants, who desired to immigrate to Canada, has already left Hawaii and that many more are expected to invade Canada.

To Attract France.

Toronto, Oct. 8.—A deputation composed of Messrs. L. J. Labrosse, O. Aubin, A. A. Mahaffy, D. J. McDougall, M. P. P. A. C. Mardonell, and J. E. E. Leonard, M. P. A. Rev. Father Forget, and E. B. Vallieres, of Ottawa, waited on Premier Whitney and Hon. Frank Cochrane yesterday morning, and urged the Ontario Government to invite French, German and Belgian newspaper men to visit Ontario.

The Ministers said that the province had derived benefit from the visits from English journalists, but pointed out that it was too late to do anything this year. It would be well to hold the question open till next spring. If there were results then, not only Northern Ontario, but agricultural and industrial Ontario should be inspected by the visitors.

MET DEATH IN FIRE

Two Are Dead and Several Injured in Blaze at Toronto.

JUMPED FROM WINDOWS

Dramatic Scenes in Jewish Quarter—Woman and Child Are Victims—Girls Fell Through Roof of Building—Firemen Carry Out Four From Upstairs Corridor—Origin of Fire Is a Mystery.

Toronto, Oct. 7.—One woman and one child are dead, and two men may die owing to burns, suffocation and shock sustained at a fire which broke out in Aaron Ornstein's tailor shop at 156 York street shortly after 3 o'clock Sunday morning. The dead are his wife and 5-year-old girl, the latter dying soon after being removed to the hospital, and the woman about 1 o'clock this morning.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but it originated in the rear of the store, above where the victims were sleeping. The building is a three-story brick, in the heart of the Jewish business quarter.

Ornstein, who had been at work cleaning up his shop for the week-end, was awakened by fumes of smoke in his room at the rear of the first floor of the building. He endeavored to arouse the remaining 11 inmates. Just what did happen during the next few minutes it is hard to say. One story is that he, with his 3-year-old boy, clambered upstairs, and that he aroused two young women in the third floor back room, and asked them to save the child. They tried to get the mattress and pillows from the bed through the window, but could not, and then, frightened, they leaped 20 feet or more to the street, and a second woman tried to throw down the child to the girls below to save, and then jumped, or rather he got down again to his own room and then out of the window, is not certain, but the four were found in the yard in the rear of the building, and in a state of attire, while Ornstein was partly dressed. He was frantic and was screaming with terror. The girls had also fallen from the shed to the ground, some ten feet.

Work of Rescue.

Fireman Alf Everest of hose 12 mounted to the second floor and entered the room. He located Perskin, who had evidently descended from above in an effort to get out. Lieut. Davidson of Bay street truck went to the third floor, and found Mrs. Perskin, carrying her downstairs and to a neighboring house.

George Henderson of hose 1 distinguished himself. Crawling on his hands and knees he got into the second floor hall bedroom. He felt on the floor and over the bed, and then with the glare of the flames to help, he found the baby. He hurried into the street with the child and across the street, where he used artificial respiration until life was assured.

Meanwhile the deputy, with Firemen Gates, Williams, McGregor, Best, Harris, Smith, Oliver, McGregor, Caskey and others struggled up through the suffocating fumes to the third floor. There Mrs. Ornstein and Perskin were found apparently lifeless. Perskin being in his room with his feet through the doorway. They were promptly and tenderly carried down into the open air.

It is remarkable that the occupants of the building did not fare even worse than they did. The whole layout seemed favorable to disaster. The store and workshop occupied the ground floor, from which a dark, narrow stairway turned up into the floor above. The hall on the second floor is narrow and dark. Even yesterday afternoon the corridor was as black as night, and so was the one above.

GRAVEL TRAIN DERAILED.

One Man Killed and Another Injured Near Englehart.

Cobalt, Oct. 7.—In a railway accident on a branch of the T. & N. O. near Englehart, in which six flat cars were derailed, an Italian, whose name is not known, was killed Saturday night. Another man was also slightly injured.

The train, which was made up of 20 gravel cars, was running backwards into the gravel pit, five miles from Englehart, and is said to have been traveling at the rate of 30 miles an hour.

Ontario Bank Claim.

Toronto, Oct. 7.—The statement of claim has been filed in the suit of the Ontario Bank against its former president, G. R. R. Cockburn.

It charges that Mr. Cockburn transferred 278 shares of Ontario Bank stock to the officers' guarantee fund, and had credited to himself for it $37,599.

One paragraph of the claim is: "The said sum of $37,599 was by the defendant applied to his own use by withdrawing the same from the Richmond street branch of the plaintiff bank. The said transactions were not authorized by the board of directors."

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 7.—The Supreme Court yesterday ordered the International Harvester Co. and the Standard Oil Co. to answer questions filed by the Attorney-General in the suit pending. The companies had refused to answer.

Spanish Parliament.

Madrid, Oct. 7.—The autumn session of the Spanish Parliament will begin Oct. 10. Among the matters that will claim the attention of the Cortes, is the present situation in Morocco.

RAIN OF HOT METAL

Men Meet Fearful Death at Standard Steel Works.

FOUR KILLED—TWENTY HURT

Metal Pot Full of Molten Iron Uproot—Burning Liquid Poured on Workmen—Explosion Followed Burying Many Under Wreckage—Injuries Were Fearful—Men Were Literally Cooked—Foreigners.

Batter, Pa., Oct. 7.—An explosion in No. 1 cupola of the Standard Steel Co. here late Saturday night caused the death of four men, fatally injured twenty and seriously injured ten others. Nearly all the men were foreigners. The large wheel plant, 150 by 100 feet, was demolished, causing a loss estimated at $100,000.

The condition of the thirty men injured is pitiable. The features of a majority are mutilated beyond recognition. The hot metal was showered over them, causing horrible injuries, and at midnight the physicians attending them said that at least twenty would die.

The explosion was caused by the upsetting of a metal pot in the cupola, which contained 1,000 pounds of molten metal ready for casting. A spin of the pot broke, allowing the liquid iron to spill over the wet sand. An explosion followed so quickly that none of the workmen in the building had a chance to escape. Streams of the burning metal poured out on the workmen, some of whom were engulfed and literally cooked. Twenty men near the cupola had very shreds of clothing blown off by the force of the explosion. Many were buried under the wreckage, and were not rescued for an hour after the catastrophe.

150 FALL WITH FLOOR

Tragic Ending to Republican Rally—Lamp Fires Debilis.

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 7.—During a Republican rally in the North End Athletic Club rooms Saturday night the floor collapsed, precipitating 150 men into the cellar of the building. By the explosion of a lamp the building was set on fire and the crowd of men struggled in the flames and debris almost helplessly.

The fire was extinguished in about an hour, and when the men were all taken out of the cellar it was found that one, Harry Dean, a well-known Republican worker, was perhaps fatally injured. He was hurried to the hospital.

Among those injured were John O. well, Republican candidate for mayor, who had just spoken at the building collapsed, and Senator Irving H. Chase, one of the most prominent men in the city.

Girl Murdered, Boy Arrested.

Canden, N. J., Oct. 7.—Hidden under a heap of rubbish in a swamp on the outskirts of this city, the body of Mary Marx, aged 9 years, who had been missing since Thursday, was found yesterday by searchers. The body was badly mutilated. The remains were found a block from where the child lived with her mother and a man who posed as her father. The police arrested a 16-year-old boy named Joseph Ward, on suspicion. The girl had expressed a fear of the boy.

DOESN'T WORK WELL.

But Friction Over Modus Vivendi May Be Avoided.

Washington, Oct. 7.—The United States State Department has received word from Prof. Alexander, who is in Newfoundland waters looking after the interests of American fishermen, that the modus vivendi recently concluded is not working well.

Few of the American fishing vessels have arrived on the fishing grounds. Negotiations are on between the American fishing captains and the Newfoundland authorities directly, which, it is hoped, may remove any further friction, the basis of which is the purchase outright by the Americans of the fish caught by the Newfoundlanders.

Such an arrangement would, it is believed, largely meet the objection of Sir Robert Bond to the shipment of Newfoundland fishermen on American vessels.

SIXTY KILLED, MANY INJURED.

Terrible Explosion in Powder Factory at Osaka.

Tokio, Oct. 7.—A terrible explosion occurred Saturday morning at the Takatsuka factory, Osaka, while a number of girls were at work sorting shells and cartridge which had been condemned. Sixty-three of the girls were killed and over sixty others injured. As this is sent the factory is on fire, and a number of boats containing explosives were also burned.

To Discourage Marriage.

London, Oct. 8.—The British Board of Education is about to issue a regulation which will practically amount to official discouragement of the marriage of women teachers. The regulation will insist that every member of a teaching profession who enters a training college which receives state grants shall sign an undertaking not to withdraw from teaching until after a term of years, in the case of men five years, and in that of women six years. This undertaking will be in the nature of a legal bond, and for every twelve months which the teacher does not serve a penalty will be enforced. The penalty is not yet finally settled, but will probably be £20. It is felt that under the existing arrangement funds are often wasted upon training women teachers, many of whom leave their positions soon after becoming fully qualified in order to marry.

Loophole in Sunday Law.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—An interesting point has arisen in connection with the prosecutions of railways for failure to observe the Lord's Day Act. It appears that under the Railway Act, prosecutions cannot be instituted without the consent of the Board of Railway Commission. Prosecutions have been inaugurated in a number of cases without the board's consent being secured.

Fire Threatens Farms.

Froeseke, Sask., Oct. 7.—For two days a prairie fire has raged south of this town, the sky for twenty miles being illuminated by a lurid glare.

Reports are coming in of strenuous efforts to keep back the fire from homesteads, in some places the flames having reached as far

(Kingston Whig.)

Some queer experiences are being had in the schools of western cities, and they are noted here, because of the moral they convey. In Lindsay, the high school principal, a man of long service, was released because the pieces were not succeeding as the board desired, and the trustees laid the blame to the head teacher. At the board meeting he asked for a statement of his defects, as they had not been specified; indeed he had never heard from any trustee upon the subject. The reply was that it was not necessary to elaborate the complaints.

The Whig defends from the Lindsay board upon this point. Every board has the guidance of expert educationists, and its manifest duty is to get experts as to the work of the teachers. When anyone has a fault he should be given an intimation of it and a chance to correct it. This is the course which has been authorized by the Kingston school management committee, and it is hoped the consideration of the trustees in this respect will be appreciated by the teachers.

At Hamilton there is a commotion because the inspector has been ordered to prepare a detailed report upon the service of the public school staff. The papers have taken up the subject, and the wonder grows as to what is up. And there to be the results on the ground of inefficiency? Is there to be grading of teachers and a grading of salaries? Time will tell.

Meanwhile the assumption of the Herald can be safely commended. Efficiency is not "largely a product of experience." Experience counts for something, but progressiveness in study, in methods, in management, counts for more. The teacher who wants to succeed, and become indispensable must realize that education is constantly developing, and that one must be busy, if he would keep up with its latest phases.

AN EMINENT NEWSPAPERMAN.

The Post has been very much pained during the past few days in reading the many flattering references made by the press throughout the province to our former citizen, Mr. Samuel Kidd, editor of the Montreal Gazette. He was given a banquet on Saturday evening by his friends in Montreal, who laid many kind things about him. Such encomiums are usually contributed after one passes off this mortal coil, and we must congratulate him, hearing of what few men are privileged to hear from The Globe on the following paragraph, which is only a sample of what is being said about Mr. Kidd:

"The honor was well bestowed. Sam is the sanest and strongest writer on the Conservative press, and has saved his party from many foolish moves in the past, and may be relied upon to do so in future. He does his own thinking, and has always a fine assortment of cogent arguments to buttress his thought. He is a few men worthy of the best steel."

That he not only spent his "kiddish" days in Lindsay, but learned the art of conservatism in this town in the employ of Mr. Joseph Cooper, at that time proprietor of the Victoria War-dor, in the early seventies, is certainly a pleasing thought.

Mr. Cooper must have laid the foundation deep when one considers that Mr. Kidd's father had political leanings that were decidedly "gritty." It speaks volumes for a teacher whose pupil has developed into one of the ablest writers on the Conservative press of Canada to-day. The party certainly owes a great debt of gratitude to friend Cooper, as they were never more in need of a modern "Moses" than at present.

To Mr. H. J. Lytle, manager of the Bank of Montreal, is in a measure due some of the credit of Mr. Kidd's success, as Mr. Lytle was foreman of the Warder when Mr. Kidd was the officiating "devil" in the office.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Canon Welsh, of Toronto, evidently does not think tamperance has gained since Whitney attained power.

Of 237 samples of maple sugar examined this year by the Department of Inland Revenue, only 185 were genuine. Five were found to be a mixture, 37 were adulterated, and 10 were doubtful. The analysts noted that, with the methods in use, makers might dilute the maple product with pure cane sugar to some slight extent without more than awakening Josias as to the purity of the article, as the analyst must give them the benefit of the doubt. Glucose, however, is more easily detected. — Hamilton Times.

Toronto News: President Falconer, of Toronto University, said in his inaugural address to the students that athletics should be cultivated, but that they should not be allowed to become an absorbing interest. "Sports," he said, "are meant for recreation and for the building up of the body in order that the mind may be strong and ready for the work of manhood." This is an ideal which cannot be attacked. Undoubtedly, the president will see to it that the American tendency towards specialization and professionalism in college sport will not obtain in the university, for whose well-being he is responsible.

PRESENTATION TO THE BAND

An interesting ceremony took place last Tuesday at the bandroom in the form of a presentation to the Sylvester bandmen of a large photograph of the band in their new uniforms soon after the successful Colingwood contest. It was presented by Mr. Lee on behalf of Miss Morton's studio of Kent-st. There was a good gathering of band boys and many friends in the room. It was after the usual practice that the presentation took place.

About 9.30 Mr. Lee, in a nice speech, said it was with the greatest pleasure that he presented the band with the picture on behalf of Miss Morton, and which he thought both a suitable and deserving gift. The photograph has recently been on exhibition at Lindsay and other fairs, and admired by all. It was said the band had done exceedingly well during the season under the conduct of Mr. Roonick and that in many years to come they would always have a reminder in the photograph of the boys that once did their best in the musical line for Lindsay. — (Cheers).

Speeches were then made by several members all tending in the same strain of great thanks to Miss Morton's studio for their kindness, and a hearty vote of thanks was unanimously passed by all present. After a little conversation, the evening closed, and will long be remembered.

The photo is to be hung up in the band room and will be a suitable acquisition to the already comfortable furnished quarters.

POKER PLAYERS FINED

Seven Prominent Peterboro Citizens "Taxed" in all $420.

Peterboro Examiner: It is a more or less open secret that card-playing for money has been prevalent in the city for some time. On Saturday night or Sunday morning License Inspector Stewart and a member of the police force made a raid on one of the houses, and found a party of seven men surrounding a table, upon which were cards and money. The inspector seized over a hundred dollars of the money, one of the party grabbing his own and another's "pile" and escaped. The names of the other parties were taken and arrangements made for their appearance at the police court Monday afternoon. The seven was that the seven persons were convicted and a fine of $60 each and costs imposed, meaning a net gain to the city coffers of $420. The proprietor of the hotel was charged with selling liquor after hours. An additional charge of allowing gambling on his premises was made, and judgment was reserved, the question being as to his knowledge of the room in his hotel being used for the purpose of breaking the law in regard to gambling on the premises of a licensed hotel.

TWO BOYS ARRESTED

Charged With Operating Fraudulent Scheme.

New York, Oct. 5 — Ogden W. Coffin, eighteen years old, a school-boy, and Lucius Mesmin, aged twenty, clerk in his father's wool importing firm of George Mesmin & Co., were arrested last night, charged with participating in a get-rich-quick scheme. The boys had an office at 605 Sixth-avenue. The detectives found they had been conducting operations under the assumed name of "Leonard B. Drummond, attorney."

The purport of those letters was that relatives living in this city owning shares of Canadian Pacific stock, died bequeathing shares to the Canadian selected. The letters stated that if $5 for attorney's fees were sent to Drummond the stock would be forwarded. Coffin has confessed. He claims that his mother is a widow in straitened circumstances, and he needed the money to pay his way through college. He claims that Mesmin originated the scheme and even went to the Canadian border and mailed the letters there beyond the reach of the United States mail authorities.

A Prize Winner.

Johnny came home the other night in high glee, wearing the arithmetic medal. "What is that for?" asked his mother. "That's the prize for doing examples!" said Johnny. "I did this one: If our new baby weighs eleven and a half pounds, and gains an ounce each day"—cause you told Mrs. Smith she did yesterday—"how much will she weigh when she's twenty years old?" And the answer was, four hundred and sixty-six pounds. And the teacher said I earned the prize!"

Real Trouble.

Mrs. Tike, red-nosed and in rags, stood in front of the pawnshop that was burning down. The flames threw weird flames on her, and she cried and wrung her hands pitifully. "What is the matter with you?" a fireman said. "You don't own the shop, do you?" "No," she wailed. "But my old man's Sunday suit is up that spout, and he don't know it!"—Holt Holiday.

Railway Notes.

In a circular issued to all trainmen the Grand Trunk Railway insists that all train crews shall make their eight hours' rest after six o'clock on the road. No man can be posted again until he has had a rest, and the penalty for neglecting these instructions is dismissal. The circular admits of no misinterpretation. It being stated in one paragraph that rather than allow trainmen to leave a station without sufficient rest the train should be taken off.

JUST IN TIME.

They sat upon her father's steps. His arm was round her form; And he was doing all he could To keep the maiden warm. Her father spied them from above, And softly he crept down, Bearing a boot-jack in his hand, And on his brow a frown. In nearer yet and nearer crept

He heard the lovers sigh.

And then he raised his arm aloft, With murder in his eye. Just then the manly lover said: "How happy we shall be! For rancor died last night, and all His great wealth comes to me." One moment more the old man stands, And at the young man glances; Then, all unseen, unheard, unfeared, Creeps back again upstairs.

KILLED MANY CATTLE.

Pitch-in on C.P.R. Between Agincourt and Locust Hill.

Between Agincourt and Locust Hill on the main line of the C. P. R. east, a pitch-in occurred between two freight trains about eight o'clock on Monday night. A car of cattle on one of the trains was partially demolished and many of the animals were killed.

Both trains were travelling eastward. One was the regular, and the other an extra. The engine of the rear train was considerably damaged. About six hours were required to clear the track.

It appears that the accident was not an ordinary pitch-in. The stock train was proceeding eastward ahead of the freight, as sometimes happens in freight traffic, the stock train pulled apart.

Four cars became free of the main train. In the delay caused by rectifying the break the second train overtook the detached cars and the accident followed. No one was injured.

A Witty Magistrate.

There is a police court magistrate of St. Louis who frequently evinces a pretty wit in dealing with fresh or feckless offenders. To one vagrant brought before him not long ago, his Honor put the question, "What occupation?" "Nothin' much, at present," flippantly responded the prisoner, "jest circulatein 'round, judge." "Retired from circulation for thirty days," dryly observed his Honor to the clerk of the court. — Harper's Weekly.

in your spare time at home, or Take a Personal Course at School.

To enable all to learn we teach on cash or instalment plan. We also teach a personal class at school once a month. Class commencing last Tuesday of each month. These lessons teach how to cut, fit and put together any garment from the plainest shirt waist suit, to the most elaborate dress. The whole family can learn from one course. We have taught over seven thousand dress-making, and guarantee to give five hundred dollars to any one that cannot learn between the age of 14 and 40. You cannot learn dress-making as thorough as this course teaches if you work in shops for years. Beware of imitations as we employ no one outside the school. This is the only experienced Dress Cutting School in Canada and is sold by none in any other country. Write at once for particulars, as we have cut our rate one-third for a short time. Address—

YEARLY LOSS OF LIFE.

Year after year the lakes and rivers of Canada exact a heavy tribute of lives, comments the Toronto World many full of promise, and leaving this young nation all the poorer. A large proportion of those who thus early pass beyond the veil might have saved themselves and their companions in misfortune had they possessed the useful art of swimming. Inspector Hughes recently called attention to certain matters wherein the schools of Britain excelled those of Canada, especially in regard to physical exercises and training. In this connection recent reports published by the education committee of the London County Council and the London Schools Swimming Association are of special interest here. Splendid results have followed the efforts made to teach the London school children how to swim, and they well deserve serious attention from the educational authorities of Canada.

CONCERNING KIPLING.

From the Canadian Courier.
So many-sided is the Kipling genius, that it is unsafe to generalize from "The Seven Seas" or the "Bangkok Room Ballads," unless one dips into "Kim," "The Day's Work," "Many Inventions" and about fifteen other volumes. After the manner of his own "Trump Royal," he likes it all. His "Herat" is one of endeavor where we "shall splash at a tenacious canvas with brushes of comical hair." If this is an age of 70 and getting old, then Kipling is its prophet, who frequently deserves the adjective, "Brentwood," used by Mr. Augustine Birrell to characterize the Kipling style. He is a thinker, tailor, seaman and sailor; but, just as one reaches the conclusion that his hero is the practical man, there comes to the cars the story of a dreamer, and one wanders with Kim's teacher in search of the magic river.

PENNY WISE.

Port Perry Star: Twice the Government have stocked Lake Seaboard since the time when the ice and snow killed the fish. We suppose this would cost considerable money, together with the expense of preventing depredation through illegal fishing. Yet, either because of carelessness, or in order to save money, the lake at Lindsay have been allowed to come in a bad state of repair. Such lack of action is wasting the water of Lake Seaboard and there is a serious risk of a similar disaster next winter to that of 1905, if the water in the lake remains as low as it is now. There are reports that the lake is to be repaired in the near future. This cannot be done too soon.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The section of the G.T.P. between Portage in Prairie and Manitoba, 130 miles, is to be opened next week. That looks hopeful for grain-movings.

A railway brake has been invented which never fails. It cannot be interfered with in any way, and its operation is always effective. It prevents accidents and saves life it will be worth millions.

The Montreal Gazette says that Sir John Macdonald worked for less salary than Hon. Mr. Borden. And Sir Wilfrid Laurier, while head of the opposition, gave his services to the country freely, and Mr. Borden gets $7,500 a year.

As a commentary on the sincerity of Mr. Borden's purity campaign Mr. Pugsley declares that the conservative campaign fund in last election amounted to $500,000, and he charges Mr. Borden to deny the statement. Half a million dollars to promote purity?

The total foreign trade of China is about $100,000,000 less than Canada's. Canada's trade with China and Japan last year was $3,884,769. China's purchases from Great Britain and her colonies aggregated about $180,000,000. As a trade field China and Japan are just opening to us.

At Brookville, the conservative candidate for the vacant seat in the legislature denounced the "spotters" and the "spotters" which the provincial secretary has sent out in behalf of the license amendment. He characterized the work as un-British, unfair and unwarranted.

Brantford Expositor: There ought to be room in New Brunswick for hundreds of thousands of sturdy old country men and women, especially those who have been brought up in the vicinity of the ocean. The rest of Canada will wish all success to Premier Robinson's immigration policy.

Hamilton Herald: It is easy for Mr. Borden to blame the Dominion government for the influx of Japanese immigration, but he will find it more difficult to explain how it was that when the Japanese treaty was before parliament for ratification he never made the slightest objection to the clause granting the Japanese free entry into Canada.

The fight is on at Brookville, Mr. W. A. Lewis, Liberal, and Mr. A. M. Donovan, Conservative, being nominated yesterday. Mr. Donovan's plea was "I'm in the Government's favor," while Mr. Lewis scored the license, educational, prison labor, and police policies of the Whitney government. The temperature is rising down there.

The Globe calls reform in the law as to right estate transfers which involves a costly searching of titles every time a property changes hands in order to guard against clouds on the title. The appeal is in order. There should be a change both in law and practice. There is no reason why the Toronto system should not be more leniently adopted and the transfer of a piece of property made almost as simple and easy as the sale of a load of wheat on a hop.

Montreal Star: And now the price of Scotch whiskey is going down. To our unpracticed eye this looks like a case of Scotch descent.

Bellefonte Ontario: Mr. Borden's policy with reference to the Asiatic immigration amounts to this: Observe the treaty and "soak" the government, for observing it.

Kingston Whig: Japan is not interested in the exodus of her people. She wants them to stay at home or in Korea. It will not be hard to secure a revival of the limitation.

Kingston Whig: Taft in Japan, and among the notables of Tokyo, seems to have been performing the part of a spell binder. With a wave of his hand he has caused the war cloud to disappear.

Syracuse Standard: A reverend doctor exclaims that there is no harm in dancing if you dance alone. Didn't King David dance that way, and didn't he get publicly laughed at by his wife he was fond of?

Syracuse Standard: Sir Thomas Lipton continues to be a jolly good fellow, but he must race exactly the way the New York Yacht Club wants him to or else the New York Yacht Club will take its tin kitchen and go home.

Swarthmore College was lost $34,000,000 by an aged lady on condition that it disbursed athletics from its fields and halls. Queen's is ever enough for endowment, but it would not willingly cut its sports out for a large money consideration. Ditto.

All Japan wants is pay, for the actual damage committed in Vancouver. This will be a great relief to those who were apprehending that our ambassador would have to crawl into the Mikado's presence on his stomach and eat the mat at the foot of the throne—Star.

Toronto Star: One hundred and fourteen thousand claims aggregating four million dollars have now been filed with the liquidators of the York County Loan Company. The amount shows what happens when little grains of water, little drops of sand, get together in any quantity.

The Brockville Recorder devotes a lengthy article to ladies' hats. The newest style, it declares, resembles an inverted coat, a scullie, ornamented with cinders. Yet they allowed the editor to live—any even sent him to parliament unapproached. The ladies of the Island City must be pretty good natured or else they don't read the Recorder.

Toronto Globe: Premier Whitney, explaining the changes made by which the provincial university is given support out of the succession due, assured his audience in convocation hall, lately, that "there has never been one murmur of disapproval from the men who provided the money." Of course not. The men are all dead.

The Toronto World approves of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's preference policy and regards his speech to the manufacturers on that subject as "unfathomable." On the question of contributions to the British army and navy it also says, "the good common sense of Canada will endorse the declarations of the prime minister." Moreover, it declares that the majority of the people of Canada with him in the "all-red" line matter, and "the majority is so vast, that the project cannot become a party question." Now, will those Tory organs that have been ridiculing the "all-red" line project sit up and be good?

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous membrane.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness cured by Catarrh that cannot be cured by local Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHURCH & CO., Toledo, O. Sold at all Druggists, 7c.

How to Earn a Living in China.

Semeter Mongtan once throw down a magazine with a sneer. "Another nature fable!" he exclaimed. "Why, these things are as absurd as 'Geyser' and 'The Elephant'." And then he laughed and said that it reminded him of an old story that he had heard of an absent-minded missionary. "In China," said the missionary, "human life is regarded as of but slight value. Indeed, if a wealthy Chinese is condemned to death, he must first hire another to die for him; and I believe many poor fellows get their living by thus acting as substitutes."—Argonaut.

October Canadian Magazine.

The part that Lord and Lady Dufferin took in Canadian affairs during the time of His Excellency was Governor-General here should be familiar to all Canadians, and therefore an article entitled "The Dufferin Family," by Margaret Eadie Henderson, in the October Canadian Magazine, is of unusual interest. Miss Henderson tells about incidents in the life of this distinguished Irish family, quite apart from what might be regarded as their purely public life. The October number contains other important contributions. P. of Adam Shortt has an article entitled "A Personality in Journalism," being an appreciation of Mr. J. A. Macdonald, Editor of the Toronto Globe. The following contributions are also included in the number: "Canadian Art and Its Critics," by J. A. Macdonald; "The Deer of British Columbia," by Allan Brooks; "Illustrated," "Canadians in Telephone Development," by Randolph Carlyle; "Illustrated," "The Irony of British Rule in India," by Saint N. Sarg; "Be sure to see them, and not forget day and date."

MERRY WEDDING BELLS.

Hunter—Beatty

At the home of the Rev. Mr. Webb, 443 Rupert-st., Peterboro, on Sept. 25th, at 12 o'clock, a very pretty wedding took place, when Miss Cora May Hunter, of Regina, Sask., third daughter of John D. Hunter, of Verulam, was united in marriage to Mr. Roland Beatty, also of Verulam, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Webb, pastor of Murray St. Baptist church.

The bride was attired in white or gardenia, trimmed with valencienne lace and insertion and wore orange blossoms. Miss Zetta Rose, cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and was prettily dressed in pale green silk costume and wore a lily of the valley. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Garfield Kennedy.

After the ceremony was performed the happy young couple left on the 2 o'clock train for Belleville. Kingston and other points east, the bride travelling in a becoming suit of blue shot silk, trimmed with green and red and red to match.

The groom's presents were to the bride a beautiful gold locket and chain, to the bridesmaid a handsome gold ring, set with rubies and pearls, and to the groomsmen a gold pin set with pearls. On their return they will reside in Verulam, where their many friends wish them a long and happy married life.

Not Always Famous.

Montreal Star: Rudyard Kipling was not always famous. Once upon a time "Kip" was an ordinary newspaperman, and this is apropos of the tale.

Your friend, Rudyard Kipling, does not seem to have been very communicative to you boys," comments a man well known on the board of trade.

"Oh, yes, Kipling's all right," responded the newspaperman.

"Funny thing," and the speaker smiled. "You know Kipling and I are old friends. The other day, soon after his arrival, he said to me, 'Bless me if I know what the newspaper chaps want to hear about me at all. You know I often had to get interviews, and let me tell you, I never missed one in my life. It's quite true, too, that I did not always see the man, but then no good newspaper man should worry about that.' How's that for 'Kip'?"

"I shall finish what I have begun," he answered with calm determination. "It will cost me my life, perhaps, but my tone was savagely reckless, 'revenge is better than love.'"

The woman put her hand on his arm with affectionate entreaty. "Why not," she asked, "why not give it all up? It is becoming too dangerous."

"Dangerous? Of course. But it is too late to draw back, and I will keep my oath now—now," he repeated, lingering on the word, "if I perish to-morrow." He put his hand quietly on her shoulder and looked into her eyes.

"You, too, some day will come to believe that revenge is better than love."

"At least, we have no choice," she answered with a cruel little laugh.

"Don't don't," the Chevalier whispered, in a sudden tenderness. "What does it matter for me? But you—you—I can't bear it for you."

"It is fate," she said very quietly, "your fate and mine."

With his arm about her she stood in silence for some minutes in the doorway looking at her, had twice stepped forward to speak, had twice restrained himself, and finally had left her to her tears and her silence.

"Are you quite sure he loves her?" the Chevalier asked.

"I shall know for certain before many days," she answered, "although a woman feels sure now."

They parted, as they had met, without greeting, but she had the Chevalier followed her he would have seen that the woman went in the direction of "The Cock with the Spurs of Gold." It was probably because he already knew this that he returned to the palace.

All this time Denise had sat crushed and sad, alone in the ante-chamber. Nor did she know that Andre had stood for some minutes in the doorway looking at her, had twice stepped forward to speak, had twice restrained himself, and finally had left her to her tears and her silence.

But the one person whom he did not desire to meet found him out by accident at that moment.

"Comte," the Comtesse des Forges called softly, "will you do me a favor?"

Andre smiled with skilful hypocrisy. The Comtesse was looking her best, and her heavy-lidded eyes were bright with admiration and an exquisite suggestion of self-surrender. "A favor," she repeated, "which is also a secret. You will promise not to betray me."

Andre took her hand to his lips for answer. The jewel on the lady's breast gently rose and fell, echoing tenderly the coy trembling of her fingers. It was not the first time these two had played with passion, heedless of the future, but Andre swiftly recognized that this evening it would not be play, pastime, or pleasure.

"We have a petition to the King," the Comtesse said in the softest tones, "a petition from the Court praying His Majesty to dismiss that woman, and we want you to present it. His Majesty will listen to you more than to any other."

Andre still held her hand; the devotion in his face was intended to conceal his thoughts. For the crisis that he feared had come. This petition to the King from the Court was also an ultimatum to himself from his friends.

"It will be useless," he said gently, "the petition."

"Two—no. You can succeed with the King—you! Andre," she pleaded with a thrill of genuine passion, "do it to please me. You know I can be grateful."

"I cannot," he replied, controlling himself, "not even to please you, Gabrielle."

"You will not desert your friends and me—me?" she asked, a menace creeping into her languorous voice.

"Andre, it is impossible, surely impossible."

"I cannot present the petition," he answered.

Jelousy, fear, anger, swept the passion out of her eyes. "You are afraid!" she demanded, with biting scorn.

"Yes, I am afraid," he answered, and if the Comtesse had not lost her self-control she must have detected the delicate irony in his grave bow.

"Ah!" she stepped back. "Ah! Denise had asked you, you would have consented."

"No," he corrected with a freezing pride. "I would not permit the Marquise de Beau Sejour even to make the request."

speaking now with nervous rapidity. "If God forbid, the King's secret intrigues are betrayed by treachery, to save his honor and himself, I will, must, and I must. The game is dangerous, but I must. No, 101! the King's secrets are his, and I must never, never succumb in securing any of the King's secrets as has happened in the past."

"Surely, Madame, you and I can prevent that."

"Can we? Can we? Vicomte, I am not a coward nor a fool, but I feel in the poisonous air of this Court, surrounded by deadly enemies, my fate at the mercy of the King's caprice, that I am fighting not with flesh and blood, but with a foe mysterious, superhuman, and invincible. And I am betrayed by 'No. 101' King's secret."

"You are confident," Andre answered, "that not only can I battle that traitor but that I can discover him?"

Madame de Pompadour studied his calm, handsome face. The room seemed suddenly to warm in the glow of a golden dawn. "My friend," she cried, holding out both her hands impulsively, "I believe you. Did not Fontenoy teach me you are a man?"

"And it taught me—" he began softly.

"Hush!" she rippled over an adorable coquetry. "You are not the King yet, not yet, though—" it was the vivandier of Fontenoy whose saucy eyes and curtsy finished the sentence.

"When you are victorious, Madame," Andre said, "I shall ask for one favor."

"But! only one! Dare I grant it beforehand?"

She was now the refined Marquise of a remorselessly calm Versailles. "You take your revenge on the Court, Madame, as you please, but you must spare," she put down her fan and waited anxiously, "the Marquise de Beau Sejour."

There was silence for a minute. "A woman, a haughty, petted beauty," she murmured, "an my bitter foe. Are you aware that Madame de Denise is the soul of the Court, Madame? She would destroy me, the close friend of the Chevalier de St. Amant, and no friend to you."

"Yes, I know it all."

Madame de Pompadour came close to him. "She is not worthy of you," she said quietly, "she does not love you."

"Madame, I love her."

"And if I refuse to forego my just vengeance on her?" she awaited his answer with anxiety wreathed in tempting smiles.

"I will share her fate if she will permit it," he answered simply.

"Chivalrous fool!" she retorted, and she was not wholly jesting. "No woman is worth the sacrifice of such a man as you."

"Pardon, Madame. Every man who loves a woman perhaps is a fool, but the folly is a folly inspired by God and it leads to heaven."

The answer surprised her and for the moment she faltered between tears and laughter. "I will not ask again," Andre said in a low voice, "for I trust you, Madame. Adieu!"

She hardly heeded his salute, and Andre was already in the dark on the secret stairs when he felt a sharp touch on his shoulder. "Be loyal to me, too!" she whispered pleadingly into his ear. "Give me your hand, and she laid it on her breast. In the dark hush Andre could feel the fierce beating of that insurgent, ambitious heart."

"Swear," she whispered. "Swear with your hand there that you will be loyal also to me, to Antoinette de Pompadour."

"I swear." Two words, but two words between a man and a woman can sweep a soul into hell or lift it to heaven.

"The heart of the Pompadour," she murmured, "is a man's heart. Can she read it? Can she read it herself? God knows. Take care, take care of your self, my friend," she added with a sudden wistful pathos. "You alone I can trust. Adieu!"

"The heart of the Pompadour," Andre thought, "is a man's heart."

Pompadour, Andre went as usual straight to Yvonne, whom he found in the stalls feeding the spotted cow. "The Englishman," she informed him, "has been here, Monsieur. He spoke with a gentleman from the Court. I only know that to-morrow night they will meet at a tavern in Paris; he called it 'The Gallows and the Three Crows.'"

Andre took the lantern from her and let the light fall on her stained face. "And this tavern, where is it?" he demanded.

Yvonne met his gaze with the calmness of innocent ignorance. "Monsieur, I do not know. I have never been in Paris."

"You will swear you heard it as you say?"

"Surely. They said the name twice."

"And the gentleman from the Court?"

"His cloak was over his face, but I think—I am certain—it was Monsieur the Chevalier."

Andre had heard enough. His blood was tingling with passion and excitement. "You have done me a great service, Yvonne," he cried.

Yvonne very modestly disengaged the arm which for the first time she had slipped about her simple waist. "Monsieur, I must not kiss me," she whispered, humbly. "I cannot betray my lover even to you, sir."

Andre started as if he had been detected in a crime. "You have a lover, Yvonne?" he exclaimed.

The girl threw back her shock of matted hair and laughed. "Many lovers," she said, looking down at her clumsy sabots, "but only one dares to kiss me, humbly. For me to let Monsieur kiss me, too?"

"No," said Andre, still in the grip of passion.

"Then Monsieur will do as he pleases," she answered quietly. "I am his servant and, like a peasant girl, I will remember the kiss of a grand gentleman as long as I live."

There was no satire in her voice, and the roguish gleam in her eyes was simply bright with an innocent vanity, yet the words fell like ice-cold water on molten steel.

"Dama her!" was Andre's savage comment as he galloped back to the palace. Was she playing with him or was she sheer naïveté of soul?—for as usual Yvonne had in her mysterious way lured him on and then administered a humiliating rebuke.

The tavern with the grim name of "The Gallows and the Three Crows" lay in the mouth of a slum on the south side of the river, and when Andre, cloaked and disguised to the best of his power, entered its dark interior he recognized that the police were not wrong in telling him it was partly a gaming hell, partly the haunt of the select of the scum, male and female, of Paris, the rendezvous for the low amours of bullies, sharpers, and broken gentry, and the women who were their victims or their tools. He felt that the half-dozen occupants of the room eyed his swaggering entry with the keenest interest, but it was not his first introduction to such resorts, and a soldier of half a dozen campaigns and a swordman of his quality knew no fear. Nor was the wine so bad, and the flower girl who impudently took a seat at once at his table, though he could scarcely see her face in the gloom, promised some pleasant fun, when she had ceased to turn her back on him and to chaff a man at the next table.

CHAPTER XIX.

Andre had understated the truth to Madame de Pompadour when he said that he had wound much from Yvonne. Bit by bit her simple confessions had convinced him that "The Cock with the Spurs of Gold" played an important part in the inscrutable mystery of successful treachery summed up in the bloodstained cipher of "No. 101."

Yvonne indeed secretly pined for him. She was only his slave at this wretched table kept by a man and his wife against whom nothing discreditable could be ferreted out. And he had utterly failed to break down the barriers of her simplicity. She related things she had seen or heard which to Andre with his knowledge of the facts were damningly conclusive, but this she was aware of this was contradicted at every turn by her speech, her gestures, her amazing innocence. In vain had he laid pitfall after pitfall to catch her tripping. Not one syllable, one flutter of an eyelid, one blush, one faltering tone, had rewarded his cunningest or his most artless efforts. The worst Andre had done was to suspect, and it maddened him in the critical struggle on which he had now embarked he was convinced he was being beaten, tricked by a woman; she held, if he were right, the keys which would unlock the mystery and she was simply playing with him, no doubt for her own ends; she was probably betraying him daily to her accursed allies. Worst of all, because it was so, he felt that he had been deceived by an inexplicable charm in this girl which threatened to master him. Despite Denise and Madame de Pompadour, the Comtesse des Forges and half a dozen other refined and attractive women at the Court to inspire love and gratify passion, he, Andre de Nerac, a Cordon Bleu, a Croix de St. Louis, a Chevalier de la Maison de St. Louis, in danger of falling a victim to an unkempt peasant with a smudged face.

Yvonne told him things eminently useful, Yvonne baffled him, but these were not the only reasons why daily he went to see her. And he had discovered this humiliating fact by trying to answer a torturing question. If he could persuade Yvonne to be a traitor or the ally of traitors, was the reward he held over to the awful mercies of the King's justice?

And if not, why not? Supposing he could show that she was the woman who had foiled him in the charcoal-burner's cabin at Fontenoy—what then? And his heart revolted in its answer against his reason: "No, I cannot; I cannot leave Denise to the vengeance of Madame de Pompadour, because I love her. I cannot give Yvonne to the rack, the executioner's whip and wheel, because—" and then he always stopped, because he had not the courage even in the most intimate sanctuary of his conscience to finish the answer.

But discover the mystery he must more than ever now. His own fate and Madame de Pompadour's hung on success. The war was drawing to an end, the negotiations for peace were beginning. If the King's secrets were betrayed as in the past Madame would be disgraced. Andre had deliberately broken with his friends and his order. Their implacable lust for vengeance on the mistress would require his punishment. The issue was as clear as daylight. Either he must crush them or they would crush him. And success he must, because success alone meant safety, honor, and the love of Denise.

And so, after leaving Madame de Pompadour, Andre went as usual straight to Yvonne, whom he found in the stalls feeding the spotted cow. "The Englishman," she informed him, "has been here, Monsieur. He spoke with a gentleman from the Court. I only know that to-morrow night they will meet at a tavern in Paris; he called it 'The Gallows and the Three Crows.'"

Andre took the lantern from her and let the light fall on her stained face. "And this tavern, where is it?" he demanded.

"You will swear you heard it as you say?"

"Surely. They said the name twice."

"His cloak was over his face, but I think—I am certain—it was Monsieur the Chevalier."

Andre had heard enough. His blood was tingling with passion and excitement. "You have done me a great service, Yvonne," he cried.

Yvonne very modestly disengaged the arm which for the first time she had slipped about her simple waist. "Monsieur, I must not kiss me," she whispered, humbly. "I cannot betray my lover even to you, sir."

Andre started as if he had been detected in a crime. "You have a lover, Yvonne?" he exclaimed.

The girl threw back her shock of matted hair and laughed. "Many lovers," she said, looking down at her clumsy sabots, "but only one dares to kiss me, humbly. For me to let Monsieur kiss me, too?"

There was no satire in her voice, and the roguish gleam in her eyes was simply bright with an innocent vanity, yet the words fell like ice-cold water on molten steel.

"Dama her!" was Andre's savage comment as he galloped back to the palace. Was she playing with him or was she sheer naïveté of soul?—for as usual Yvonne had in her mysterious way lured him on and then administered a humiliating rebuke.

The tavern with the grim name of "The Gallows and the Three Crows" lay in the mouth of a slum on the south side of the river, and when Andre, cloaked and disguised to the best of his power, entered its dark interior he recognized that the police were not wrong in telling him it was partly a gaming hell, partly the haunt of the select of the scum, male and female, of Paris, the rendezvous for the low amours of bullies, sharpers, and broken gentry, and the women who were their victims or their tools. He felt that the half-dozen occupants of the room eyed his swaggering entry with the keenest interest, but it was not his first introduction to such resorts, and a soldier of half a dozen campaigns and a swordman of his quality knew no fear. Nor was the wine so bad, and the flower girl who impudently took a seat at once at his table, though he could scarcely see her face in the gloom, promised some pleasant fun, when she had ceased to turn her back on him and to chaff a man at the next table.

Nothing in particular, however, happened until a figure heavily cloaked rose from the further corner, and as he passed the flower girl tapped her familiarly on the shoulder. She looked up, started unmistakably, and Andre noticed the man had tried to slip a piece of paper into her basket of flowers. Unpoliced by both, the paper fell on the dirty napped floor among the refuse, and in a trice Andre had his foot on it.

He felt his heart beating like a sledge hammer. He had caught a glimpse of the man's face—the same face that had puzzled him behind the trees near "The Cock with the Spurs of Gold." Ah! the memories rushed in on him. Yes, he remembered now, of course, he had seen that face in the glare of the flaming charcoal-burner's cabin and in London at a supper party. It was the face of George Onslow, an Englishman. Yvonne had not been mistaken. Onslow was the English spy in Paris. Onslow at Fontenoy had come to receive the plans from "No. 101." Before he could decide he recognized two other men drinking carelessly but stealthily watching the room. These were servants, trusted servants, of the Duke of Pontchartrain and the Comte de Mont Rouge. What the devil were they doing here? By accident, or to meet some wench of the town, or as spies on whom or what?

George Onslow had meanwhile disappeared. The flower girl, too, humming a catch, was slipping away. Andre stooped to pick up the piece of paper, but by the time he had reached the door, pest on her nimble heels, she, too, had vanished! And Andre was only conscious that the two servants were following him out. Ah, that was their game, was it? Calling for another bottle, he went back to the table, and immediately the pair returned to their seat. That was conclusive. They were there to watch him, but why? Clearly because the Court desired to know of all his movements. The consequences of his refusal to the Comtesse des Forges were in fact beginning. Andre smiled grimly, stretched out his legs and examined the precious slips of paper. At once his heart pounded the more fiercely. The secret was no writing on it at all; all that he could see was a curious symbol, two crossed daggers and the figures "101" in red ink—no, blood! There was no mistaking it—blood. The mysterious traitor's sign, pass, or counterword. He set his teeth. Why, oh, why had he allowed that girl to escape him?

An hour passed. Nothing happened. Andre, growled by a feverish restlessness which he could not satisfy, and feeling only that he had been baffled again, planned how to leave. Pausing to be sure that the two servants were ready as before to follow him, he flung himself round the corner into the darkness and up the first alley and down the next, reckless of stabs in the back, until he was able to crawl in the first convenient doorway. He drew his spies off that was no thing, and just as he was wondering what to do next a cloaked figure brushed past him. The Chevalier de St. Amant, as he lived! He grabbed at the cloak in vicious rage. The Chevalier at least should not escape him.

"Don't be so rude, Vicomte," laughed a woman's voice. "I won't vanish up the chimney."

Andre, in sheer astonishment, staggered against the door, glaring all the time into the darkness. "You will be wise to follow me," she continued, "and in silence."

In two minutes the pair were standing in a small and empty back room of the tavern Andre had just left. The woman threw back her hood, revealing the trim figure and saucy face of the impudent flower girl, who was no other than his long-lost acquaintance, the crystal-gazer.

"You will present," she said mockingly, "my humble duties to Madame la Marquise de Pompadour."

Andre had recovered his bewilderment. "What is the meaning of that?" he demanded, brusquely, thrusting the slip of paper into her hands.

"I don't know," she retorted coolly, and then tore the slip into a dozen pieces, "and I do not care to know."

Andre was so startled by the studied

Nursing Mothers and

Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken down by over-work, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant breastmilk for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless remedy to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It cures no matter in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, back-ache, dragging down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, sea-sickness, indigestion, floating before eyes, have disordered pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapse of uterus, or retro-version or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using no other remedy than persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest natural medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients printed in plain English on its bottle-wrapper and plainly understood by all. It thus invites the fullest investigation of its formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best agents known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his free booklet treating of same.

Dr. Pierce's affords to accept as a substitute for this remedy of iron composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it.

NORLAND

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
We regret to say that the dread typhoid fever has come into our pleasant little village. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Martin are both down with it and are both very low, but their many friends hope for their speedy recovery.

On Wednesday, Sept. 25 a committee of the new iron bridge visited Norland to discuss where the bridge was to be situated, and they decided to build it just above the slide across a little island. The reason for this will be a rock foundation, the old slide having no bottom on which to build the concrete. The committee were Mr. McNeill, of Lindsay, and Mr. Taylor Parkin, the county Warden of Penelon; Mr. George Smith, the County Engineer; Mr. C. Callin, the reeve of Somerville, reeve of Coburn, and the Lindsay reeve, of Norland, Mr. James Campbell.

Miss Gladys Woodcock has been suffering from a severe attack of tonsillitis, and we are pleased to learn that she is able to be around again. Our telephone line is open to Coburn again, of which many people will be pleased to learn.
Miss Nellie Atterly spent Saturday and Sunday under the parental roof here.

Miss Katie MacIntyre, of Highland Grove, paid Norland friends a flying visit one day last week.

OAKWOOD

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
About one hundred guests assembled at the home of Wm. Short, on the 12th concession, Mariposa, to witness a very pretty wedding on October 2nd, when their daughter, Louie Maude, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Amos Moore.

The bride wore a gown of cream satin, trimmed with white and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. She was attended by her sister, Miss Alma Short, who was attired in cream velvet and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The groom wore a tuxedo, and was supported by his cousin, Mr. George Osborne. The marriage took place on the veranda under an arch of evergreens, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Mr. Ward, B.A., of Manilla.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Joseph Coak, of Oakwood, aunt of the bride. After a dainty repast the happy couple left on the evening train for Canimung and points west.

A very pleasing feature of the week was the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Cummings, grandparents of the bride. An address was read by Mr. J. F. Brass and a very suitable reply made by Mr. Cummings.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—London cables are firm at 10s to 12s per lb. dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9s to 10s per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.
TORONTO, Oct. 8.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market since Friday last, as reported by the railways, were 63 carloads, composed of 915 cattle, 1061 hogs, 1596 sheep and lambs, with 186 calves.

The only export cattle on sale were some few bulls that sold from $3 to $4.10 per cwt.

Butchers.
The best two cattle on the market sold at $1.85 per cwt. There were no cattle on the market good enough to bring 10c per lb., but had there been there is no doubt it would have been paid. Geo. Givner bought nine loads for the Harris Abattoir Company. The highest prices for loads of steers and heifers, 90 to 1100 lbs., were $2.85 to $4.50 per cwt. Best cows, $3 to $3.50; mixed cows, $2.25 to $3.50; canners and bulls, $1 to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.
Receipts of feeders and stockers were light, with few of good quality on sale. Steers, 900 to 1100, sold from $2.25 to $2.50; bulls, 1000 to 1200 lbs., at $2.25 to $2.50; stockers, $1.75 to $2.75 per cwt.

Milk Cows.
The quality of milkers and springers was not generally what could be called good, the bulk being of the medium class. No Montreal men being on the market, trade was dull and prices lower all round. The cow trade was the worst of the season, and unless the Montreal buyers turn up, some of the westerns will be left in the hole. Prices ranged from 12 to 14c per lb.

Veal Calves.
Veal calves, considering the quality, sell the best of anything on the market. B.C. calves, heavy, weighing 30 to 40 pounds each, sell up to 40c per pound, and sometimes more. One drover told The World that calves were the best to sell of anything he had. Prices ranged from $3 to $4.50 per cwt., and prime new milk-fed calves are worth 75c per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.
The quality of the sheep and lambs generally was not good, many of them having little flesh, with the wool full of burrs, carrying with them the characteristics of their late owners as regards farming. Export ewes, $4.25 to $

Telegraphy Opens the Way TO A SUCCESSFUL LIFE

Several thousand Telegraph Operators will be required by the various Railway companies within the next nine months.

ON AUGUST 1st, I will open a School in Lindsay, to be known as the

National School of Telegraphy

Board here is reasonable, and all ordinary students should graduate here within six months. Write or see me for terms. The greatest and most successful managers of to-day have, with rare exception, risen from the ranks of the operators.

Salaries of operators run from $50 to $80 per month, according to the importance of the position. Operators who are Agents, make from $60 to $100 per month, and are always eligible for promotion. Lady operators for commercial work are in great demand.

Qualifications necessary are few but absolutely essential, viz.: a common school education, strict sobriety, honesty, industry and carefulness.

Sir William C. Van Horne, of C.P.R. fame, began his railway career as an operator, so did J. W. Leonard, C. W. Spencer, Geo. C. Jones, and scores of others, all now holding high positions.

RECORD OF SOME FAST WORK

A Canadian Financial Manager Tells of a Flying Trip.

"Yes," said Mr. W. R. Travers, General Manager of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, in conversation with a friend the other day at the King Edward Hotel, "I have just got back from Europe, after a seven weeks' trip. No, I did not go for pleasure; I went on the bank's business, yet I got some pleasure out of the trip.

After placing a quarter of a million of the bank's stock at a premium with English capitalists, with Viscount Templeton as honorary president, I was able to see a few of the night. No English capitalists are not easy by any means. On the contrary, Canadians will find them very conservative. Before going into any financial matter of importance they look closely into it, employ their own experts, but once the value of the enterprise is ascertained, none more prompt than they to invest, and none with a keener eye for a good thing.

I did not have time to see much bank and for business, and am glad to be at work again. My trip has been of great advantage to the shareholders, and while it was hard work, it was very pleasant for me, but, with emphasis, "while London is the great city, Paris is beautiful, and each and every city I have visited has its own particular beauty. I never felt so glad to see anything over there as to see our own Lake Ontario, and to feel that I was at home in and in God's country!"

SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY.

Great Chance for Young Men and Women in Lindsay.

Mr. Paton has the only School of Telegraphy between Toronto and Montreal, and it is located in Lindsay. (This being so, and the demand for this kind of help the coming spring likely to be unprecedented, young men and women (in our opinion), will make no mistake in taking a course. Pupils now in attendance are making great headway, and have nothing but good words for the School. We doubt if there is a man in Canada better qualified to handle a School of this kind than Mr.

of London, but saw enough to make me realize that it is the great city. One thing that was not on the list of things to see was to me very interesting. I can say from personal observation that the Queen's coach horses, eight in number, are so much alike that one would require to have numbers on them for identification. Long, flowing manes and tails of white, coats of cream color, and so glossy and clean that the finest linen on silk handkerchiefs could not be soiled on them. They did not put on any airs, but enjoyed any patting of their sides as though they were common ponies.

I took in Windsor and Buckingham Palaces and the King's stables. This I was able to do through the courtesy of Mr. William McVillie, M.V.O., the King's private detective who not only personally saw to my comfort, but also gave me letters of introduction to the proper authorities of Berlin, so that I was enabled to visit the Imperial palace and stables there.

My trip took in Paris, Brussels, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Edinburgh, Dublin, Liverpool and Quonston, in each of which places I made arrangements, establishing representatives and agencies of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, so that our friends and customers here can have all the convenience of exchange, and letters of credit when visiting any of these European cities. It was fast work—so fast that "Around the World in Eighty Days" seems a slower task to me than formerly.

Berlin is a city of wide, clean streets, good shops and clean, healthy and well-to-do people. St. Petersburg has the widest streets and the narrowest business principles probably in the world. It may come day the people to adopt civilized methods in commerce there, but that will not be till the passport system is abolished.

Yes, I came back by the Lusitania. Fine boat? The finest possible. Table service? The meanest possible. I went over by the same line and had a return. The Cunards seem to look on a "return" passage as some people look on a note given for a horse that has died before maturity off the paper—not worth honoring. So they do the best they can afford for the money. Shovel you in a subway hole with your head against the furnace and your feet against the engine and let you have anything on the bill of fare, if you ask for it twice—and wait till you get it. I am quite more in harness for the Paton who has had to do with almost every branch of railway work. Railway telegraph operators' salaries run from $45 to $100 per month, commercial telegraph operators from $40 to $150 per month; station agents from $75 to $150 per month; train dispatchers from $100 to $175 per month, with prospects of substantial increases in the near future. 80 per cent. of railway officials in America to-day rose from the ranks of the telegraph operator.

LOSING TWO GOOD CITIZENS.

Messrs Sam Irwin and Jos. Riggs Leave for California.

Evening Post of Oct. 16
Lindsay is on the point of losing two valued citizens, in the persons of Mr. Sam Irwin, late assistant inspector of weights and measures for this district, and Mr. Jos. Riggs, for many years in the tobacco and fancy goods business here. The families of both will accompany them to Los Angeles, in the suburbs of which city they have purchased adjoining homes.

Mr. Irwin has been a resident of Lindsay and vicinity for almost seventy years, coming here when the future town was known as Purdy's Mills. Mr. Riggs has been in Lindsay for about 30 years.

While regretting the departure of the two citizens named, and their families, it is pleasing to be able to record that they leave the old town with a feeling of deep sadness, and that health considerations alone impel their removal to a more temperate climate.

A Senator's Reminiscences

The Lethbridge Herald-Edmonton had as a visitor last week a very interesting personage in Senator McHugh, of Lindsay, Ont. The Senator used to represent South Victoria in the Commons. He was elected in the general elections of 1896, when the Remedial Bill was the great issue. McHugh's opponent was Chas. Fairbairn, a Tory and an Orangeman. He had supported the Remedial Bill. McHugh was a Catholic and a supporter of Sir Wilfrid's coalition policy. Under the circumstances it was expected that the Orangemen would desert Fairbairn, but they did not. On the other hand, McHugh held the Roman Catholic vote and gained the support of a number of fair-minded Tories and was elected. In the 1900 campaign he was beaten, his opponent using the religious cry against him, though a more broadminded man never represented the riding. Mr. McHugh succeeded the late Sir Frank Smith in the Senate.

The wedding took place at three o'clock, after which a very sumptuous repast was served. The bride was given away by her father, and entered the parlor to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. H. Ross.

BUILT UP HER HEALTH

SPEEDY CURE OF MISS ECCLESON

She is Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Writes Gratefully to Mrs. Pinkham.

For the wonderful help that she has found Zula E. Eccleson, 6 Erie St., East, St. Thomas, Ont., believes it her duty to write the following letter for publication, in order that other women afflicted in the same way may be benefited as also was she. She writes:

Zula Eccleson

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I can heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a tonic and regulator for female troubles. I suffered for years with displacement and no one of those who have experienced the Good Old Compound can find any idea of the physical and mental suffering those endure who are thus afflicted. Your Vegetable Compound cured me. Within three months I was fully restored to health and strength and now my periods are regular and painless. What a blessing it is to obtain such relief when so many doctors fail to help you. Your medicine is better than any doctor or medicine I ever had."

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacement of organs, inflammation or ulceration can be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Her experience is your great, and she gives the benefit of it to all who stand in need of wise counsel. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

AS TOLD IN THE POETS' CORNER.

THE FALLING LEAVES.

Between broad belts of blue and grey
In a receding sky,
And swathed with sun, and wreathed
With rain,
The Autumn days slip by.

And in the night the keen stars hear
The whirr of passing wings,
Yet somewhere still the sun at dawn
Awakes a voice that sings.

But in the woods and round the hills,
The wind of autumn grieves,
And moaning postmarks tremulous
The sunset in the leaves.

And in the paths that lie before,
The paths that lie behind,
The homelands make populous
The old ways of the wind.

A meagre tint of gold looks up
From where the fields lie brown;
In floods from off the tented hills,
The autumn leaves come down.

And circling with the day and night,
In secret sympathy,
The wind and leaves together lift
The year's last litaney.

—J. C. M. Duncan.

EVERY INCH A MAN.

She sat on the porch in the sunshine
As I went down the street,
A woman whose hair was silver,
But whose face was blossom sweet;
My heart was full of a garden,
When, in spite of the frost and snow,
Of bleak November weather,
Late fragrant lilies blow.

I heard a footstep behind me,
And the sound of a merry laugh;
And I knew the heart it came from
Would be like comforting staff
To the time and hour of trouble;
Hopeful, and brave and strong;
One of the hearts to lean on
When we think all things go wrong.

I turned at the click of the gate
To catch
And met his manly look,
A face like his gives me pleasure,
Like the page of a pleasant book.
It told of a steadfast purpose,
Of a brave and enduring will,
A face with a promise in it
That, God grant, the years fulfil.

He went up the pathway singing,
I saw the woman's eyes
Grow bright with a wordless welcome.
As sunshine warms the skies,
"Back again, sweetheart, mother,"
He cried, and bent to kiss
The loving face that was lifted
For what some mothers miss.

That boy will do to depend on,
I hold that this is true—
From lads in love with their mothers
Our bravest heroes grew.
Earth's grandest hearts have been Loving hearts
Since time and earth began.
And the boy who kisses his mother
Is every inch a man.

Observations.

Easy to drift to the sea of doubt;
Easy to hurt what we cannot heal,
Easy to rouse what we cannot soothe,
Easy to speak what we do not feel,
Easy to show what we ought to conceal,
Easy to think that fancy is fate;
And, O, the wisdom that comes too late.

A Sensible Magistrate.

Let the magistrates pass this in their hats. Col. Dennison, police magistrate of Toronto, may not be a second Daniel, but he is a wise man, nevertheless. Talking about a in his court lately. Col. Dennison made this remark: "Everything should be done in the light of day. I have the court cleared I invariably ask the reporters to stay in order that the public may know what is going on. It would be wrong if justice were administered without being open to the public." More than one magistrate in Ontario might paste the above in his hat as a guide.

Nicholson is a tall, well built young fellow, and only sixteen years old. The doctors are hopeful that by careful treatment they can restore the use of his limbs.

Autumn.

The summer sun has bowed the hills; the garden's path with weeds;

Within the stagnant pool stands a row and a half of broken reeds.

The meadow is a cheerless glow; the country roads are dull where once bright blossoms used to grow.

Not That Bad.

It is related that a woman in a hurry for a train rushed for lunch into the first hand restaurant. It was not a fashionable restaurant. It was not even a good restaurant. To his surprise and horror he recognized in the waiter an old school friend.

"Good heavens, my dear fellow!" he cried, "how did you come to this?"

"Oh, it's not so bad as you think," said his friend. "I only wait, I don't dine here."

Time

Time's a hand's-breadth; 'tis a tale; 'Tis a vessel under sail;

'Tis an eagle in its way, Darting down upon its prey,

'Tis an arrow in its flight Mocking the pursuing sight;

'Tis a short-lived fading flower; 'Tis a rainbow or a shower;

'Tis a momentary ray Smiling in a winter's day;

'Tis a torrent's rapid stream; 'Tis a shadow; 'tis a dream;

'Tis the closing watch of night; Dying at the rising light;

'Tis a bubble, 'tis a sigh—Be prepared, O man, to die.

—Francis Quarles.

The Worm Turned.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 7.—Mayor Bennett, of Fort Dodge, who recently gained fame by issuing a ukase that all schoolchildren in the city must wed within a year or pay a fine, was taken to his word yesterday by Nolan Snow, a chauffeur, who eloped with the Mayor's daughter, Mabel.

The elopers were wed in Fort Dodge and fled to Des Moines. Mayor Bennett is a great believer in marriages, and so he sent an ordinance through the Council placing a fine upon the heads of all schoolchildren at the end of a year.

Young Snow is just in time to avoid the Mayor's fine, but not the Mayor's wrath.

This Is a Good One.

An editor of an Ottawa paper wishing to put a stop to the practice of country correspondents sending items to his paper with no names signed at the end, fixed up an editorial note to this effect:

"Unless correspondents sign their names the item will not appear. The rule is absolute. No name, no publication."

But the compositor was sleepy, and when the paper came on the street, this was what it read like:

"Unless correspondents sign their names the item will not appear. The rule is obsolete. No name, no publication."

Never Swear.

It is mean, A boy of high moral standing would almost as soon swear a sheep as to swear.

It is vulgar—altogether too low for a decent boy.

It is cowardly—implying a fear of not being believed or obeyed.

It is ungentlemanly. A gentleman, according to the dictionary, is a gentle man, well-bred, refined. Such a man will no more swear than go into the street to throw mud with a chimney sweep.

It is indecent, offensive to decency and extremely unfit for human ears.

It is foolish. "Want of decency is want of sense."

It is abusive to the mind that conceives the oath, to the tongue which utters it, and to the person at whom it is aimed.

It is venomous, showing a dog's heart to be a nest of vipers; and every time he swears one of them sticks out its head.

It is contemptible, forfeiting the respect of all the wise and good.

Food of Workmen

We may not have as high a tariff as has Germany, but the Canadian workmen have not yet been reduced to eating dog and horse. According to the Southern Farm Magazine, there were slaughtered last year for food in the kingdom of Saxony 12,922 horses and 3,730 dogs.

This was an increase of 224 horses and 133 dogs over the year 1905. In the whole empire in 1906 there were slaughtered for food 182,000 horses, and it is estimated that about 7,000 dogs go into food, in the empire annually. It is not unusual to find advertisements of dog and horse meat, and it is said that a great many dogs are killed and eaten that do not give up their lives under official inspection. News items detailing the arrest, trial, conviction and punishment by fine or imprisonment of men charged with killing and eating dogs that belonged to others, sometimes valuable animals or cherished household pets, are not infrequent, says the United States Consul.

TORONTO WANTS BIG SHIP CANAL

Along the Same Route as Trent Valley Canal—A New Scheme.

The construction of a ship canal, connecting the Georgian Bay with Lake Ontario, by way of Lake Simcoe, is advocated by the Toronto Board of Trade, who are inviting the co-operation of members of parliament and boards of trade throughout the country to secure an investigation into the feasibility and cost of the scheme.

At a Council meeting of the Toronto board yesterday, the railway and transportation committee submitted a report on the scheme, which was unanimously adopted.

Efforts will be made to arouse public interest in the matter and to educate them to realize the immense advantages that will accrue to the city by its construction.

The Georgian Bay canal, by way of the Trent and Ottawa rivers, contemplated by the Dominion Government, will only be seventy miles shorter than the proposed route, whilst its cost will be triple, owing to the rock formation of the country and the number of locks that must be built to overcome the differences in the level of the country.

The board of trade will urge the Dominion Government not to proceed with the plan until a thorough investigation of the new scheme has been made.

When the facts about the Council Bill become fully known, he declared that Redmond and his party will be triumphantly vindicated.

BRITAIN IS SUPREME

Fleet Exceeds That of Any Two Other Countries.

WARSHIPS ARE MOBILIZED

One Hundred and Ten Vessels Assembled in North Sea for Manoeuvres—Problem of Torpedo Attack to Be Studied—No Reserves Called Upon—Not Using the Big Battleship Dreadnought.

London, Oct. 15.—There is now assembling in the North Sea and the English Channel for manoeuvres, under the command of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, a fleet of British warships, representing an aggregation of naval power surpassing all the immediate available resources of any two other countries of Europe, and yet not a single ship of this fleet has been drawn from the reserves, the Mediterranean fleet, or the Devonshire or Portsmouth divisions. The home fleet, which is now assembling, consists merely of those ships maintained in the vicinity of the British Isles, and which throughout the year have been engaged in war training.

It numbers 110 pennants, and is composed of 26 battleships, 15 armored cruisers, various auxiliary vessels and 48 torpedo vessels. The battleship Dreadnought is not taking part in the manoeuvres, as she is being fitted with a new steering engine before further sea trials, which, it is hoped, will prove of assistance in determining the design of future large battleships.

The first section of the coming naval manoeuvres, covering four days, will be of a tactical description, and the final days will be devoted to studying the problem of defending ships against torpedo attacks.

With the "mosquito fleet" attacking the large warships, and all the land stations manned, the coming operations are expected to be most interesting.

New Channel at Neeshib Island Cost $3,000,000.

GREAT BOON TO SAILORS

Gigantic Enterprise Successfully Completed—New Riverway Over Two Miles in Length—Will Greatly Facilitate Traffic From Sault Ste. Marie—Used by Down-bound Boats in the Spring.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 15.—Water was turned into the new channel of the St. Mary's River at the West Neeshib on Sunday, marking the completion of one of the biggest projects undertaken on the great lakes since the building of the Poe lock. The new channel is over two miles in length, 9,000 feet of which is cut through solid rock. The channel is 300 feet in width, with a depth at minimum stage of water of 22 feet. It will not be formally opened to navigation until spring. The project has cost upwards of $3,000,000.

It is located 18 miles below the Soo, and lies to the west of Neeshib Island, the present channel being to the east of the island. This old channel will hereafter be used solely for upbound boats, the heavily-laden downbound craft using the new waterway, which has none of the sharp turns which are embarrassing to the modern 600-foot freighter.

MUST HAVE OPERATION.

Minister of Justice Suffering From Deafness—Cannot Attend Session.

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—A serious impairment of hearing of Hon. A. B. Aylesworth's hearing may make it impossible for the Minister of Justice to attend the next session of Parliament.

A visit to New York, or even to Vienna will be necessary before Mr. Aylesworth will be able to resume his affairs.

Over twenty years ago Mr. Aylesworth lost the use of one ear. Last July the other ear became affected, and has proved a serious impediment to him in his official duties. Recently the trouble became in some way aggravated so that, at times, Mr. Aylesworth was practically deaf.

Dr. Fordland of Ottawa was consulted, and discovered an obstruction in the Eustachian tube. He removed a small piece of cartilage, and during the past week a considerable improvement has been noted.

Before a permanent relief can be assured, however, it will be necessary for Mr. Aylesworth to undergo a more radical operation. A visit to one of the aural specialists of New York or Vienna will almost certainly be required before the Minister of Justice will be seen on the floor of the House of Commons.

KILLED A BIG WILD CAT.

Animal Was in Chase of a Swimming Deer at the Time.

Evening Post of Oct. 16

Curry's tug, the "Beaver," which arrived recently from Ball Lake, had on board the carcass of a fierce-looking wild cat of large proportions that had been killed there. The animal lies in the mill yard at present, where it has been viewed by dozens. Its length appears to be altogether out of proportion to its body. The paws are exceptionally large, and from the pads protrude sharp, wicked-looking claws. The head is the picture of ferocity, and a fox-tail completes one of the most dangerous animals to be encountered in the woods, dreaded alike by man and beast.

The species of the feline tribe was first sighted by some lumbermen, being in pursuit of a swimming deer. They took a skiff and rowed to it, and the creature turned to attack them. At this one of the men, Wright by name, struck it several powerful blows on the head, killing it. The body was thrown on the raft of logs towed by the Beaver, and brought to town.

That a wild cat would attack a deer, in the water, which the domestic cat hates, would appear improbable, but the creature is desperate.

ate when hungry, and possess remarkable strength. The rush of people to view the carcass prompted the remark from a river driver that "the cat drew a crowd worse than a circus."

MET WITH FATAL ACCIDENT

Former Lochlin Resident Run Over By Train Near Sudbury.

On Monday, Sept. 16th, a most unfortunate accident happened about 24 miles from Sudbury, at 1.30 p.m. which resulted in the death of Douglas Palmer. It seems he was trying to get on the ballast train, doing construction work on the Canadian Northern railway, when he slipped and fell under a car loaded with ballast, and the wheels passed over his head and crushed it to a jelly, and then cut off his foot. He was taken immediately to Sudbury hospital, where his leg was amputated at the hip, but all in vain, and the unfortunate fellow succumbed to his injuries and died at 11 p.m. the same night. He was taken to Brucebridge and buried the following Wednesday.

Douglas Palmer was well known around Lochlin, Haliburton County, where he was storekeeper for the Haliburton Lumber Co. for two years, and was well liked. His many friends will bear with sorrow of his untimely death.

We have taught over seven thousand dress-making, and guarantee to give five hundred dollars to any one that cannot learn between the ages of 14 and 40. You cannot learn dress-making as thorough as this course teaches if you work in shops for years. Beware of imitations as we employ no one outside the school. ## ASIATIC IMMIGRATION.

In his address to the Canadian Club at Victoria, B.C., Rudyard Kipling took occasion to touch upon the problem of Asiatic immigration. His judgment upon a question of this kind is of exceptional value, since his knowledge of eastern conditions has been obtained at first hand by a man of genius remarkable for his receptiveness, penetrative insight and faculty of expression. Then Mr. Kipling, notwithstanding the poetic, but misleading personifications of Canada as "Our Lady of the Snows"—is warmly interested in the Dominion and its future and concerned that it should grow into a great, homogeneous and prosperous community. Clearly he holds the Oriental to be an undesirable immigrant. Law and government have a different meaning to the Asiatic than they have to the Anglo-Saxon or the continental European. Asiatics, he told the citizens of Victoria, were born in fear and reared in the panic necessary to the race. The choice soon to be offered to the people of Canada is, he declared, that "between the desired reinforcements of your own stock and blood and the undesired of races to whom you are strangers, whose speech you do not understand, and from whose instincts and traditions you are separated by thousands of years—that is your choice. For my self," he added, "I think the time for making that choice is on you now."

The advice of a disinterested friend whose qualifications and attainments lend weight to his counsel, at all times deserves serious attention. Certainly it is worth much more consideration than that of another class of counsellors whose personal interest happens to coincide with the policy of cheap labor they are openly advocating. But it is of far more consequence that Canada should de-

"ARBITRATE," URGES MR. T. N. DOUTNEY

Well Known Temperance Lecturer, in an Interview With The Post Urges a Conference Between Clergymen and Temperance Workers and Liquor Dealers - May Lecture Here.

Evening Post of Oct. 11
The T. N. Doutney, well and favorably known as a non-political, non-sectarian and non-adversive temperance lecturer and worker, is at the Simpson house. Mr. Doutney has travelled extensively in Canada and the United States; newspaper exchanges speak in flattering terms of his work. He carries letters of strong commendation from most prominent people in Canada and the United States, among whom are railway officials and people of all classes, and he has been prominently before the public, many of them also being prominent clergymen and state and municipal officials.

Visiting the editorial rooms of The Post this morning, Mr. Doutney said: "I have been engaged in my field of labor for over twenty years. My father, who died in 1866, was a journalist. He never knew any other kind of business. He was at one time on the staff of The Montreal Gazette when Messrs. Love and Chamberlain were the proprietors and editors of that paper, and he served on many other English and French newspapers in Montreal and Quebec. I was born near Montreal. As regards temperance, I must honestly say, with all my knowledge and great respect for those who think and believe differently from me, that I have no faith whatever in prohibition or local option. Remember, please, that I don't theorize—I speak from personal and practical experience. And there is no school equal to that of experience. I have been hotel and bar owner and a victim of the drink habit, therefore when I speak or write upon the subject, I do so from actual personal knowledge. Nothing, no matter what, could induce me to do or say anything to injure the temperance cause or retard its progress. My plan and work is to set people right, as best I can, on the all important issue of temperance. Bigots, cranks, and fanatics take issue with me; it's their prejudice that makes them do so. No good cause can make progress where bigotry and prejudice are the motives that drive it."

It is true that some localities vote for local option and carry it. To do that is one thing—to successfully carry it out is another. The great majority of the places that vote for local option, and carry it at election, are no more and no less than a gigantic failure and a humbug, simply because the law in those places is ignored, and a law that is ignored is worse than no law at all. Better, a thousand times over, a license law, giving licenses only to those who will properly give up to the requirements of the law, than local option enforced and frowned upon. The people, in practice and social custom, are opposed to local option. I have visited Owen Sound and other local option districts, and I can assure the people that local option in those places is a disgrace, insofar as temperance is concerned. And yet the people there are kind, courteous and generous. In local option districts the lowest class of people sell strong drink in kitchens and back rooms, where the lower element of both sexes congregate. These places, in many instances are beyond the control of the police. To hire what are known as "spotters," informers, is adding crime to crime, for those "spotters" must lie and deceive, as a rule, to obtain liquor. They have been known to box and lead men into selling liquor at prohibited times (men who had no thought of selling at such hours) under the pretence of sickness. The regular legal and duly authorized police are a necessity, but, personally, I would not believe a professional "spotter" on oath. A licensed hotel bar or liquor store would not for a moment tolerate what happens in kitchen bars in local option districts.

I have the most profound respect for the clergy and their sacred calling. I am sure it is not wrong to say to the clergy, "Reverend and dear sir, what do you know, from actual, personal experience, about the liquor traffic and the liquor traffic, the brewery and distillery? I am quite sure the great majority of these good men know nothing in that way on those lines. Thus it is that all great moves for temperance, conducted in the way they operate, always end in failure. Nothing can stop the liquor traffic. Moral suasion is the only effective way that is ever done with the poor drunkard. I speak and write to help temperance, and not to injure it. Politics is the greatest curse that injures temperance more than all else. Eliminate politics and prejudice from temperance and the question will settle itself, to the great benefit of the church, religion, and morality in general. I consider it even criminal, to say the least, to abuse the hotel bar owner, liquor dealer, brewer and distiller, and to ignore the poor drunkard. Drunkards are no benefit to themselves (I mean myself, too, when I was one) or to the traffic, for not one of them in a hundred ever has a dollar. Gospel temperance is the only real, practical and applied temperance. There are mean men in the liquor traffic, and there are also mean men in every walk of life, without exception. I suggest, for the sake of temperance, that the clergy and temperance workers should visit hotel bar owners, liquor dealers, brewers and distillers—not to go to them with bundles of tracts or sermons and condemnations, but to go to them in a friendly fashion, and say to them, 'Come, let us reason together.' Let the clergy and temperance workers offer in a kind and friendly way to co-operate with all bar owners, liquor dealers, brewers and distillers in the better living up to the law. Let us move on the part of the temperance workers, with the end in all these engaged in the traffic, and low places—for no man in the traffic wants to be classed as a 'dive' owner. It is very wrong to blame all engaged in the traffic, because of the wrong done by some mean man in the business. The hotel bar owner, the liquor dealer, brewer and distiller, always give to charity and benevolent objects, and is never the smallest giver in the list. Let us win people and not aggravate them, and not create a feeling of hatred against temperance."

The liquor traffic comes under the law of supply and demand. If there was no demand for the goods, none would be on sale. Temperance is a work of education, and not coercion. If the power of the gospel and moral suasion can't convert people to temperance and moderation and righteousness, nothing else can. After all, it is the abuse of anything, and not the use of it, that does the injury. There are more people who die from gluttony, lust, debauchery, etc., etc., than die from strong drink. Bigotry and prejudice are not religion. I repeat, just as long as politics and bigotry are allowed to congregate with temperance, just so long will temperance efforts be a failure. Get at the human heart through the help of God, and the question settles itself. I lectured some years ago near here, but have never yet lectured or worked in Lindsay or Peterboro. I hope, however, to work in both places later in the fall. In 1893 I occupied the Grand Opera House in Ottawa every night for two weeks—I am always honored, humble worker though I am, with crowded houses. I sing some at my lectures, and the lectures are always free to everybody. I trust to the general public for my support, and the support of my work. Let me add, please, in conclusion, by way of urgent suggestion, namely, these are the days of arbitration. Capital and labor and employer and employee meet to talk over and arbitrate their difficulties, and thus many a strike is averted. Moreover, such moves lead to a lasting and firm mutual friendship that counts to the good for all concerned, and for the public as well. Now, then, in like manner let the good clergy and temperance workers go upon, meet and confer with the hotel bar owner, the liquor dealer, brewer and distiller. Arbitrate over the difficulties which confront both sides, and join hands for improvement and for the better and cleaner living up to law—wherever the law is violated. I do most firmly guarantee the greatest results if the reverend clergy and temperance workers, and hotel bar owners, liquor dealers, brewers and distillers, will combine in such a move. I also guarantee that hotel bar owners, liquor dealers, brewers and distillers will most respectfully and most courteously receive the clergy and all temperance workers—in fact they will be glad to co-operate with them. I consider Lindsay a fine, wide-awake, lively town. I find the people most courteous, kind and obliging."

insistence of the act that for a few minutes he could neither speak nor move. When he did, it was to put his back to the door very significantly.

"One question, Madame," he demanded. "You are aware that George Onslow is in Paris, that he spoke to you, gave you that paper?"

"Certainly, Mr. Onslow mistook me for some one else. I have just convinced him of his mistake." She was positively smiling.

"You expect me to believe that?" She shrugged her shoulders. "No," she answered, "the truth told by women is never believed, least of all at Versailles by men."

Andre ran his eye over her. As in the past, so now something in her voice and figure reminded him of some one else, but of whom he could not recall.

"Madame," he said earnestly, "I urge you to tell the truth. You were never in such danger as you are now."

"Perhaps not. But I am not in such peril as you are, Monsieur le Vicomte." Instinctively he turned sharply round. The woman laughed and the laugh maddened him, for they were alone and the door had been locked by himself.

"My friend," she said quietly, "you are being spied on. To-morrow the ministers, the Comtesse des Forges, and the Comte de Mont Rouge will know how the Vicomte de Nerac, who gave you the paper, spent the evening in the company of Mr. George Onslow and disreputable women. I feel sure the Marquise de Beau Sejour will hear it, too, with additions."

"Well," said Andre, stonily. "Monsieur le Vicomte also is known to frequent the society of one Yvonne. Innocent peasant girls, when put on the rack, are sometimes obliged to tell lies, poor things, but lies useful to those who rack them. The Marquise de Beau Sejour will hear it, too, with additions."

"Hold your tongue." "No, I will not, Monsieur le Vicomte. I am also the lover of Madame de Pompadour. You deny it? Then why go in the darkness with the King's private key to her apartment? The noble whose arm you sit will enjoy taking that delightful scandal about the Captain of the King's Guards to the King, and the Queen—mon Dieu! the King—she laughed bloodthirstily, nor was it necessary to finish the sentence.

Andre wiped the sweat off his brow. The woman came close to him. "Supposing," she said in a low voice, "supposing you had been arrested to-night with that slip of paper in your pocket, would all your services, all your pains, your nobility have saved you? Think, my friend, think. I did a bold thing, perhaps, in destroying it, but it was in your interest, Vicomte, not mine."

Andre was silent, appalled at her knowledge. The tables had been turned on him with a vengeance, and this astonishing woman was right, which was hardest of all.

"You would know," she proceeded, diving marvellously into his confused thoughts, "how I have all this information. I have my crystal," she laughed, "but I also hate the King and the woman who rules him. You and she are not the only persons at Versailles to whom it is a matter of life and death to discover the secret of 'No. 101.' Monsieur, I am the paid agent of the foes of that wanton, the King's mistress, and of yourself."

Unconsciously Andre's fingers clutched the hilt of his sword. "Why do I tell you all this?" she asked in a low voice. "Does that confession amuse or startle you? Am I the first woman who would sacrifice herself for the Vicomte de Nerac or the first to confess her love? No. And to prove I speak the truth I will reveal to you the secret of 'No. 101.' That I alone have discovered, but on one condition—she paused to put her hands on both his shoulders—"that you will promise from this moment to abandon Made-moiselle Denise, who is not worthy of you, and to love me alone."

Dead silence. Andre stood hypnotized, half by fear, half by the witchery of her womanhood.

"I have beauty, wealth, power," she whispered caressingly. "Yes, I am as fair a woman as Mademoiselle Denise; I can make you a greater man than Madame de Pompadour can; I can reveal listening attentively, seized a hand lamp and left the room. When she returned, it was with a man, who hung off his cloak and stood blinking now at her, now at the brilliant lights.

"So it is you they have sent?" she said contemptuously; "you!"

"I volunteered," George Onslow answered, "because I wanted to come." The gaze lingered hungrily on her. "And, by God! I am glad," he laughed wearily, "you pretend you are not."

"What does it matter to me whom your accused government sends? Any man is better than a woman, such women, at least, as they employed last time."

His eyes roamed from her jewels to the supple limbs.

"You have had company to-night, Enchantress?" he asked in a flash of jealousy.

"Yes," she answered over her shoulder, "two can make very good company—sometimes. But here is what you wanted. Take it and go."

He scanned the roll of manuscript eagerly, his eyes sparkling.

CHAPTER XX.

Midnight had struck, the same night, more than an hour ago, the black and squalid Carrefour of St. Antoine was deserted; the houses that fringed it lay in darkness, yet in the main salon of one of them, though they could not be discerned by a passer-by, the lights still blazed, for the shutters were closed and bolted, the thick double curtains were drawn tight. On the table in the centre of the room were ample traces that two persons had recently sat down, and snuffed sumptuously. But there was only one person in the room, a woman copying from a roll of manuscript, and absorbed in her task. Save for the monotonous tick of the clock, and a curious muffled murmur which trickled through a door that faced the main entry, the silence in the strangely brilliant glare of the numerous candelabra was oppressively eery. Presently the woman threw down her pen and walked with a quick but graceful step in front of one of the many long mirrors that lined the walls. She inspected herself with a charmingly insolent cynicism. The glass, with truthful admiration, flashed back the reflection of a supple and exquisitely moulded figure, fair hair, bright blue eyes, and a skin on face, neck, and shoulders amazingly delicate in its blended tints of snow and rose. A young woman this, in the heyday of health and beauty, noble of birth, too, for the refinement of her features, and the ease and dignity of her carriage, did not strangely lie, and at every movement the costly jewels in her hair and on her breast, in her artfully simple dress, and on her fingers, only heightened the challenge to the homage claimed by her youth and beauty. Very soon, however, she ceased to find pleasure in looking at herself. A soft pathos crept over the artificial audacity of her eyes and lips. She sat down, her elbows on her knees, she stretched her arms wearily and sighed that most pathetic of all sighs, a sigh from a young woman's heart.

Suddenly she sprang up, and, after ed, half jestingly.

The woman opened a penknife and pushed back the lace which fringed her splendid arm at the shoulder.

"Don't!" cried Onslow, in genuine pain. "I can't bear—"

"Pooh!" With the few drops of blood produced by the knife she made a symbol with her pen on the roll. "From as near my heart as any man will ever get anything," she said, replacing the lace again. "And now my pay, please."

Onslow handed her a small bag of gold, which she locked in a drawer. "You will drink," she continued, pouring out two glasses of wine. "For your health, skulking spy, and damnation to Louis XV. and all his crew of my fascinating spy!"

"To your trade and mine, ma mignonne, to yourself and to the damnation of Louis XV.!" He drained his glass, refilled it, and drained it again. "You are a witch," he cried, tapping the roll. "How do you do it?"

"Come this way and I will show you." She opened the side door, revealing a small room lit by a single candle. On the bed lay a man bound hand and foot, and gagged. One boot was off, showing whence the despatch had been taken. "A confidential messenger of the King whose damnation you have just drunk," she explained, with careless calm, "and like all secret agents the prey of his passions. He went from my supper table—or rather I carried him—like that. There will be a pothe in Versailles to-morrow or next day. It is not only at the palace, you see, that a beautiful woman can ruin a kingdom."

She slammed the door behind her and admired herself in the mirror.

while George Onslow's glowing eyes gazed on the superb picture that the mirror and she made under the blazing candles.

"You are a wonderful woman," he said softly.

"I am not a woman, I am only a number."

"As I think I told you when I saw you in London."

She wheeled suddenly. "And because you were such a fool as to show you had discovered it," she retorted, "I could send you to-night, or any night, to be broken on the executioner's wheel. Exactly."

"It baffles me why you do it," he muttered, ignoring the remark.

"Well, I will tell you. For three hundred and sixty days in the year I am a cipher, a sexless vagrant, unknown and a mystery, but for five days maybe I wear my jewels and am a woman rejoicing in my health and my beauty. These are my woman's hours, glorious hours. That is one reason; the other is—revenge!"

"Ah!" He rubbed his hands appreciatively.

"And you?" she asked, with a faint smile of the most tempting provocation.

"For love," he spoke with a hint of pain. "To the world you are a mysterious number, but to me you are the most beautiful, most splendid woman on earth, without whose love I cannot live. Had you not by chance crossed my path I would have dropped this dirty felon's game, but I go on and shall go on, taking my chance of the wheel, the halter, or the footpad's death in the gutter, till you are mine, willy nilly."

Her lip curled. "The wine is getting into your head," she said, in her passionless tones. "In your trade and mine that is dangerous. Remember the fate of all who, knowing what you know, have seen my face: remember your friend, Captain Statham, who recognized the Princess in the hut near Fontenoy. Love? Love? You are a strong, vile animal of a man tempted by mere beauty of body. But I am not an animal, and a woman as woman as in Paris, London, Vienna. Love? A man's animal love? Think you if that was what I could feel or wanted I would be to-day a thief of state secrets, a cipher, a skulker from justice? No, I would be the mistress of the King of France and would rule a great king."

She inspected herself with a charmingly insolent cynicism. The glass, with truthful admiration, flashed back the reflection of a supple and exquisitely moulded figure, fair hair, bright blue eyes, and a skin on face, neck, and shoulders amazingly delicate in its blended tints of snow and rose. A young woman this, in the heyday of health and beauty, noble of birth, too, for the refinement of her features, and the ease and dignity of her carriage, did not strangely lie, and at every movement the costly jewels in her hair and on her breast, in her artfully simple dress, and on her fingers, only heightened the challenge to the homage claimed by her youth and beauty. Very soon, however, she ceased to find pleasure in looking at herself. A soft pathos crept over the artificial audacity of her eyes and lips. She sat down, her elbows on her knees, she stretched her arms wearily and sighed that most pathetic of all sighs, a sigh from a young woman's heart.

Midnight had struck, the same night, more than an hour ago, the black and squalid Carrefour of St. Antoine was deserted; the houses that fringed it lay in darkness, yet in the main salon of one of them, though they could not be discerned by a passer-by, the lights still blazed, for the shutters were closed and bolted, the thick double curtains were drawn tight. On the table in the centre of the room were ample traces that two persons had recently sat down, and snuffed sumptuously. But there was only one person in the room, a woman copying from a roll of manuscript, and absorbed in her task. Save for the monotonous tick of the clock, and a curious muffled murmur which trickled through a door that faced the main entry, the silence in the strangely brilliant glare of the numerous candelabra was oppressively eery. Presently the woman threw down her pen and walked with a quick but graceful step in front of one of the many long mirrors that lined the walls. She inspected herself with a charmingly insolent cynicism. The glass, with truthful admiration, flashed back the reflection of a supple and exquisitely moulded figure, fair hair, bright blue eyes, and a skin on face, neck, and shoulders amazingly delicate in its blended tints of snow and rose. ## SUGGESTED IMPROVEMENTS.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

Sir,—The Board of Education have always posed as being superior in personnel and conducting their business better to all and any others. Just at the present they are under the limelight, and their action in one particular is being very generally, perhaps unfavorably discussed. This may be a good time to divert attention to other matters, especially concerning the Collegiate Institute, so dear to our hearts, and which I consider of some importance. A few days ago visited this institution, and I think any ordinary citizen, having the same opportunity of going through it, will agree with me that the committee of internal economy or management, are either very incompetent or deplorably careless.

The idea of the Rutan, or now known as the Smead Dowd system, was to combine ventilation with heating. The pure air was supposed to be taken from outside, heated and passed into the rooms. Whatever the success of this system, which is a very expensive one in the mass roomed buildings, as to the basement to which the children are taken, it is a complete, unmitigated failure, and it is to this special part of the building, I would direct attention, as the effluvia in the lavatories is simply awful, and if I had now, what in winter when windows and doors are closed. I would suggest as in some degree remedying this intolerable nuisance, the more free use of water by way of spray, or in such manner as to cover greater surface, and a better arrangement in applying the, taking away of poisonous effluvia, or raising the lower portions out of the river, the using of porcelain-lined receptacle and modified ventilation. I think what a door should be put on the rear of the basement, and not have the coal and pushy as wheeled out of a window and beyond all, the Board should not delay in putting up a fire escape. I consider that any collection of people in the lecture hall are exposed at any time to the danger of fire, with no means of escape. I would not approve of or make furniture, but I do think, a little expense in making the place less like a barn and more like a home, would be excusable. A few flowers, a few pictures, a little color. Who are the committee of management anyway? Publish the promises of the board every time, and always let us know what you are doing. Yours, to.,

I told the old farmer they were taking clock buttons up in town out of 'old potatoes,' whispered the city-borther who had just arrived, "You better be careful," whispered his friend.

"Why so?"

"Well, the farmers won't admit that the city folks can get ahead of them. Next thing he will be trying to make potatoes out of old clock buttons."

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least way to help. But with that, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Rhoo's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Rhoo's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Rhoo's Night Cure—is a tonic mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Rhoo's Restorative is wholly an internal tonic. The Restorative reaches through the entire system, seeking the repair of all diseased tissue, and all blood ailments. The "Night Cure" is so named implies, does work while you sleep. It soothes and induces mucous surface, heals local weaknesses, discharges, while the Restorative, causes excitement, gives renewed vigor and builds up wasted tissues, bringing about strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Rhoo's Restorative—its basis or Liquid—is a good tonic to the system. For positive local help, use

Mary Knew all About it.

Little Mary's father had been teaching her to walk properly. "Walk slowly and turn out your toes," he admonished her.

While she was undergoing this teaching she attended Sunday school one day. The golden text was "Teach me to walk honestly." After reciting it several times the teacher asked, "Who knows what that means?"

"I do," replied little Mary. "I know how to turn out your toes."

THE OLD COUNTRY AND HER COLONIES

Interview Between a British Journalist and a Young Calgary Citizen Leads to Some Plain Talk Along Useful Lines—What the Old Country Has Done and Is Doing for the World.

In the Birmingham (Eng.) Daily Chronicle of Oct. 1st Mr. Harold Baxby, staff writer, who recently visited Canada with a party of British journalists, relates an interesting and amusing interview he had with a Calgary citizen while touring the West. The young fellow spoke in a patronizing way about the old land and voiced his entire disapproval of imperialism. "No, sir! Imperialism isn't what I call business. Speaking metaphorically, I don't give a rod cent for the Old Country. I'm a Canadian, I don't know anything about the Old Country. My home is here, right here, in Calgary, and, sir, Canada is my country." Whereupon Mr. Baxby proceeded to tell the young man a few things which make good reading.

"My dear young gentleman," said I, taking him up, "I have heard ever since I set foot on Canadian soil too many pitying and patronizing references to the 'Old Country.' I am not a fighting man, and I carry no more dangerous weapon than an ivory nail cleaner 'ex athena loquent'—let me recommend the invention for importation—but if you will maintain a peaceful frame of mind and endeavor yourself not to foam at the mouth or draw a gun on me, I should like to tell you that my country, far from being old and outworn, is in the very flush and dawn of its manhood, that it is the greatest country in the world, that it has the pleasantest customs, the most agreeable manners, and infinitely the strongest arm of any other nation under the firmament. Further, I should like to tell you that without my country, the 'Old Country,' as you obligingly call it, your country could not exist for three generations of your people's life; and further, that if you were to cut the printer tomorrow it would not interrupt a single cricket match in England, or cool a single bowl of porridge on the western slopes of our Scottish Highlands. If you will journey to British Columbia and engage yourself in conversation with the old timers, you will find that what I have told you is their own settled and well-reasoned conclusion. No, young gentleman, be calm and receptive. The Old Country is on its legs. The lion is roaring. Be so good as to chew gum, spitting as little as is possible to your convenience, until I have finished the exordium."

What the Old Country Does.

"Now, young gentleman, I wish you particularly to bear in mind the following considerations whenever you hear your simple people talking hot air about the Old Country. It is from our islands that we send every year, and of our schools and universities, young and healthy boys, who rule vast provinces, and bless with justice millions of alien people. They ask no one to wave flags, but they maintain peace throughout India. They ask no one to sing Rule Britannia, but they sow with corn the desert of Egypt. Consider the miracle of Egypt! That miracle is the work of the Old Country—the work of her boys. From the same Old Country we draw boys who crowd the ships of Britain and protect on every sea the commerce of people kind enough to fly the Union Jack, and unkind enough to speak unkindly of the 'Old Country.' From the same country is directed the Consular Service, of which a noble use is made, without fee, by our hard-headed Britons beyond the seas.

"The health of the people of the Old Country, their share in the refinement of civilization, their wealth, their strength, and their learning continue to increase. Our men of science, our theologians, our publicists and newspapers illumine the world. Our politicians are long-headed, honorable men. Our banking business and our insurance business inhabit the lofty paces of security. There is nothing in all the work like the Manchester Ship Canal and the Dockyard at Portsmouth. We have a perfect post office. We have judges.

BEYOND REACH OF BRIBES. Newspapers beyond the reach of corruption, politicians who cannot be bought at. Our hospitals like the wonder of the world. Our charity is prodigious. The kindness and sweetness of our home life is not to be matched. We are civilized. We work, but we also live. We are rich, but we are also human. Listen, I pray you. This Great Britain of ours, young gentleman, is hopeful about its Colonies, and is proud of its Colonies, but a hen, even when her chickens have learned to peck for themselves, can still lay eggs. Pray do not think that Britannia is doddering. Britannia is no fool. Britannia is quite well, I think you. If you prefer American customs and manners, it is your business to go to America, and not the British spirit to ignore your policies, your home life, your literature, and your art—go before an audience of old timers and propose an application to Washington for pointless absorption. But whatever line you follow, be so good as

DISSIPATED ILLUSIONS.

This, and much more did I say, and the effect on my young Canadian was delightful to behold. I could almost see the shrinking of his head under this hillcock. He interrupted me no more. He crowded not again. Very modestly and charmingly he proffered the British Lion in a tawdry soda, protesting that he did not want to be absorbed by America, and expressing the hypothesis that Mr. Keir Hardie was not perhaps the complete study he had at first suspected him to be. "This idea of England was a place peopled with unemployed, where all the farms were neglected, and where all the upper classes were shuddering over glasses of sulphur water bottled in Germany."

He was a nice, good-faced, long-haired and exhausted young man whom George Hirst could have clean bowled five balls out of six, and who could not have lived even with the H. H. and in a Mexican saddle for ten minutes. We parted on the best of terms. The young gentleman went away, I am persuaded, with less patronizing notions about Great Britain, and with a cooler supply of hot air on his gum-numbered tongue. He will be henceforth a little centre of sweetness and light in the savage places of Canadian conceit.

SCHOOL BANKS

Children Take Great Interest and Results are Excellent.

Seven hundred dollars is now to the credit of the Port Hope school children in the Penny Bank, and the promoters of this scheme should feel highly pleased with this splendid result, says the Port Hope Guide.

The movement in favor of school savings banks is growing. They have long passed the experimental stage. The thriving, prosperous town of Galt claims the honor of being the first community to institute the system. Good results have followed, and it is now proposed to merge the school bank in the Penny Bank, formed in Toronto some time ago.

It is interesting to note that since the school children of Galt began their systematic plan of saving, twelve hundred separate accounts have been opened and over $9,000 collected, says the Woodstock Sentinel-Review. There are now over eight hundred accounts, representing a total savings of over $80,000, to be transferred to the Penny Bank. When a child has $200 to his credit the account is transferred to one of the chartered banks, and by that time it is hoped that the valuable lesson of economy and systematic saving will be so well learned as to last throughout the individual's life.

WILL TEST TOWN WATER

DECIDED AT MEETING OF WATER COMMISSIONERS MONDAY.

Numerous Accounts Passed—Other Business Attended to.

Recognizing the possibility of the town water becoming impure at any time without the knowledge of the users, the Water Commissioners decided, at their meeting Monday afternoon, to have it tested at stated intervals and inform the users as to its condition.

There were present at the meeting, Mr. J. D. Flavelle, chairman, Mayor Vrooman, and Messrs. J. R. McNeill and T. Brady. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

On motion Messrs. Johnston Ellis and J. A. Williamson, on behalf of the Agricultural Society, were heard. A leak in the service at the Agricultural Park had raised the charge considerably, and a reduction was requested. They claimed that the Water Commissioners had charge of the service, but the Commissioners explained that it was only out of courtesy, and that they have no supervision over a service after it leaves the street. The Agricultural Society also wanted a flat rate for the three days of the fair. On motion a flat rate of three dollars was granted, and the bill was reduced from $11.50 to $7.90.

LAKE SCUGOG FISH PRESERVES.

Mr. J. M. MIGHT Advocates Measures for Preservation of Spawning Beds.

The preservation of Scugog Lake as a hatching ground for muskellunge is the plan suggested in the following letter, which appeared recently in the Toronto World.

Editor World,—I am an old fisherman for pleasure, and have fished in a great number of our excellent waters inhabited by the finny tribe. My opinion is that there is no place in Ontario at least, so well adapted or suitable for the production of bass and muskellunge as Lake Scugog. It has more spawning ground, and apparently more food and better protection for the smaller fish than any waters in Ontario. That the Dominion government should allow this valuable hatchery to be destroyed through the waste of water at the Lindsay locks and want of proper attention appears to me to be a cruel thing simply by letting this waste continually go on to the extent that the water in the lake is so low, that in a severe winter many thousands of beautiful large fish are either frozen out or forced into so small a body of water under the ice that the air becomes exhausted and they die.

J. M. MIGHT.

LOCAL OPTION NOT A FAILURE IN TOWN OF MIDLAND

Town is Now Peaceable at all Hours, and Drunken Men no Longer Offend the Eye—Business Men Testify to the Marked Improvement Noticeable in the Payment of Debts.

Evening Post of Oct. 15

Our citizens no doubt perused with some little interest the rather remarkable interview with Mr. N. L. Doughty, declared temperance worker, which appeared in last night's issue. Mr. Doughty makes no secret of his opposition to prohibition and cal option as a means of combating the drink evil, and speaks of rights to be witnessed in these communities. It is only fair that the other side should be heard from. The following taken from a recent issue of the Midland Free Press, does not bear out the story told by Mr. Doughty.

Evidently, the publisher of the Orillia News-Letter is not in sympathy with local option. In last week's issue he quotes six police court fines, as reported in a recent issue of the Free Press, to show that local option in Midland does not serve the purpose for which it was intended. Apparently he wishes to discourage the citizens of Orillia in their efforts to secure local option in that town. Possibly the News-Letter is not aware that only three of the fines referred to were for drunkenness, and that the liquor was secured in Penetang. This is no street gossip or idle fancy, but it has been stated by one who knows, that the parties secured the liquor in Penetang. We might also inform the News-Letter—that in most cases where fines were imposed since local option came into force in Midland, when liquor was responsible, the liquor was obtained in Orillia or Penetang. We need only quote one example to prove this, that of the disturbance on the train on the night of the 100.F. excursion from Orillia, when several young men broke the car windows for which they paid a fine and costs. In submitting a local option by-law it is not expected to remove at once every drop of liquor from the community, nor stop entirely the sale of liquor. Men who are so void of principle as to violate the law under the license system, are not likely to submit to a local option measure without a strong fight, and to continue selling, if at all possible without detection.

We wish, however, to assure the citizens of Orillia and other towns, contemplating the submission of a local option by-law, that as far as Midland is concerned it is a decided success. We make this emphatic statement conscientiously for several reasons. The hotels and streets are one hundred per cent. quieter. The crowds that heretofore gathered around the hotel corners spilling tobacco juice on the sidewalks for ladies to mop up with their skirts are no more to be seen. At eleven o'clock and on to midnight, which in the past was the most uproarious time around the hotels, is now perfect quietness and respectability. No tottering, staggering, besotted specimens of humanity leaving the hotels at that hour for their homes, where their wives or mothers are anxiously awaiting their return. This, in an exceedingly large measure, is a thing of the past for Midland, and thank God we intend, by His help, it shall be so.

A few days ago the Clerk of the Division Court was over from Penetang, and in conversation with Mr. T. I. Trueman, town clerk, was asked how he found business. His reply was, "very quiet. Owing to local option very few court cases are coming from Midland." Still another: A gentleman holding a respectable position with the C. I. F. Co., stated to the writer that "there wasn't one-sixth of the garnishing of employees' wages this season as in previous years."

As corroboration of our statement re the success of local option, we would like to quote the statements made on Monday by a number of our merchants as to the effect of local option on their business.

The manager of the Hayfair, Preston Co. says: "There has been a satisfactory increase in our business so far over the past year, and while making this statement, I consider it unfair to local option to use a comparison of business under existing circumstances, as the conditions of the weather, and having other towns in close proximity, under the license system. With local option over the whole country it would be a phenomenal success, and mean a vast increase in all mercantile lines."

Hartman Bros. say: "Our business has increased 25 per cent., and less book accounts and more ready cash."

"Particularly noticeable," says Mr. E. H. Piggett, "is the collection of old accounts. Many accounts have been settled that were considered of little value. Our business has increased about 35 per cent. or 40 per cent. over last year, and the great portion of this can be attributed to local option."

Another whose word can be relied upon, is Mr. Frank Wilson. He says: "In the millinery department our business up to Sept. 1st, 1907, has increased $1,488.20, and in the general business $2063.44 over last year. On August 1, 1906, our book accounts, outstanding were $700, at this date they are less than $65. It is unusual now for a man to come in and ask for credit."

Mr. F. W. Jeffery says: "My business has increased, which is due to the fact that people have more money to spend now than formerly. Some two years ago we tried the cash system, but our business decreased. We have commenced doing a cash business again this year, and our business has increased. As police magistrate I believe local option has been a great benefit to the town. The post of the drunks brought before me for trial, as far as the court could learn, were made drunk at Penetang or other places."

"I would consider local option a success. I have not near so many, asking for credit since local option came into force. It is much easier to do business. People can pay better terms. I am convinced more than ever that local option is a most decided benefit to any community."

W. A. Simpson, butcher.

Mr. J. G. Marshall, butcher, says: "Our cash business during the past five months has increased 6 per cent. over the same period. The book accounts have increased on about the same proportion, with much less difficulty in collecting. Payments of all accounts have been made, and it is much easier and a greater pleasure doing business since local option came into force."

"Have had a marked increase in business this year and find collections easier, but just how much of this is due to local option I cannot say.—T. J. Campbell, plumber."

There is also an impression abroad that the Queen's hotel is not paying its way. We wish to state here that we have acquired into the matter and find that the hotel is proving quite satisfactory, and will pay 6 per cent. on the capital invested, and have a surplus. (The commercial trade has increased, and the refreshment department is well patronized. The hotel has a respectability and homelike appearance about it that is appreciated by the general public.)

THE POST CORRESPONDENTS' LETTERS

SOUTH VERULAM.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
The farmers are very busy in this locality at present with their root crops and making preparations for winter. Those who are fortunate enough to have grain to sell are wearing a pleasant smile at present, as all kinds of grain are greatly in demand. There is a great cry of scarcity of feed, and no doubt the supply is short of other years, but the situation doesn't warrant people getting panicky-stricken, as we have seen years in the past similar to this, and the winter turned out to be a good one. The consequence was that there was a good surplus of feed on hand when the spring came.

This has been a bad year for cheese factories, and worse still, for the milk drawers.

The people of this locality are always foremost to appreciate a good thing when they get it, as was evidenced last Thursday evening, when a few of the patrons met at the residence of Mr. W. J. Killaby, the director for the locality, and presented their milk drawer, Mr. George Sherman, with a beautiful gold chain and the following address: Mr. George Sherman.—We, a few of your friends and neighbors, have met to-night to express in a somewhat public way our appreciation of your many good qualities as a milk drawer. We were all amazed by your punctuality and obliging manner. Many of us feel that we have sometimes imposed too much on your good nature, as you were always ready and willing to do any of us a favor, and although it has not been a very successful year for milk drawers, there is a great consolation for you in the fact of knowing that you enjoy the esteem and good will of this entire neighborhood. We now ask you to accept this watch and chain as a slight assurance to you that we have been highly pleased with your services as a milk drawer. Signed on behalf of the patrons, W. J. Killaby, W. J. Fails, Robert White, Archie Campbell, Joe Davidson, Pat Brick.

OMEMEE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
The funeral of the late Michael Lowes was very largely attended on Tuesday. Deceased had reached the age of 79 years, being hale and hearty up to last winter, when asthmatic troubles took a serious turn. The deceased was one of the first settlers in Emily, and leaves a magnificent farm and home to his son, Wm. Lowes, the present owner of the township and a widow, who will mourn the loss of an affectionate parent and husband. There are now only a few of the first settlers left. Deceased was a Conservative in politics, and a member of the Anglican church. The Rev. Mr. Treney conducted the funeral services.

The anniversary services held in the Presbyterian church on Sunday, and Monday last proved a grand success in every respect. The weather was all that could be desired, and the church was crowded to its utmost capacity on Sunday to listen to the eloquent and profitable sermons delivered by Rev. Kinnawin, B.A., B.D. of Woodville, former minister here. The music by the choir was excellent, supported by Mrs. (Dr.) Snellgrove, Miss Annie Ivory and Mrs. T. C. Ivory, whose numbers were delightful. The tea and concert on Monday were one of the best held in Omemee, everyone going away well pleased. After the ladies had served refreshments, all adjourned to the body of the church, where addresses were given by the Rev. Treney, Kinnawin, McCulloch, Mrs. Thompson and Snellgrove. Proceeds clear $150.

Some of the farmers' orchards are suffering from frost. All apples should be picked at once, in order to get a good market.

Miss Sanderson, of Lindsay, attended the Presbyterian church anniversary services here.

Capt. New, late of the Yukon, is here, after serving two years in Dawson City. He says reports of the wickedness of the place are badly exaggerated and nothing said about the good people and good works.

WOODVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Mrs. Rodman returned to her home in Little Britain, after spending a week with Mrs. C. H. Caverly are. Mrs. Campbell, of Eldon Station, visited our town on Wednesday.

The Rev. Mr. Peckover, of Omemee, occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church on Sunday last, while Mr. Kinnawin took charge of the anniversary services at Omemee.

Mr. Pearson, representing the Ames, Holden Co., of Toronto, visited our burg this week.

Rev. Mr. Whittam, Mr. Cecil Smith, and Mr. Will Rich attended the fowl supper at Dearyville on Monday evening.

Miss Alice Campbell, who has been employed in McLaughlin's drug store for some years, left on Monday morning for Cakwood, where she has secured a position in the post office. Her many friends wish her every success.

Rev. Mr. Whittam attended the convention of Manilla on Tuesday last.

Dental.—Dr. Bowerman will be at the Queen's hotel on Friday, Nov. 1st.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Stephens, Ops.

Hannah Parkin, relict of the late Edward Stephens, departed this life at the home of R. G. Parks, lot 15, con. 4, Ops. on Oct. 6th, 1907. The deceased was in her eightieth year, being born in Sutton, in Ashfield, England, in 1828. She came over to Canada in 1829, being the fourth daughter of the late Samuel Parkin, of Nottingham, England, who came to Ops as one of the early pioneers. After her marriage she resided in Morrisburg, thence in Laxton, where her husband died ten years ago. She was the child of christian parents, her father being a deacon in the Baptist church in Sutton in Ashfield, England, before he immigrated to Canada.

Seven children, who still survive here, are left to mourn the loss of a devout and loving mother, ever ready to sacrifice her all for her children. It so happened that she came back near to her old home to die. The day before her spirit fled she quoted the first four lines of the "Old Oak Tree," by Samuel Woodworth.

She leaves one sister and one brother to mourn her loss, Mrs. John Calvert, of Bond-st., and Mr. Alfred Parkin, of Elgin-st., Lindsay.

Why be a Drunkard?

"I tried to cure my husband of drinking by using your liquid tonic," writes Mrs. Euphemia McFadden, "and I placed a few drops in his coffee three times a day. At the end of one week declared the old taste for liquor had gone, and that now he could pour it down his throat without knowing how much he's taking."

JIMMY REYNOLDS WALKING

KEEPS UP PACE OF FIVE MILES AN HOUR.

Expected to Make 138 Miles in 36 Hours—His Progress.

Evening Post of Oct. 23.
Port Hope, Ont., Oct. 22.—Jimmy Reynolds, the 57-year-old barber-pedestrian, left the Queen's hotel yesterday morning shortly after 6 o'clock on his second attempt to cover the Port Hope to Toronto and return walking route in a limited time. On this occasion he aims to make the round trip in 36 hours' time, although he failed in his previous attempt to make it in 38 hours.

His pace westward as far as Newcastle has been over 5 miles an hour, but the expediency of this rapid pace is doubtful. Notwithstanding his advanced age, Reynolds believes that he can materially lower the amateur record established last week by Langford, of 89 hours and 3 minutes.

What he has to do.
Reynolds' present attempt is made on the basis of 1 to 2 that he can make the trip in 36 hours, and even money that he will accomplish the feat in 38 hours.

Local opinion favors the latter proposition, but the 36 hour limit is regarded as altogether impossible. Reynolds was accompanied by two local men, J. Henderson and R. Woodcock, who will act in the capacity of trainer and pacer respectively.

Bowmanville, Oct. 22.—Jimmy Reynolds, the plucky Port Hope pedestrian, passed through this town at 10:42 a. m. He left Port Hope at 6:02 this morning, arrived at Bowmanville at 8:22 and Newcastle at 9:25. He is fully 35 minutes ahead of the time made by Dr. Langford, the Renfrew walker, who covered the distance last week.

In Same Old Garb.
The 57-year-old barber is dressed in same old slouch hat as he wore on June 25, when he was prostrated by the extreme heat between here and Newcastle. He wears short trousers and a sweater. He was as chip and cheerful as a bird and stepped along as nimbly as a school-boy on his way to dinner.

Reynolds has the opposition of a very strong wind that is blowing from northwest almost a gale. Great hopes are entertained that he will cut down Langford's record, but few believe that he can do the distance in 36 hours, although he appears to be in better condition than when he attempted the feat in June.

Crowds of citizens greeted him and gave him cheering words as he passed through King-st. Oshawa, Oct. 22.—Jimmy Reynolds arrived in Oshawa on his trip from Port Hope to Toronto and return. Just as the factory whistles were blowing at 1 o'clock, exactly, seven hours since leaving Port Hope.

Later reports state that Reynolds reached Toronto at 10:10 last evening, well inside the time. A big crowd escorted him through the city streets and cheered the plucky barber to the echo. He was given a rub-down at the King Edward, and started on the return trip with the wind in his back. Norway was reached at 12:03 a. m., and the Half-way house at 1:17 a. m.

Thursday Morning.
Reynolds reached the Queen's hotel, Port Hope, at 6:20, thus finishing the 138 miles in 36 hours and 20 minutes and taking hours off Langford's time. He was accepting 21 odds that he could do the distance in 36 hours, and even money that he could do it in 38 hours. Considering his age, his success is phenomenal.

SEPARATION FROM COUNTY IS MOOTED

Mayor Vrooman and Other Speakers Present Statistics Thereon.

Lively Discussion at Meeting of Board of Trade Last Tuesday to Consider Separation of Town From County.

Evening Post of Oct. 23.
The question of the separating of Lindsay from the County of Victoria was the all-important subject at the meeting of the Board of Trade last night, and the problem when viewed from all sides, proved to be a hard one to solve. The matter was, finally, on motion of Mr. Jas. Staples, seconded by Mr. D. Cinnamon, left in the hands of a committee comprising Messrs. Thos. Stewart, Jas. Graham, D. Ray, F. C. Taylor, J. H. Sutherland and J. D. Flavell, for investigation.

There were present at the Board meeting President Kyle, Secretary Donald, and Messrs. F. C. Taylor, W. C. T. Morson, Newton Smale, D. Ray, J. D. Flavell, Mayor Vrooman, J. H. Sutherland, T. Fleury, J. Staples, G. H. Wilson, Reeve Begg, Ald. Webdon, Dep.-reeve Jordan, T. Stewart, Jas. Graham, W. B. Spurling, Robt. Ross, Ald. McLennan, and many more. After the minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed, President Kyle introduced the subject of separation and called on Mayor Vrooman.

On rising to his feet Mayor Vrooman said the subject had been broached to him by several prominent men. He had called an informal meeting of the Town Council and had purposely not invited the press. "The press gets its back up very easily," said the Mayor, "and attempts to 'hit back' when not invited." After this passing pleasantry his Worship went on to say that any town of 5,000 inhabitants could separate from the County, if desirable. If the town of Lindsay could save a few hundred dollars, he said, it should separate. But if separation was considered the County Council should be approached in a spirit of conciliation, and the matter clearly explained. If the County Council will view the proposition agreeably, the separation could be accomplished with benefit to Lindsay; if, on the contrary, they were opposed to it, they could not prevent the separation, but could make the expense considerably more for Lindsay. The Mayor then proceeded to read an editorial in a recent issue of The Post concerning separation; he scathingly criticized the spirit of the article, and regretted its publication, which, he claimed, was almost enough to stop the movement there and then. The article mentioned that the town representatives in the County Council had been treated indifferently, and their influence was very little. "Now, gentlemen," said the Mayor, "if you are going to approach the County Council in that spirit, they will hold you down to the very neck."

His Worship proceeded to give various statistics on the question. The average county rate is $3700. In the building of roads and bridges, stone crushing, etc., the town pays its share, but gets little benefit. The town pays $1549 for the administration of justice, and it would be approximately the same if the town was separated. The town owns about one-seventh of the county buildings, and if the County Council was favorable to the separation scheme the town could get the value of this one-seventh; if not, it could not get a cent. The exact financial difference was difficult to precisely estimate, as a good deal depended on the feeling of the County Council in the matter. Arbitration might have to be resorted to before it was settled. The schools would lose money, in the speaker's estimation. The separation would not off at the attendance, but the county would reduce their grant 20 per cent. Here Mr. J. D. Flavell took issue with the Mayor, but was repulsed. "I had enough difficulty in making out my case without interruption from anybody," declared his Worship. He then took the Library grant and the amount of $150 for the support of two boys at the Industrial School, making $225; the total cost of separation to the town, thus leaving a yearly saving to the town of $1425. "That," concluded the Mayor, "I think we should go very slowly and carefully in this matter, and, really, he added, 'I think the question might better stand for a time. It is a most important one.'"

MR. GRAHAM'S VIEWS.
The second speaker called upon was Mr. Jas. Graham, who, as everybody knows, is deeply versed in county and town municipal matters, and has had a long experience. The consensus of his remarks indicated that he favored the separation on the ground that it would save the town at least from ten to fifteen hundred dollars annually. The great question was, in his opinion, that of the administration of justice. Taking as a basis is the amount paid to Victoria county for the benefit of the latter county's administration of justice, Mr. Graham estimated Lindsay's share paid to the county for the administration of justice as $1,373.36. The average cost to the County of Victoria for administration of justice is $9,135: Haliburton pays $550, and as Lindsay is on a basis of about 13 per cent, or one eighth, which will next year be raised to 16 per cent, on increased valuation of the town, he based his estimate as above. For this sum of $1,373.36 good value was received, in Mr. Graham's opinion. The share of the expenses of the Registry office, $25, keep of inmates in the House of Refuge $700, less in education $400, and other similar grants made by the County, which would probably be withdrawn, were taken up by Mr. Graham, who estimated these amounts in round sums. He thus figured out the total value of our connections with the county, to the town, to be $28,460, or in round figures $3000. The amount levied on the town is $4261, leaving a saving of 1261 if separated. Regarding the Ross Hospital grant, Mr. Graham said that such a thing should not deter the municipality of Lindsay from separating from the county, if it was to the financial interests of the town.

Ald. Weldon—"Have you taken into consideration the grants the county allows the Country Association, the Historical Society, the Law Association, and other town institutions? The County Council might also take the county buildings away from town. Omemee would be glad to get them."

Mr. Graham—"I consider the first query on a par with the idea of the County Council moving their buildings away from Lindsay. (Laughter.) When the County Council makes a grant to chicken shows and rifle associations, it does not make grants to Lindsay. (Cheers.) As for the historical society, there is no such organization in existence. (Laughter.)"

In conclusion Mr. Graham "went for" The Post, and repudiated the spirit of an editorial on the subject of separation, declaring that in his many years' experience in the County Council the Lindsay representatives have been generously treated.

MR. J. D. FLAVELL'S VIEWS.
It is exceedingly unfortunate that the editorial appeared in The Post, began Mr. J. D. Flavell, on arising to his feet, "and I am doubtful if it is wise to proceed now, owing to that article." The speaker felt the matter should be thrashed out a good deal more, and suggested that a committee be formed to probe into the full details, and, if necessary, hire an expert to assist them. In his presentation of the case he dealt with the position the town would occupy if the Council took an unfavorable view of separation, and arbitration was resorted to. He estimated the loss on the educational grant to be $719, public school inspectors $120, public library $50, and various other grants made to the town, with the cost of administration of justice would total to $200 at least, in excess of the present sum the town pays the county, his figures thus differing materially from the two former speakers. "It is dangerous to sever connections," he said, "and we should get all the information possible on the subject." Peterboro town and county had always been at "larger heads" with each other, and the separation was on account of this. The Peterboro Fair was never a success owing to this condition of things.

Mr. T. Stewart, expressed the opinion that if arbitration was resorted to, it would cost at least $100 a day.
Mr. Staples—"I feel the town and county have sense enough to deal with the matter without arbitration."
Mr. F. C. Taylor—"I feel matters should rest right there. My feelings on the question are very strong. It's worth $1,000 to be connected with the county."
The motion forming a committee, as given above, was then made, and, on being put to a vote, passed. The meeting then adjourned.

COMMUNICATIONS.

CO-OPERATION IN FRUIT GROWING.

(To the Editor of The Post.)
Dear Sir,—I have been requested by some that are interested in fruit growing to give to your readers a few pointers that I have gained in coming in contact with fruit growers elsewhere. I have failed yet to find a man that goes into fruit growing from a business standpoint to say that it would not turn down every other product of the farm. True, we in this section are handicapped for a market, and are at the mercy of the few dealers that are handling them. Our orchards are small and scattered, but the commercial apples that are grown throughout the county of Victoria, such as the Ben Davis, Stark, Pomona, Fameuse, Wapiti, etc., whenever the orchard has had half fair play, compare favorably with any in Ontario, and are of a fair better color and healthy condition than those of the Georgian Bay and Simcoe districts.

For many years the growers in these districts labored against the difficulties that exist in Victoria County at present, but a number of years ago the Georgian Bay district organized into a Co-operative Shipper Association, and is at present the largest shipping association in Ontario, having upwards of 500 members growing, from 1 to 40 acres of apples yearly. Mr. J. S. Mitchell, their secretary, is vice-president and manager. Last year the Simcoe district organized with Mr. W. Beacom, Orléans, as president and manager. A number of these associations get the full value of their product less expenses, whether it be 1 barrel or 100 barrels. Now, the present quotations for commercial apples are: No. 1, $3.75 to $4.50 per barrel; No. 2, $2.50 to $3, according to variety on board cars at shipping points in Ontario. At least one-half of the product of the orchards in Victoria are No. 1 apples, thus making an average price for Nos. 1 and No. 2 apples at about $3.50 per barrel on cars; cost of packing and shipping barrels, 35c. each; picking and packing, 25c. per barrel; incidental expenses, 25c. per barrel. The real value of the orchard on the farm is $2.65 per barrel, according to export quotations.

Now, I feel strongly that there is no reason that any dealer should have $1.60 per barrel for the use of his money from here to Winnipeg and other points. I think an early organization of the fruit growers would be a great benefit in this county, as a good many of the farmers are selling young orchards. One man on the Scotch Line, Verulam, who has two good orchards with heavy crops this year, set 287 trees last spring, and has ordered about 300 for next spring, and a great many of his neighbors are following him on a smaller scale. I think that in a very short time the farmer of Victoria will be getting as good value for his orchard product as any other country, for as a rule they can grow as good commercial apples as can be found, where a little attendance is given to their orchards. The cost of pruning, mulching and spraying of a first-class orchard that is bearing, is estimated at about 20 cents a tree.

(Thanking you for space in your valuable paper, I remain—Yours, etc.,

"STROLLER" AND IRISHMEN.

(To the Editor of The Post.)
Dear Sir,—I was very much surprised to notice in "Stroller's" remarks, which appeared in your issue of Friday, a contemptuous reference to Irishmen, whom he classed with Socialists and Anglophobic Americans. A man of "Stroller's" pretensions must be aware that "Home Rule Irishmen" and "Irishmen" are one and the same except in a small minority of cases, where self-interest on religious prejudice tempt the excepted ones to desire the continuance of "Downing Street" rule in Ireland. Surely, it is the most natural thing in the world for a man to want his country to have the right to manage its own affairs. "Stroller" well knows how obnoxious it would be to have Canadian mail cars controlled by the Imperial parliament. (Then why does he oppose the much stronger claim of Ireland to home rule? Ireland had its own parliament before the Dominion of Canada was ever thought of. Now, the Act of Union, which robbed Ireland of its parliament, was unconstitutional, even if it had not been passed by the aid of bribery and gross corruption. The Irish parliament, which presumed to endorse the Act of Union, had no title of rights or authority to surrender Ireland's right to its own then existing parliament without the expressed mandate of the Irish people. (This was never obtained, and therefore the Act of Union, which was foisted on the people of Ireland by the British government, was, and is, UNCONSTITUTIONAL. The Irish people are now offering to accept a fair com-

NEW SCHOOL READERS

To be Prepared—Local Principal on Committee.

Principal G. E. Broderick, of the Lindsay Public Schools, has been appointed one of the Consultative committee to assist Dr. Goggin to prepare a new set of Public school readers. The committee has been chosen because of their knowledge of Public schools and their literary attainments.

The Minister of Education's official statement is, "That the Ontario Readers, after twenty years' of service, should now give place to a set of readers that would reflect more correctly our nationality of to-day; that would be more in accord with educational principles in character of matter, arrangement and adaptation to the needs of the various grades; that would be models of excellence in illustration, type, paper, and binding; and that a separate reader be supplied for the work of each grade."

PRINCIPAL WILL STAY TILL MIDSUMMER

Matters Discussed at Last Night's Meeting of Board of Education—Resignation of Classical Master McDonald an Unlooked-for Deflection—Will be Lecturer at Queen's University, Toronto.

A special meeting of the School Board was called at the Council chamber last evening. There were present, Chairman T. Stewart and Messrs. Edwards, Carw, McWaters, J. W. Anderson, McIntyre, Flavell, Jackson, and Drs. White, Blanchard and Walters.

COMMUNICATIONS

A communication was read from Mr. McDonald, Classical Master of the Collegiate Institute, tendering his resignation from the staff and wishing it to take effect at Christmas holidays. He also stated that the position he had accepted was lecturer at Queen's University, and that he had tried to defer his going until next fall, but the university authorities would not allow him to stay. He was leaving the staff of the Collegiate with no fault to find with the school, the Board or its teachers, and with the sole desire to improve his position.

Moved by Dr. Blanchard, seconded by Mr. McIntyre, that the resignation of Mr. McDonald be accepted and the Advisory Committee be instructed to take steps to fill the vacancy, thus caused at the earliest opportunity.—Carried.

THE PRINCIPAL'S GOING

Mr. Flavell moved, seconded by Mr. Carw, that the resignation of Mr. J. C. Harstone as principal of the Collegiate Institute, to take effect at midsummer of next year.

Mr. Flavell said he had no desire to reopen the question in reference to the Principal, but he thought that it would be a sad mistake, as far as the school's best interests were concerned, to allow two teachers to withdraw from the staff at Christmas, as it could only result disastrously to the work of the year. He made such an important change when the term was only half completed. He also thought that the board would stand a better chance of securing a first-class man by making the change after the year's work had been finished, as no good man would leave his school with his year's work unaccomplished.

Mr. Carw said he had looked into the matter and had come to the same conclusion as had Mr. Flavell. He would strongly urge on the board to retain Mr. Harstone's services until the term's work had been completed.

Mr. Jackson said he was unavoidably detained from the last meeting of the board. He was not bitterly opposed to Mr. Harstone, as had been said by a member of the board at its last meeting, but he was prepared to sacrifice all personal considerations in order to do what he considered to be his duty. He thought a change of principals would be for the best interests of the school, and he was still of the opinion. In regard to asking Mr. Harstone to continue with the board until midsummer holidays, he had made that suggestion at a previous meeting, as he believed it to be in the best interests of the school, and he would support Mr. Flavell's motion.

Chairman Stewart said that at the previous meeting of the Board, it had been decided that it was desirable to have a change of principals at the Collegiate but as there has been no full discussion as to when he had no objection to having the resignation take place at midsummer. If he thought the resolution was intended to effect the decision of the Board, expressed by their vote, he would oppose it, but would now support Mr. Flavell's resolution, with the understanding that this would end it.

Mr. Flavell said the matter would be decided as far as he was concerned. Several other members expressed themselves to the same effect, but Mr. Staples, taking an adverse view, wished the resignation to go into effect at Christmas.

A vote on the motion was taken, with Messrs. Staples and McWaters voting nay.

An amount of $85 for apparatus for the Collegiate Institute, secured from England, was on motion ordered to be paid.

The Board then adjourned.

"What's your salary, sir?" she said. "Ten plunks a week my pretty maid."

THE 'FOWL SUPPER' SEASON USHERED IN

Most Successful Affair at Methodist Church, Emily, Monday Night—Bounteous Feast Spread Before Hundreds of Guests—Splendid Program Rendered in Which Lindsay Talent Assisted.

Evening Post of Oct. 22.
Never does life on the farm present such an enjoyable aspect, such a "round of pleasure", than during the fowl supper period. Then it is that the farmers, with their wives and gleeful youngsters, for miles around the villages from hamlets far and near, and dozens of townspeople, unite as one big family around the festive board and discuss the weather, the crops and the cattle prices, over heaped platefuls of appetizing fowl. Hard work is forgotten, the crops are safe in the barn, and the cattle well housed. The farmer feels happy, and the feeling is infectious. Everyone is bubbling over with fun and good nature, and the evening passes quickly and most enjoyably.

AN EVENT IN EMILY.

Such an event was the fowl supper at the Methodist church of Salem, Emily, last night. The evening was an ideal one. A tang of frost in the calm atmosphere sent the blood tingling through the body, and the keen ozone whetted everybody's appetite in preparation for the feast. The ladies' noon was in the ascendancy in all its glory. Such a night, and the promise of such a good time! It was impossible for one to let the opportunity pass.

The occasion was the anniversary of Salem church. Special services were preached on Sunday, and the celebration was continued on Monday. The fowl supper was heard of far and near, and the crowd was—well, it was a great crowd in more ways than one. In the Orange hall, across the road from the church, the tables were spread and groined with the good things prepared by the thirty ladies of the church for the hungry ones. For the modest sum of twenty-five cents admission was obtained. Waiters were plentiful, and it was as easy enough to secure a seat, the best was easy.

THE CONCERT.

When every man and woman, old and less, had their fill, the crowd adjourned to the church, where a concert was in progress. As before, the building was solidly packed, and dozens had to stand. Rev. Wilson, the pastor, was chairman, and in his introductory remarks commented on the large attendance, and the general success of the affair. The choir then sang the anthem, "Passing Through the King's Highway", after which Rev. Smith, of Dunsford, and Rev. Butler, a college friend of the pastor, gave suitable and appreciated addresses. A solo, "Long Live the King," by J. N. Gray, of Lindsay, was applauded to the echo. The hit of the season, "Dreaming", was the next number, and was sung by Mr. Chas. Perkins, also of Lindsay, in a rich, tenor voice. Mr. McGregor, of the Bank of Commerce, played the accompaniment for these two numbers. Following these Miss Eva Kennedy sang, "The Old Church Choir," in a pleasing and spirited style. Mr. J. N. Gray again heard, this time giving the sacred solo, "Hail, Thou My Hand," and the final number was another vocal solo, "Mother dear, I'm Coming Home," by Miss E. Kennedy. The evening ended with the singing of the national anthem.

With the most pleasant recollections the farmer and his wife, the lad and his sweetheart, climbed into their buggies and drove home. Among those from Lindsay who attended the affair were Misses Valeria Vickery and Maggie Gray, and Messrs. George and Batoche Terry, Ernest Ferguson, L. Goheen, Leonard D. Nesbitt, Leon Koyl, Gerald Warner, J. O'Halloran, and others.

MAY MAKE CANAL WIDER.

Increase in Beam of Vessels Makes Change Advisable.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Lieut. H. H. Roseau, civil engineer, in the United States navy, and a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission, has arrived here from the isthmus and laid before Secretary McCall a proposition to increase the projected width of the Panama Canal, which is now planned at 100 feet in the locks. The recommendation is based upon the rapid increase of beam in naval construction since the canal plans were formed. Secretary McCall will take up the matter with the president as soon as possible.

The Man Who Raised It Bought It Back at World's Record Price.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Two hundred and fifty dollars was the record price paid to-day for a single ear of corn.

The ear, a "Boone county white," was knocked down to the highest bidder in an auction at the National Corn Exposition at the Coliseum. The purchaser, who at the same rate per ear would have paid $15,000 for a bushel, was the man who raised it, L. B. Glover, a tall farmer from Franklin, Ind.

The ear was one of ten that took the sweepstakes in their class.

BASEBALL.

THE BATTING AVERAGE

Danny Sinclair, of the champion Orioles, is the heavy hitter of the Town League this year. Danny Swatted the leather at a .390 clip. Langston has an average of .300, but did not participate in more than three or four games. Mr. Sinclair gets his pick of the splendid array of bats in J. W. Wakely's store. We advise him to get a good big one. Following are the players who batted .200 or higher:

Langdon	500
Sinclair	380
Perkins	380

RUNNING.

MARATHON COURSE SHORT.

Sturdivant wasn't far out when he claimed the Ward Marathon course, which Longboat ran in a little over one hour and forty-one minutes, was not 20 miles. F. C. Flanagan, of the I.A.A.C., measured it recently, and found it to be one mile, 1,010 yards short.

The Hamilton Herald road race record is 1:48.42, and is held by Sammy Mellors, of Yonkers, N. Y. He made it in 1902.

Fowler, of Boston, who ran second to Longboat in the Boston Marathon, will be a starter in the Hamilton Herald road race. Art Burn, of Calgary, the Western champion, is expected down.

Arthur Burn, heralded by the Vancouver World as the future champion runner of Canada, is the idol of Westerners. In Calgary, that paper says: They are all ready to throw down their best clothes on the muddy streets so that he will not dirty his shoes in walking along the thoroughfares and wherever he has gone he has received a warm welcome that cannot be entirely attributed to his athletic ability. The Toronto Star says: Maybe they will let Burn walk on their clothes in Calgary, but down around Peterboro they would walk him around in the mud in his sock-feet. They still cherish the memory of sundry foot races pulled off there with Bolland and others.

RUGBY.

F. C. Flanagan won the all-round championship of the I. C. A. C. Torontos, at their recent games.

The Hamilton Tigers, rugby champions of Canada, redeemed themselves by downing the Toronto Argonauts 24-6 on Saturday.

Ottawa College are jubilant over their defeat of Toronto Varsity in Hagtown on Saturday in the Inter-Collegiate Rugby League.

Baltimore defeated the "Old Orioles" 5-2 in the final game of the series. Matthews and "Wild Bill" Donovan pitched for the old boys. Kelly led at bat.

The Calgary citizens are raising a fund to send Burns east to run against Longboat. Writing from Calgary, Fred Lepper, a Toronto ball player, says Burns is a kind of a dark horse, and wants to be known as such.

Frank Grace, one of King John's heroes team who toured Australia, is the first to return home.

Tom Longboat failed to break the three mile record of 15.05 at the Varsity games yesterday. His time was 15.09.

"Mike" Irwin, who left lately for California, will be missed in hockey circles. "Mike" was a crack goaltender.

Fred Mitchell, the Toronto pitcher, has had his arm successfully treated by Bonsetter Reese. It is now in good shape.

"Ty" Cobb, the Tigers' heaviest hitter, will be presented with a souvenir by the citizens of his home town, Ralston, Georgia.

Jack Caffery, the Hamilton runner, who won the Boston Marathon twice, and who later retired from athletic life, is in training again.

The annual lacrosse game between Melbourne and Adelaide universities, played the last of August, resulted in favor of Adelaide by 11 goals to 2.

Eddie Dugan, the jockey, has, it is said, been signed to ride for Harry Payne Whitney next season. It is reported he will receive a salary of $15,000.

A big day of sports on Christmas day is being discussed in Y. M. C. A. circles. Christmas and New Year's are popular dates in Hamilton and other cities.

The president of the Chicago Board of Education says that the bible is unfit for children. What would he have read in the schools—the official baseball guide?

A. C. Jewell, the walker, who won second place to Charlie Skene in the fall championships, will be a starter in the Guelph 10-mile walk on Thanksgiving day.

The hockey boys unite in extending the heartiest congratulations to Mr. Kenneth Lane on joining the ranks of the benedicti. Kenny is a clever hockey player, and figured on the Y. M. C. A. Town League team last season. The boys are sorry to

John J. Daly, of the I. A. A. C., New York, won the 10 mile championship race recently at New York. Time 55.36.

G. Rogers, of the I.C.B.U., a 16-year old lad won the bicycle race for the Dundas Trophy against 64 competitors.

David Langford lost a pile of long greens through being an hour late. Such is life, Dave; one always has to be there on time.

Eugene Tremblay, champion light-weight wrestler of the world, defeated Young Muldoon, of New York at Stormer Park, Montreal, last Sunday in a match, the best two out of three falls. Tremblay won the first fall in seventeen minutes. The second fall also went to the champion in eight minutes.

Records are either being made or uncharted every week now, says the Exbridge Journal. The distance from Port Perry was done by one of our business men a few years ago in 2:45, but he jogged the hills. We know a girl who thinks nothing of walking to Siloam in 35 minutes. The latter is called 6 miles and Epsom 5.

W.C.T.U. Notes.

The annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held in the Y.M.C.A. parlors Tuesday, Oct. 15th. Minutes of the annual meeting were read and adopted, also the treasurer's report. The secretary then gave her report for the year. There were nine regular meetings and one special. The purpose of the special was to fill out a form to suppress on prohibiting the selling of all intoxicants and opiates to uncivilized races everywhere, especially in China. The Francis "Wildard Day" was also observed very fittingly, after which a delectable lunch was served, promoting sociability. The "Temperance Leaflets" have been provided by the Union, and distributed in the different Sunday schools. A social evening was given for the T's in the gymnasium, the proceeds to be used in helping to defray the expenses of our delegate to the convention. An anti-cigarette gleba-olite was also submitted and heartily endorsed.

The secretary's report was accepted, after which Miss Elsie Rider favored the meeting with a solo, "Oh, dry those tears." The Vice-President then took the chair, and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Paton; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. Weldon; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. Mitchell; 3rd vice-pres., Mrs. Matthews; treasurer, Mrs. Rea; cor. and proc., Mrs. Sharp; sup. of juvenile work, Miss Elsie Rider; assistant of juvenile work, Dr. Olive Rea.

CONCERT AT ST. JOSEPH'S

PRESENTATION OF MEDALS AND OTHER PRIZES TO PUPILS.

Program a Most Pleasing One—Principal Broderick's Remarks. Evening Post of Oct. 22

A numerous and delighted audience of parents and friends thronged the music room and halls of St. Joseph's Academy last evening at 8 o'clock, the hour appointed for the opening of a program prepared in connection with the annual commencement exercises of that well known educational institution. So popular are the occasional entertainments arranged under the supervision of the good Sisters that the ground floor of the convent would not suffice to accommodate their guests if they chose to invite other than parents and friends of the pupils under their charge.

The concert was, as usual, thoroughly enjoyable, everything combining to delight the artistic sense of the audience, disarm criticism and render the choice of favorite performers a most difficult proceeding. Every number on the program given below was deservedly applauded.

Short addresses, congratulating the Sisters and their changes on the grand results achieved during the year just closed, were made by Vesp. Archdeacon Casey, Fr. F. J. O'Sullivan, Port Hope, Fr. Fitzpatrick, of Emismore, Fr. O'Leary, of Galway, Senator McHugh and Principal G. E. Broderick, of Lindsay Model School. The latter bore witness to the thoroughness of the training of convent pupils—a fact forced upon his attention constantly during the twenty years he had been presiding over the Model School. Invariably he found the young ladies sent up from the convent displaying a marked proficiency, a high and unflinching courtesy, and a proper conception of everyday duty, that was marked with sympathy and help for all about them. (Applause.) The program came to a close at 10.30 o'clock, everyone feeling that the evening had been well too short.

A Religious Jokesmith.

(From the Philadelphia Ledger.) A stickler for the good old ways, which we all admit to be the best, dropped in from church to see a writer.

To the great surprise and horror of the Sunday visitor, the writer was at work. The cheery click, click of the typewriter sounded from his den. "Oh, my dear man," exclaimed the shocked caller, "you have not so far forgotten your early training as to be composing on Sunday?" "Oh, my dear, only jokes—and they are all jokes on religious subjects."

AN IMPORTANT MATTER.

The Council of the Board of Trade met on Thursday and discussed the advisability of separating the town of Lindsay, as a municipality, from the County of Victoria. Figures were given by Dr. Vrooman and Mr. J. S. Graham, which, if correct, would certainly warrant us as a town in demanding separation. According to the most conservative estimate, it is costing us $1500 per year to belong in the county, but Mr. Ray, who is an authority, states that it would cost more like $2500. At all events, we would save interest on from $30,000 to $50,000 of our debenture debt, and we need to start saving somewhere. It was decided to call a meeting of Board to discuss the matter, and if thought advisable, to petition the Council to submit a by-law to the people, which it seems is necessary.

SEPARATION FROM THE COUNTY

Evening Post of Oct. 23
In reporting and commenting on things that happen, it is difficult to know just what to do. This is especially difficult in the case of public meetings, and the closer we get to home, the more dangerous is the ground we tread upon. It would seem to us necessary to either not report the proceedings at all, or to do so in a way that would not be taken as a recommendation. During the present civic administration we have been called down several times for reporting things just as we heard them. We said nothing, taking our medicine like men, but there is such a thing as asking us to swallow too much.

Last evening, at the meeting of the Board of Trade, several of the speakers—namely Mr. Worthington, the Mayor—took occasion to find fault with us for an article we had in Monday's issue calling attention to this meeting, and for giving some of the reasons why separation should take place. These reasons are not our reasons. We have not thought of the subject sufficiently to take either one side or the other, but our representative was at a meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade the previous week, where the only speakers were the Mayor, Mr. James Graham, Mr. Ray and ex-Ald. John O'Reilly, and their talk, boiled down, was exactly as we put it in our article, in fact had we reported it in the Mayor's own words he would probably be the most surprised man in town.

We take issue with those who imagine that our article would be antagonistic to the county members in any other way than financially. It looked to us like a temper in a tear-gas. Because we take the Mayor's words, and say that they laugh at Lindsay when the town asks for a vote of money, it does not necessarily treat them unbecomingly, and as for Lindsay getting its share of offices, that feature of it never was mentioned; but if we have to go, that to hand, to the County Council yearly for money that are ours by right and justice, it would seem that something is wrong. One former member of the County Council informs us that very often it was a case of scratching backs to get justice for Lindsay, and another former member said that what we said was all too true. "Who are we to believe?" We took our cue from the Mayor, and thought we were helping his side along. Evidently he does not think so.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The first Philippine Assembly is meeting this week, and the census has decided that it shall be opened with prayer. The vote is regarded as a sort of test of church and state power, and was carried by a majority of one.

It is estimated that one-third of the United States school children are suffering from remediable physical defects. In some of the larger cities much good is being done by methodical inspection by competent physicians. (There is room for doing much along these lines in Canada, too.)

Somewhat or other Mr. Whitney has not yet lifted the liquor license business out of politics, as he promised he would, remarks the Hamilton Daily Times. There is trouble in the commission down at Ottawa, and a writ for damages has been issued by one of the commissioners against a leading member of the local Tory organization. This commissioner declares that other Ottawa Tories tried to influence him in his work on the Board. It appears that the Patronage Committee thought that it should have a say in the giving out of licenses, etc., hence the trouble. Things are at sixes and sevens in Toronto on the licenses, and resignations and rumors of resignations or dismissals are rife in that city. Here the dissension has been kept comparatively quiet. Mr. New making no fuss when he was dropped off the License Board.

Bob. Independent; Mrs. Mackenzie & Mann have a Dominion subsidy of $861,000 on the James Bay Railway from Toronto to Sudbury, and the Province has guaranteed the bonds to $20,000 per mile. They have a Moose mountain of iron ore that they got from the discoverer for a trifle, and they propose smelting this ore at Toronto into pig iron, for which the Dominion will give them a bounty of $165 a ton, and a similar amount if they make that pig iron into steel. The iron business depends of course, on Toronto making these gentlemen a gift of a few hundred acres of land for the smelting works. Naturally, they could never think of buying anything if there are fools around to give them what they want. When Toronto has presented these gentlemen with the lands, and freedom from taxation, Toronto will probably banquet the gentlemen and crown them with laurels. All that is necessary to become a millionaire is the gift to talk millions, and ask millions. As you think, so you are.

The British Attorney-General has stated in the Imperial House of Commons that although missing work competitions are illegal, huerick may not come under the ban of the law. Mr. Byles, who brought the matter up, deplored these huerick competitions as encouraging the spirit of gambling amongst the great masses of the people, and the Newcastle Daily Chronicle says that, "As a matter of fact they afford an outlet for the spirit of gambling, which Mr. Byles and those who think with him believe can be suppressed by Act of Parliament; and if it is questionable whether they are or are not more objectionable than street betting, it is unquestionable that they are the outcome of the same deep-rooted passion, inherent in the breast of almost every man, for getting something for nothing." People who denounce crap shooting and a friendly game of cards with a five-cent bet, will puzzle their brains over doggerel verse in the shape of a huerick, in the hope of winning a cheap prize and getting their names in the papers. Losing sight of the gambling end of it, and the effect it has upon the gambling spirit, and it's the other fellow's game in every case.

LINDSAY 30 YEARS AGO

"Old Faces Have Disappeared," Says a Former Citizen.

The following letter from Mr. Wm. Mangach, Crown timber agent, at Kenora, New Ontario, will be read with interest by old friends in this town, where he resided some thirty years ago. The references to railway building, and the late Judge Dean will not be skipped by many. (The letter says:—

Kenora, 19th Oct., 1907. Wilson & Wilson, The Post, Lindsay, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—I beg to acknowledge yours of 15th inst., and I can assure you it was with some regret that I dropped my subscription to The Post. I have many happy recollections of the information I received from it in my early days. It was with a certain amount of sadness that I looked over the pages and could find no record of those whom I once knew. You can well understand that thirty years' absence from a place makes quite a difference. (The last time I was in your town was on a Sunday, and I walked up one side of the business street and down the other, looking at the various signs; an observer would have said, "That fellow is from the country." I could only find 5 of those who were in business in my early days in 61.

I have many recollections of the agitation in connection with the bonus to the Nipissing and Victoria railways, George Laidlaw, the promoter, and Judge Dean, with some others, took a very lively interest in educating the farmers as to the benefit the road would be to them. The Nipissing was a narrow gauge and was to run around the places, hence the cheapness of the construction; the Victoria was to penetrate into the forests and open up the country, but the emigration to Manitoba at that early date took away a number of people who might have been benefited by the railway. I remember one night, at a meeting in the town hall, it was stated that the township of Ops was carried by the use of whiskey; it was handed round by the whisper and Judge Dean remarked at the meeting that Ops acted wiser when drunk than Emily did when sober.—Yours truly,

WM. MARGACH.

SHOCKING ACCIDENT IN EMILY TOWNSHIP

Young Man Impaled on Handle of Pitchfork Saturday.

A Horrible Wound Inflicted in Bowels—Victim Now in Ross Hospital—Slight Hopes of Recovery Entertained by Attending Physicians—How the Accident Happened.

Evening Post, Oct. 21.

Albert Murtha, son of Mr. Thomas Murtha, of King's (Wharf), aged 19 years, was fearfully injured on Saturday evening at his father's home, and is now lying in the Ross Hospital in a precarious condition.

A thrashing was going on at his father's place, and when the whistle blew to cease work at 8 p.m., he jumped off a straw stack, alighting on a fork which was standing upright in the ground. The fork handle tore a gaping wound in his bowels, entering just above the groin.

Editor Post.

The young man suffered great agony, and yesterday morning was brought to the Ross Hospital in the ambulance, the trip occupying almost five hours.

The wound is of a most serious nature, and the condition of the victim of the accident is extremely dangerous.

Later.—Previous to going to press today, (Thursday), 10.30 a.m., we learned from the Hospital authorities that the condition of the injured man shows some improvement, and he has a fighting chance for recovery.—Editor Post.

NEW AIDS TO TEMPERANCE.

In 1888 the prohibitionist candidate for President of the United States polled 249,907 votes; in 1892 the vote was 246,133; in 1904 it was 258,847. The decline may be due to a growing feeling that no practical gain can result from a mere registration of the views of those who would like to have a prohibitionist in the White House, suggests the Toronto Star in a recent issue. It is not due to any weakening in temperance sentiment. The Springfield Republican points out that by the working of local option laws half the area of the United States is now under prohibition. Ohio has 1,140 dry towns out of a total of 1,378. Massachusetts has 850 dry out of 250. Vermont is wholly dry, except 24 towns and cities. Kentucky the home of whiskey distilling, has 97 dry counties out of 119. Connecticut has 95 dry to 72 wet, or had have prior to the latest town elections. There are 200 dry towns in Illinois, and in Iowa 65 out of 99 counties are without saloons. Maryland has 14 counties dry out of 23. There are 300 dry towns in New York State. Indiana, out of 1,016 townships, has 710 on the list. Passing to the Pacific coast one finds four dry counties in California, and "much dry territory in other counties," while Oregon reports 12 dry counties, and 170 dry towns and cities in other counties. In the Southern States prohibition has made such gains as to attract general attention.

The Republican notes that there has been an apparent decline in certain kinds of moral enthusiasm for prohibition; in the temperance oratory like that of John B. Gough or Francis Murphy; in the signing of pledges, especially by children. Yet its conclusion is that the change is only in methods, and that the cause of temperance has been making steady

THINKS NEW ZEALAND BUTTER MAY BE IMPORTED

Turkey Prices Will Rule Very High About Thanksgiving Time—Two Facts of Much Interest to Lindsay Housewives.

"There is no doubt about it — Thanksgiving turkeys will come high this year," said Manager Silverwood, of Flavell's, to the London Advertiser the other day. "The supply will be short, and the quality on the whole will be poor."

"The reason is that Thanksgiving comes too early this year, and not then for most of the turkeys are in full condition to kill."

"There has not been enough cold weather yet to bring about the development necessary before a turkey is in good condition for the market."

"Even last year, when Thanksgiving Day was two weeks later, the turkeys were of poor quality."

"As buyers, we fear that the farmers will, owing to the high prices of grain and produce, want to get rid of their birds, and by offering a poor quality, kill the market. Turkeys are never in good condition so early in the season, and will not be before Nov. 1."

A Turkey Center.

"London people have no idea how important a center London is for distributing poultry, eggs and produce. In the last few years the business has grown very rapidly, and is at present increasing more rapidly than ever before. This year over 1,000,000 pounds of poultry have been handled in our warehouse. It is a peculiar fact, but the export trade to England is decreasing. Canada is getting so big now that she can consume all that her farmers produce. This fact is perhaps nowhere more noticeable than in the egg business. When we first started in this city we used to send practically all the eggs we handled to England."

"Last year was a record year for us, as the firm handled approximately 11,250,000 dozens of eggs. Fortunately the whole lot practically would have gone to England, but this year we are not sending more than 1,000,000 dozens. In spite of the phenomenal prices, the west is buying eggs as rapidly as we can gather them. The western market is growing every year, too, and I doubt if we will send very many eggs to England next year."

Lunch Counters Did it.

"In the city the demand for eggs has increased wonderfully, and must be attributed in no small degree to the quick-lunch counters. These people often sell six hundred eggs sandwiches a day, and in a year this means a lot of eggs."

"A peculiar situation has arisen in regard to the egg trade within the last few weeks. Many big firms early in the year contracted to supply eggs to dealers, and now are buying them back as fast as they can at an advance in price of from two to three cents per dozen. They are buying all they can get and holding them in cold storage, as during the coming winter eggs will be high."

Butter Prices.

"In regard to butter I do not think that local prices can possibly be less than 30 cents a pound, owing to the high prices of feed."

"On the other hand, I do not think they will go above that figure for the reason that if they do butter can be brought in from New Zealand and sold at a price that will meet Canadian butter."

"Several large Canadian firms have anticipated this, and at present have buyers in New Zealand, who are purchasing large supplies which will be shipped at once."

"It is expected that New Zealand butter will be on sale in Montreal in the course of a few weeks, and if the prices here rise too high, why the dealers there will ship butter here. Then it must come down again."

ELDON TOWNSHIP COUNCIL

MINUTES OF A SOMEWHAT ANGLICAN MEETING OF THAT BODY.

Peremptory Letter From Mr. C. Smith, O.L.S., re Overdue Accounts.

Council met pursuant to adjournment, in Frank's Hall, Lorneville, on October 5th, 1907, at 11 a.m. Members all present, with the Reeve in the chair. The minutes of the former meeting of Sept. 7th were read and adopted.

Councillor Robinson reported about the pond in Victoria Road, stating that the said pond was situated wholly in the township of Bexley, and that he could not find out who owned the land upon which the pond was. Some of the pond, he said, abuts on the road allowance of the township of Bexley. He recommended that the matter be laid over for further consideration.—No action was taken.

Coun. McFadyen stated that he had no time to interview Mr. Donald Jackson re the wire fence along the 6th con., but would do so and report at the next Council meeting.

Communications were read as follows from:—

James Cornish, notifying the Council of a survey on the 6th con., opposite lot 2, on road division No. 2, was in a very bad condition.

Mrs. Flora McInnes, asking why the A. D. Campbell ditch had not been completed.

Sawyer & Massey, stating that they were going to send an expert out to fix the bins of the stone crusher as soon as they received notice from the Council to do so.

A. C. Cavanah, O.L.S., reporting on the McEachern, Matheson, Grant drain, located on the town line of Thorah and Eldon, and lot 1 on the 9th and 10th con. of Thorah, stating that the drain throughout was in fair order, and although not completed up to the requirements of his award, has been doing good work. When it was completed he thought the water would maintain the course clear.

Wm. McEachern and Kenneth Matheson are hereby relieved of construction work. The townships of Eldon and Thorah, and also John Grant, have not completed their award.

A statement from Reeve Hawkins re the construction of cement culvert tile. The total number of tile made to date was as follows: 36 pieces of 24 inch, 95 pieces of 18 inch, 86 pieces of 12 inch, 17 pieces of 8 inch, making a total of 234 pieces. The total cost of material and labor for making these tile was $207.60, making the average cost per tile about 88c.

The Treasurer of Mariposa, enclosing $17 in payment for their share of the work done on the boundary between Mariposa and Eldon in 1907.

Geo. Smith, O.L.S., as follows: "I have instructed Messrs. Stewart & O'Connor, surveyors, of Lindsay, to serve a writ on you if all my accounts are not settled in full at the next meeting of the Council following this notice. Mr. McDiarmid and I discussed the matter some time ago but I could not fall into his view of the case. You may find before a year that I am not your worst offender."

Rev. Young, of Lorneville, and Rev. Turner, of Kirkfield, waited on the Council with a petition from the ratepayers of Eldon, asking to have a Local Option By-law submitted at the next municipal election.

A complaint was laid before the Council of a ditch being dug by Wm. Hopkins along the 3rd quarterline, opposite lot 15.

Ross, Robinson,—that Coun. McFadyen inspect culvert complained of by Mr. Cornish, and have the same repaired if necessary.—Carried.

Ross, McFadyen,—that the matter of Mrs. Flora McInnes' complaint re the A. D. Campbell drain be laid over until the Reeve interview the parties interested in the said drain, and report at the next meeting of Council.—Carried.

Ross, McFadyen,—that we instruct our Clerk to write Sawyer & Massey to the effect that we are ready to give settlement for the stone crusher as soon as the extra jaws and larger wheels, promised by their representative, Mr. Hampson, be supplied, and that we have decided to leave the axle of the bins as it is; but the dinge in the screen must be fixed.

Ross, Robinson,—that we instruct our Clerk to write Mr. Cavanah to have the McEachern, Matheson, Grant drain completed according to specifications, by letting contract for same after getting Thorah's consent, and also to notify Grant that his work is not complete.—Carried.

McFadyen, Robinson,—that this Council grant the Local Option petitioners a By-law to be submitted to the electors to be taken a vote on at the next municipal election in 1908, and that we instruct our solicitors to prepare a By-law and also to send full information to the Clerk as to mode of procedure in submitting same.—Carried.

Ross, McFadyen,—whereas, a complaint has been made to this Council that Mr. Hopkins has dug a ditch along the 3rd quarter line, therefore we instruct our Clerk to write Mr. Hopkins re the digging of said ditch, and to notify him to fill the ditch back into the drain, so that it will not be liable to cause said damage.—Carried.

Ross, McFadyen,—that the following accounts be passed, and that the Reeve issue his orders on the front ure for the same.—Carried.

Neil McEachern, making cement tile, $62.80; John Mitchell, making cement tile, $23.60; John Jackson, making tile, $12.25; M. McMillan, drawing cement, $10.00; Dan Grant, cement for tile, $88.00; McEachern & Co., iron for tile, $6.50; John Stacey, making cement tile, $22.00; Henry Uddell, work making tile, $8.00; O. A. ## A REVIEW OF THE GRAIN CROP

Shortage of 80 Million Bushels Expected—Oats Also Short.

The Toronto World says: Statisticians who have figured out the world's wheat crop this year, place it at 3,000,000,000 bushels, but this is admitting that the Argentine crop is a basis. Using these figures as a basis, it is thought that there will be a shortage of upwards of 80,000,000 bushels in the world's crops this year.

In the United States the government statisticians give the wheat crop at 2,200,000,000 bushels. It is estimated that the United States will use in domestic consumption and export to purchase for the next year about 2,000,000,000 bushels. This will leave 200,000,000 bushels for export. Of this amount, about 100,000,000 bushels have already been sold and of the country. The exports of wheat and flour a week ago were amounting over 4,000,000 bushels, and at a similar rate it is expected to keep up the surplus and leave a country with just barely a few for home use.

Oats are admitted to be a short crop throughout North America. This year's crop is very light, and in addition, now attacked by a blight which will cut the crop in half. Oats are being locally at 60c a bushel. At Winnipeg the quotations are nearly as high, and the Chicago futures are close to 60c.

The demand for Canadian Northwest wheat is quite keen on the part of European importers. At Winnipeg $1.14 is quoted. Northwest milling houses are strong competitors for the supply, owing to the comparatively small amount of real good milling wheat, and this competition is giving the Canadian western farmer a record price for this year's crop.

ALL DRUGGISTS: 50C. AND $1.00.

Denise's look even more than her words was now his reward. He had only to promise and she would be in his arms for ever. And so for a few blissful moments of oblivion to the perils that beset them both he stood with her hand in his, her face close to his, supremely happy, as she was.

Suddenly they both stepped back. Some one had stealthily entered—a lackey peeping cautiously, but a lackey, they both recognized at once, of Madame de Pompadour.

"Whom do you seek?" Denise demanded haughtily.

The man had obviously expected to find Andre alone. He now tried to slide away.

"I," said the Marquise de Beau Sejour, "you have a message for Monsieur le Vicomte de Nerac, give it to him."

The man, thus sternly commanded, reluctantly handed Andre a small note and fled.

"Read it, I beg," Denise urged, her tone unconsciously cold and severe.

He was sealed with the crest of the Marquise de Pompadour, and Andre read these words:

"I must see you at once—A. De P."

The crumpled note fell from his fingers. Ah! Sooner or later he had known even in his great bliss that he must answer Denise's appeal, but this message made a decision imperative.

"Will you save me as I asked you?" Denise said, and once again she came close to him.

"And if I cannot promise to take your place?" he questioned to gain time.

"Then I must go on alone—alone," she answered, "and God knows what I may do."

Ambition, loyalty, love, his pledged oath to Madame de Pompadour, fear, remorse, and pain struggled within him.

"I will promise anything, anything but that," he cried in despair.

"It is the only thing that can help," she said very quietly; "but it is well I should know the truth. I thank you for that." Tears were in her voice. "Do not think the worse of me if—"

She stopped. Words failed her. Fate and the mistakes of the past of each were too strong for him and for her.

And then, Andre, unable to endure the misery longer, without a syllable of explanation or justification, left her.

Denise's eyes fell on the note from the woman who she felt had ruined her life and his. For one minute she held it in her fingers. Her friends would give much for this damning evidence of his guilt. If she desired revenge, here was the chance; and she was, alas! racked by the jealousy and curiosity of a woman who loved and had been rejected; but it was only for a moment that she wavered, then with a proud sadness she tore the note into fragments and threw them on the fire. Not till the last had been burnt did she take refuge in the hopeless loneliness of her own room.

"Mon Dieu!" exclaimed Madame de Pompadour, as Andre stepped from behind the curtains of the secret door.

"Mon Dieu! my friend, I am not the devil, that you should look at me like that!"

"Madame," Andre replied, "I am here to receive your commands."

A jest, a taunt, a direct question, hovered on the lady's lips. But after another searching look, instead she held out a hand of swift and strong sympathy.

"Courage, Vicomte," she said softly, "do not despair. I am not beaten yet, nor are you. No woman can forget a man's loyalty, certainly not I."

Madame de Pompadour was a selfish and ambitious woman, yet to a few such nature has granted the mysterious power of expressing in word and look what they do not really feel. Then, as always in her unique career, it proved the most potent of her many gifts.

"I thank you, Marquise," Andre replied, deeply touched.

"You have heard the news," she said, wisely returning to business.

"Yes? Could anything be worse? But thank Heaven the messenger was carrying only public despatches. Had it been one of the King's secrets you and I would not be talking here."

"Ma foi! I should like to try," Andre kissed her fingers with the unconscious grace that was vainly imitated by all the young courtiers of Versailles. "I could only succumb to your equal, Marquise," he said, "but such a woman does not exist. Therefore I shall succumb."

"Madame, the paper will be delivered safely or I shall never return."

The thoughts of both had soared away in the sudden silence, and across the unconquerable dreams of ambition and love there fell the sinister, blood-stained mystery of the unknown traitor and darkened the room.

"God keep you, my friend," Madame murmured. "God keep you safe!"

CHAPTER XXII.

The clock in Andre's room struck eleven. Andre pulled the curtains back and surveyed the night. Sore, drowsily serene, as an October night at Versailles can be, satisfied that his pistols were properly primed, that the precious despatch was still in his pocket, he blew out the lights and then by a rope ladder swung himself out of the window. His experience at "The Gallows and the Three Crows" had warned him that for his foes to discover the King's commission was for Madame de Pompadour and himself ruin, death, and dishonor. And as he was determined the Court should not so much as know he had left the palace. So at midnight he had given out that he was ill, had even sent for a physician, and then had quietly slipped till the hour had come. And now that he had successfully gotten through the slip the Captain of the Queen's Guards laughed as a traitor schoolboy might have done. A few lights still twinkled into the October air, some from behind shutters, others through the open glass. Andre paused to survey the majestic front of the palace as it faces the broad terrace that commands the gardens, that terrace where to-day the bare-legged French children scamper and the chattering tourists stroll—those gardens where, could he have known it, was to be played out the tragedy of the Diamond Necklace and the downfall of the descendants of Le Roi Soleil. And he was asking himself, would he ever see Versailles again?

Up there to the right was the window of Denise's room. If only he could have said two words of farewell before he rode out to battle with the unknown! Flush! the shutters were being flung open. Andre saw a figure in white was Denise looking out, as so many in their sorrow or passion have looked out, to the passionless stars for an answer, and in vain. His blood throbbed feverishly, until Denise, ignorant that in the darkness below her heart as cruelly torn as her own was beating wistfully, wearily closed the shutters, and went back to a sleepless bed.

Andre stole away across the gardens to seek the road yonder where a trustful servant from Paris would be waiting with his best horse.

"She is not a peasant," he muttered, showing whether his thoughts were traveling. "Well, well!"

"If I am not at the palace by nine o'clock, Jean," he said as he mounted, "come for my orders to the inn called 'The Cock with the Spurs of Gold.'"

And Jean nodded knowingly.

Orders! Andre smiled grimly. Dead men can give no orders, not even for their own burial, nor can they take all their secrets with them; more was the pity.

When the servant had disappeared Andre bound the mare's hoofs with felt, and she whinnied affectionately, as if she understood. She had only twice been so treated, once the night before Fontenoy and now, for she was the English blood mare which had crushed into pulp the face of that miserable dead woman in the charcoal-burner's wood and had saved her master's life from "No. 101" and George Onslow. Andre stroked her neck and whispered into her ear. To-night she might have to save his honor as well as his life.

Once in the main road Andre drew rein in the shadow of a tree on the skirts of the forest and listened attentively. To the right ran the track for farm carts that led directly to the inn, but he decided not to take that. If by any chance he had been followed or an ambush was laid his foes would certainly choose that track, his natural route. He therefore rode past it, again halted to listen, and then plunged fearlessly under the trees, picking his way along a wood-cutter's dusty path.

Already, through the tangle of boughs, he could make out the blurred shape of the inn ahead, when a faint hiss brought his sword from the scabbard. No, that was a low whistle there on the right. That bush, too, just in front was stirring suspiciously; by St. Denis! the crown of a man's hat. A howl of surprise and pain rent the air. Andre had driven in his spur, the maddened mare had leaped on to the bush and the hat with the head under it was cut through with one pitiless stroke of sword, and the spurs again; for he saw now there were three others running up from the main track which he had refused to follow. The flash of a pistol; the bullet went through his cloak, but the man who fired it took Andre's sword point in his throat and dropped, gurgling. The remaining two stood their ground, and struck at him with their swords. One of them, with a cry "Seigneur Jesu!" lurched forward, run through the breast. But the other had stabbed the mare from behind. She plunged and fell heavily. Andre felt a sharp pain in his left arm; he, too, was stabbed! He had a vision of himself being tossed through the air, his head struck a tree trunk, and—

When he recovered consciousness he was lying on the ground and all was still. In an agony of bewildered fear he tore his coat open and felt for the despatch. Impossible! Yes, it was still there. A red mist danced in his eyes, his left arm throbbed with pain, but he lay half sobbing with a delicious joy. The despatch was still there! Death and dishonor had not the mastery of him yet.

"You are hurt, Monseigneur?" Yvonne, in her tattered gown and disheveled hair, with a lantern in her hand, was kneeling beside him. Andre glanced at his feet; he scarcely knew whether he was hurt or not. He gazed round, trying to recollect, as the dim, cringing light showed him four men's bodies lying this way and that near him. Dead, all of them. And his horse—no, that was alive; she whinnied as he tottered up to her.

"Take it to the stable," he muttered, "take the mare, Yvonne. It is not the first time she has saved my life."

Yvonne in silence watched the bleeding brave away. The girl who loved a cow also understood why a soldier could love his horse.

Andre now seized the lantern and examined the dead men. Half two of them he did not know, but two were the spies of "The Gallows and the Three Crows," the servants of the Duke de Pontchartrain and the Comte de Mont Rouge. He took down on a fallen tree trunk faint and sick. But the shock braced his dazed mind and he tugged out his watch. Ten minutes to twelve. Ten minutes. He could still be in time. His arm indeed was dripping with blood, but it was a mere flesh wound, which he promptly bound up with his handkerchief, and by this time Yvonne had returned.

"What me what happened," he commanded.

"I was sitting in the kitchen," she said quietly, "when I heard a cry—a terrible cry. I seized a bludgeon and a lantern and rushed out. Mon Dieu! Monseigneur, it was horrible; you were fighting and falling. I struck as hard as I could, and then all was still. Monseigneur, I can see now, killed three of them, but the fourth I think I killed. See, there!"

Her bludgeon was lying beside one of the dead men, whose head it had battered in. Yvonne began to cry at the sight.

"Will they hang me, Monseigneur?" she asked.

"Hang you! Good heavens! You have saved my life, my honor. They will not hang you unless they hang me, and they will not do that. Come, Yvonne, we must show these cannals where the superintendent of the police can see them to-morrow."

They carried the four bodies to one of the out-houses, and not till then did Andre enter the inn parlor to wait for the agent of the Duke de Pontchartrain, and, after drinking some wine which Yvonne found for him, telling her to summon him if required, Andre dismissed her, drew a chair up to the fire, and began to ponder on the night's work; but his mind refused to think. A curious numbness as if produced by a drug steadily overpowered him, and after wrestling with himself in vain he fell into a deep sleep.

He had been lying in the chair perhaps a quarter of an hour when the door softly opened. Yvonne, with a finger to her lips, holding her petticoats off the floor, stole in, and behind her a stranger, shading the light he carried with his hand, stepped stealthily on tip-toe.

In silence they both inspected the sleeping Andre. Then Yvonne very cautiously inserted her hand inside the sleeper's coat and probed as it were gently. The pair inspected the despatch closely, smiling when they observed the handwriting under the cover. Then with the same practiced sureness of touch, they rebuttoned the coat, and withdrew as noiselessly as they had entered; but as they reached the threshold a little tongue of flame from one of the logs on the fire suddenly revealed the face of Yvonne's companion to be that of the Chevalier de St. Amant.

Outside the door, the girl hung her lantern quietly on the wall in the passage.

"Why hasn't Francois come?" she asked, in an anxious whisper.

"Francois will never come," the Chevalier replied, very curtly.

"Do you"—she pushed back her matted hair with a gesture of horror—"do you?"

"Yes, I do. The English have been on Francois's track for some time. He was last seen, I learn, loitering about the Carrefour de St. Antoine. Poor fool, why did he go there, of all places? He has disappeared."

"George Onslow?" she interrupted with a flash of anger.

"I fear so. Onslow is mad with despair and wrath. He had discovered Francois's trade and his Jacobite employers; and the English Government pays handsomely for Jacobite secrets. Onslow, too, was convinced he would get no more papers as he had got them before, and so—"

"Yes, yes." Then she added, "And he desired revenge on a woman."

The Chevalier nodded quietly. "If he had secured from Francois that paper which De Nerac is carrying, revenge was in his hands. But the madman has struck too soon; it is just as well for all of us." He looked up and down the dimly lit passage. "Some day," he said, in a matter-of-fact tone that was cruelly tragic, "Francois's fate will be mine."

The girl flung out a hand of passionate protest. Her voice choked.

"I feel it for certain," the Chevalier continued, "it is fate, the fate of us—"

He checked himself sharply. "Oh, I shall not resent my turn when it comes; I have no desire to live now."

"No," she, too, stretched arms of impotent appeal against the grip of a pitiless destiny. "No, there is nothing to live for now."

The Chevalier looked into her eyes with the earnest scrutiny of deep affection. "So your question, too, has been answered?" he whispered.

"Only as I expected. Could it be otherwise?"

"All for De Nerac," he commented aloud to himself; "all for De Nerac—love, success, glory, honor, and, as if that were not enough, he and that wanton will frustrate the revenge and punishment—"

"Yes, he will do that. It is the destiny of France."

The thought imposed silence on both. Andre's measured breathing could be heard dying away in peaceful innocence in the dim passage.

"But this attack?" Yvonne demanded suddenly.

"The ministers and the Court, of course," was the quick reply. "Some tonight warned them of his"—he nodded towards the parlor—"his form, my friend, can only be Onslow, the miserable traitor, and it explains Francois's disappearance, too. The despatch can wait. But Onslow's game must be watched or—"

"And checked," she interrupted decisively. "Ah! I see it now—I see it all."

They fell to talking earnestly.

Three hours later Andre had returned to his room in the palace as he had left it—by his rope ladder. He had an interesting story to add to the morning chocolate of Madame de Pompadour, and he was able to give back intact a despatch which he had been unable to deliver.

And the next event was as ten o'clock, when the Duke de Pontchartrain was chatting with the morning crowd in the Oeil de Boeuf. Sharp exclamations followed by a dead silence, greeted the entry of the Captain of the Queen's Guards, whose left arm, all could see, was bandaged and carried in a sling.

"Monsieur le Duc," Andre said in a voice that rang through the room, "His Majesty commands your presence at eleven o'clock in the Council Chamber."

He paused to allow the royal message to be appreciated by the attentive company; then he added: "And, Monsieur le Duc, I beg to say for myself that if your Grace wishes to know where your servant and that of the Comte de Mont Rouge are, who attempted to murder me last night when carrying out the commission of the King of France, your Grace will find them both dead, along with two others, in the inn called 'The Cock with the Spurs of Gold.'"

His bright smile, and he had left the astonished Duke and the appalled audience to their bewildered reflections.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The customary midday service in the chapel at the palace that morning was unusually crowded. Mansart's dignified and classical architecture in all its frigid splendor is best viewed to-day by the visitor from the royal tribune, and it is with difficulty that the cold and empty desolation condescends to conjure up for the imagination the historic share of this chapel in the grand age of the French monarchy. For under Louis XV.—sensationalist and bigot—the homage of attendance at the rites of the religion of the Sovereign and the national Church was as profitable, nay, as obligatory, as obedience to the inflexible conventions of Court etiquette and the good breeding of the Faubourg St. Germain. So, indeed, it had been under Louis XIV., and the ascetic pietism of Madame de Maintenon; so it continued to be under Louis XV., and the genial culture of Madame de Pompadour and the libertinism of Madame du Barry. But Andre, like every one else in the congregation that morning, was not thinking of this curious paradox as his eye scanned the devout worshippers beside the men and women who patronized Voltaire and laughed at miracles in polished epigrams that dissolved the central truths of the Christian faith into a riddle for the vulgar. He saw the King, the Queen, and the crowd of courtiers, he saw Madame de Pompadour, who as yet had not gained, as she did later, the seat she coveted in the grand tribune. He was asking himself, as he mechanically rose from or fell on his knees, where was the Duke of Pontchartrain and what had the King said to him?

Andre, alike with the foes of his own order, knew that a crisis had been reached. The next forty-eight hours must settle decisively the great battle between the Court and the mistress on throne. And the decision rested with the royal figure kneeling devoutly on his crimson falstool, with that man of the soft, penetrable, bored eyes, who broke all the Ten Commandments, and yet said his prayers with the same absorption as the most fanatical devotee. Yes; Louis's worship was watched with feverish interest by every man and woman present.

"He is in a great rage," the Comtesse des Forges whispered, as she crossed herself; "he never says all the responses unless he is truly angry."

The Abbe de St. Victor uttered gently, rather because the Vicomte's love (To be Continued).

HUNTER FROM THE NORTH PREDICTS A MILD WINTER

Tells of the Strange Actions of the Wolves and Other Animals—Little Snow, He Says—The Killing of a Deer by a Wolf.

It is the predictions of Mr. John Alexander, an old hunter from the north, who ventilated his opinions at the market square lately, come true, we will this year experience a very mild winter. The hunter, who has roamed the wild woods of the north of Peterborough county for many years, has implicit faith in the instinct of the wild animals to foretell the kind of season that lies in the future. He has studied their habits and customs and claims that he knows the why and the wherefore of every move the denizens of the wild timber make.

According to Mr. Alexander, our winter will be one of the mildest in years, and in view of the advances in the price of coal this will be welcome news to the workmen of Peterborough, who have a house and family to keep warm.

Snow, he says, will be scanty, and he is doubtful if there will be enough downfall of the beautiful to produce good sleighing.

The hunter has reason for his statements. He stated that the wolf has not for years come as far south as this year. They have been seen in numbers in Cavendish township, and he claims that the reason for this particular action is that they find little snow and have come south in search of rabbits for their food.

He told of the capture by a wolf only a few weeks ago of a big buck in a marsh near Kitchissippi Lake. The deer had been chased possibly for miles by the ravenous beast, and in an attempt at crossing the marsh, became stuck in the mud. The wolf followed close and ate as much of the back out of the animal as appeared above the mud, leaving vitality still in the half-devoured animal.

Another indication, according to the hunter, of the mildness of the coming winter is the appearance above ground all over the northern portion of the county of so many woodchucks. At this season of the year it is a sure sign of an approaching mild season.

Mr. Alexander told some other wild animal stories, indicative of a mild winter, and if his predictions come true the season will be unusually fine.—Peterboro Examiner.

JOHN M. WALKER IS DEAD

ONE OF THE FIRST SETTLERS IN SHELL CREEK VALLEY.

Identified With the Progress of Platte County for 37 Years—Was a Remarkable Man in Many Ways.

The following, taken from the Humphrey, Neb., Democrat of Oct. 15th, refers to some length to the death of a former citizen of Ops—John M. Walker, brother of Mr. David Walker, well known in both town and country owing to the prominent part he took in Ops affairs before ill-health compelled his retirement. Some of the older residents of the township will doubtless remember the deceased. The Democrat says:

The friends of Uncle John Walker were greatly shocked Tuesday morning to hear of his death, which occurred quite suddenly about 9:15 o'clock that morning. Mr. Walker had been ailing for a couple of weeks with a combination of kidney and heart trouble, and while at times would have spells of difficult breathing, he was generally in good spirits and always spoke cheerfully of the future and what he would do when he was able to be around again. On the morning of his death he was able to walk around the room and a few moments before his death laid down on his bed and said he would try and sleep for awhile. He asked for a drink of lemonade and Mrs. Walker left the room to prepare it. When she returned he lay in the same position as when she left, but the death angel had set his seal upon him, and the sturdy, rugged old pioneer, who had braved many a storm and faced many a foe in the battle of life, had given up the fight and passed into the sleep eternal. Death had come to him as he had always hoped for its coming—quietly and without pain.

Mr. Walker leaves as his immediate relatives, a widow and six children, namely, Frank T. Walker of Columbus, James J. Walker of Omaha, Mrs. F. T. Kiebbia of Omaha, Mrs. J. P. Duffy of St. Joseph, Mo., Mrs. E. J. Tagwerker of Seward and Mrs. E. J. Tuatt of this place. Besides three brothers, several grand children and one great grand child. All of the children were present at the funeral except Mrs. Duffy, who was unable to get here on account of being ill.

The funeral services were held Thursday morning at nine o'clock and the remains were laid to rest in St. Francis cemetery to await the final call of the resurrection.

John McDunough Walker was born March 6, 1826, in the county Fermanagh, Ireland, and when he was four years of age his parents emigrated to the province of Ontario, Canada, and settled on a claim in the unbroken forest near where the flourishing city of Lindsay is located. In his youth he endured all the privations incident to pioneer life, and as he grew older, assailed his future and brothers in the laborious work of turning a mighty forest into well tilled fields and orchards. To these early years of self denial and severe outdoor labor Mr. Walker often attributed his strong constitution of later years, and he was never so happy as when talking over his early days with some old time friend.

At twenty years of age, Mr. Walker, who eagerly read all the books he could obtain, became anxious to see more of the world, and the war, just then started between the United States and Mexico, gave him the desired opportunity, so he left home without the consent of his parents and enlisted at Rochester, N. Y., and fought in every important battle during the war. At the close of the war, Mr. Walker remained in the south for eight years before returning to Canada, where in 1854 he was united in marriage to Miss Catherine McDunough. In 1855 Mr. Walker and family moved to McGregor, Iowa, where they lived for five years, and then overland to Nebraska in 1859, settling on a homestead in this country one and a half miles south of where Lindsay now stands. Mr. Walker was the first settler in this neighborhood, and some of his experiences in those early days were told by himself in an article published in The Democrat some time ago. He was the first postmaster in the Lindsay neighborhood, and named the postoffice after his home in Canada, the town of Lindsay, afterwards receiving the same name. The township was called after Mr. Walker, but was divided in after years. He always took a keen interest in politics and served as one of the county commissioners in the early days. From the time he first settled on Shell Creek, his home was the resting place of emigrants and other wanderers, and his hospitality was never sought in vain by the weary traveler. In 1885 he rented his homestead and moved with his family to Humphrey, where they have since resided.

Three years ago Mr. and Mrs. Walker celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary and before and since then they have enjoyed the best of health, and have taken numerous trips to visit their children. Last summer they spent in Omaha, returning from there a month ago. Mr. Walker possessed a wonderful memory, and up to the last retained his full faculties. He always enjoyed relating anecdotes of his travels, and, in the home circle, at least, grandpa's good natured presence will be sadly missed. May the God in whom he trusted, deal kindly with him, and give him, after his long life journey, eternal rest.

SHORTAGE $100,000,000.

This is Duncan Anderson's Estimate of the Canadian Crop.

Canada's crop shortage will this year reach one hundred million dollars in value.

Such is the serious intelligence that Mr. Duncan Anderson, of Orillia, Canadian organizer of Farmers' Institutes, sends to Provincial Superintendent Putnam.

Mr. Anderson writes from the eastern seaboard that New Brunswick wheat, oats, hay and potatoes are rotting unharvested by reason of incessant rains. Neither mow nor harrow can be used, owing to the wet grounds.

"This is a lean year for the farmer," concludes Mr. Anderson. For Ontario alone the Weekly Sun estimates the shortage at $15,000,000.—The News.

MUST BUILD MILLS IN ONTARIO,

And Manufacture the Pulp Into Paper Here—Terms of Concessions.

The Ontario Government is asking for tenders on two pulp wood concessions, Nipigon and Rainy Lake, to be leased for 21 years.

One provision is that the raw material must be manufactured into paper in Province, either on the concessions or at some point approved of by the Government.

The successful tenderers will be those paying the largest bonus, besides dues of 40c. a cord for spruce and 20c. a cord for this other pulp woods, jackpine and poplar.

Two tenderers getting the Nipigon concession must build within three years, mills costing not less than $500,000, capable of making at least 150 tons of paper a day, and employing 250 hands for ten months in the year. The Rainy Lake concessionaire will be required to erect a mill costing $150,000, make 20 tons of paper a day, and employ 50 hands. The Rainy Lake concession which is in Timiskaming, is the smaller of the two.

LINDSAY INDUSTRY VISITED BY FIRE

Rider and Kitchener Co. Saw Mill Destroyed by Fire at an Early Hour Last Saturday—Water Pressure Said to Have Been Deficient—Firemen Tired But Worked Hard—Heavy Loss.

Evening Post of Oct. 19.
The splendidly equipped sawmill, property of The Rider & Kitchener Co., located beside the river at the foot of Melbourne-st., was utterly destroyed by fire early this morning. The cause of the conflagration is unknown, and the loss will be in the neighborhood of $5,000, only a small fraction of which is covered by insurance.

Their efforts at the Hunter fire had exhausted both firemen and horses, and they had returned to the mill at about 4 o'clock. At 5:15 the telephone bell at the hall rang, and a message was received stating that there was another blaze in the west. There was immediately after an alarm was sent in by Herbert Wink from Box No. 5 and the run was made to the sawmill. The mill was partly destroyed and burning fast. Some 1500 feet of lumber was carried on the mill, but the team had to go back for more. The pressure was insufficient and enough water could not be had during the whole progress of the fire, if we may believe statements made. But one stream was available, and the flames had gained such headway that it was impossible to contain them. The mill was a heap of smoking ruins and ruined machinery this morning.

The early hour did not deter hundreds from flocking to the scene of the fire. The mill is isolated, and there was little danger of a blaze catching on to a neighboring building. Deal's tannery, across the river, was in danger from sparks for a time.

THE LOSS IS SERIOUS

To a Post reporter Mr. A. D. Kitchener, of the firm of Rider, Kitchener & Co., said the loss was a great blow to him. He was not aware of the fire, having been out of town till after eight o'clock this morning.

WHISKEY SPIES AT WORK

Whitney Government Men in Contemptible Business.

Evening Post of Oct. 19.
Port Hope Guide: The police court case yesterday, in which L. G. Bennett, of the Queen's hotel, and M. J. Spencer, of the St. Lawrence hotel, were charged with selling liquor on Sunday, Oct. 6th, was due to the work of two whiskey spies sent out by the Whitney government. Those two individuals, Thomas R. Thompson and Donald Cameron, arrived in town Saturday evening, Oct. 5th, on the late train and registered under the names of Thomas Rix and C. Donald. Early Sunday morning they set about at their mean, contemptible business to trap the hotelkeepers. They ask, yes, and in many cases, beg for drink, and when the hotelkeeper grants their request they go out and inform upon him. According to their own story, they entered the barroom of the Hotel St. Lawrence on Sunday and had whiskey on different occasions.

Both hotel men were fined $95 and $5 costs, the charge being laid under the first offence in each case. Provincial License Inspector Morrison was present and attended the hearing.

Inspector Kennedy sits quietly in the township of Manvers, draws a nice large salary, and the Government whiskey informers do the work. Why, that's fine. But what about this fair town of ours? We have a night constable whose duty it is to see that no liquor is sold on Sunday. Had he laid this information, the town today would have been two hundred and six dollars better off. As it is, the Provincial Government takes the two hundred and sixteen dollars, not enough to pay for the new constable but our city fathers wear. But we will come out of it after a while.

SHREDDED WHEAT BANQUET

Cambridge-st. Methodist Church Laymen the Pleased Guests.

Evening Post of Oct. 19.
A banquet was tendered the laymen of the Cambridge-st. Methodist church last evening by the Canadian Shredded Wheat Co., of Toronto, the makers of that very popular and wholesome food product. The banquet was under the personal direction of the company's Canadian manager, Mr. John Hewett, who was assisted by his son and a number of the ladies of the church.

The menu consisted of food, entirely the product of their factory, and shredded whole wheat and apparently easily satisfied the needs of those who were present. The tables were most tastefully decorated and the dining-room presented a very pleasing picture. The menu cards were beautifully illustrated with pictures, showing the shredded wheat in different methods of preparation, while on the last page was an illustration of a primitive Indian maiden preparing corn for food, and also a photograph of the company's manufacturing plant at Niagara Falls. The following was the menu:

Creamed Chicken in Shredded Wheat Baskets.
Pickles.
Cold Ham.
Triscuit and Butter.
Jellied Fruit Sandwich and Whipped Cream.

Triscuit and Macaroni's Cheese.
Shredded Wheat, Ice Cream.
Bavarian Chocolates, Triscuit.
Potted Cold Coffee, Salada Triscuit.

Every article on the menu was very tasty, served, and thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

THE SPEECHES.

The after dinner speeches were heart-to-heart talks on church finances and management, and there was a general feeling among those present in favor of getting the laymen and the church board in closer touch as a sure method of securing more successful church work, both spiritually and financially. Talks were given by Messrs. Wm. Flavelle, B. J. McLaughlin, K. C. E. C. Taylor, Dr. Clarke, Jas. Boxall and J. W. A. A vote of thanks was tendered the Shredded Wheat Co. in a neat speech by Col. Hughes, which was seconded by Mr. Broderick. Mr. Hewett replied for the company, and gave a short speech, setting forth the process of the manufacture of Shredded wheat from selected whole wheat.

Judging from the satisfaction expressed by those present at the banquet, there will be many new users of Shredded Wheat biscuits in Lindsay.

INTERESTING FARM NOTES

THE QUESTION OF WEEDS.

The weed evil is a question of no small proportions on the Canadian farm. It is becoming a common saying that sooner or later the government will have to assume a more active interference in the cultivation of our lands.

Travel anywhere through the country and towns of Ontario, and the tourist will be struck with the number of noxious weeds that have come to seed on the very roadside, and at the doors of the farmers and townsmen. Burdock, chicory, mustard, dog wood, couch grass, wild oats and other pests run rampant in many places. The complacency with which many people view these intruders, shows that there is a lack of appreciation of the dangers that are latent in them. Already many farms in this province are well nigh unproductive because of these. Others produce such a poor sample of grain that they are a non-paying proposition, and their goods a menace in the markets of commerce. The Seed Control Act has proved a failure, and weeds in the ranks of clover submitted from the farms of Ontario. Almost any sample submitted has a few weed seeds. The weeds are so full of seed that they cannot be handled at all.

Some people go so far as to say that the government must take action providing for inspectors to go upon the farms where the owners have not taken the pains to kill, and the paying the cost of so doing as a first charge upon the land. Certainly it does not seem far distant when some drastic measure will be needed to cope with the evils.

Ontario is not the worst offender. The North Western wheat lands are big disseminators of noxious weeds. They spread to Ontario in milked and through transportation agencies. It is reported this year that many farms in Manitoba are producing low yields of wheat and first-class yields of weeds.

Better agriculture is the watchword in the battle with weeds. Where weeds grow luxuriant, useful grains can grow, and with this ever ready aid of the soil, will come a good reward of better crops and fewer pests in the vegetable garden.

Every Ontario farmer who reads this fall that ever seed weed found upon his farm or on his adjacent roadside or gathered and burned before the crop of seeds find lodgment in a fertile plot.

In the publication of the book on weeds, the Dominion minister of agriculture deserves credit to recognize the chance for the people to recognize the true insidious character of the common parasites of our fields and gardens.—Toronto World.

SOME FARM NOTES.

From all indications cattle and sheep will be a good price next season. These farmers who are worried by their animals now may be sorry for their actions then.

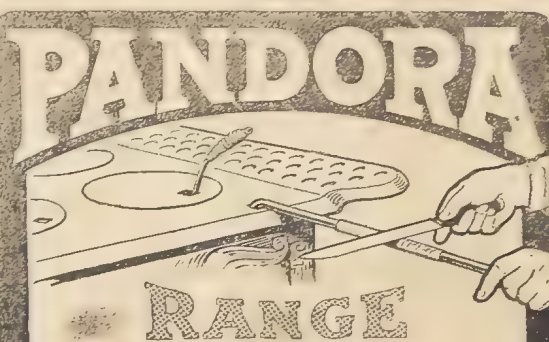

The cheesemakers of the State of Wisconsin have formed a union and their demands for next year are given by the Milwaukee Free Press as follows: Five hundred dollars cash per year with free house rent, fuel, milk and cheese.

An exhibit of ostriches from W. W. Ford's farm at Tampa, Fla., recently attracted much attention at the West Virginia Fair at Wheeling. "Carry Noddy" weighed 490 and "Fleet Foot", a racing bird, has a record of 2:12. Mr. Ford's "herd" of ostriches numbers 78.

The National Corn Exposition is being held in Chicago. This, together with the National Dairy Show, which meets there from the 10th to 19th, will make an interesting fortnight in the windy city. Dairying has become so great a factor in Canadian farm methods that it looks very favorable for the welcome that will greet the National Dairy Show, which will meet in Toronto, we trust, at no very distant date.

Three carloads of pure-bred cattle are to be shipped into Old Mexico next month under the auspices of the American Shorthorn Breeders' Association for show and sale, says The Breeders' Gazette. Two carloads will be shown and sold at Chihuahua, and one carload at the City of Mexico. In the latter consignment will be four head presented by the American association to the government agricultural experimental farm, near Mexico City. This is in addition to the show and sale to be made by the Texas Shorthorn Breeders' Association at Torreon in aid of which the American association has appropriated $10,000. This looks like good missionary work.

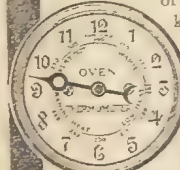

"As a dual-purpose animal there is no breed that equals the Shorthorn," says a writer in The Breeders' Gazette. "I believe there are just as good dairy Shorthorns in the United States today as in England. Let the breeders of them come out and tell us what they are doing. The milk record of Mr. J. H. Eves of S. V. Farm, from 1st Feb. 1907 to 21st Feb. 1908, was 10,000 lbs. of milk, at an average butter-fat test of 4 per cent.

A convenience much appreciated by every owner of a Pandora is the towel rod attached to the range. As one-third of the rod is made of emery, it makes a splendid knife sharpener, too.

It's always there handy for you. You need waste no time hunting around for the easily misplaced "steel." Bright idea, eh?

An accurate thermometer is a reliable guide to successful baking, while an inaccurate one is a "cheat" of the worst kind.

Nearly Opposite Post Office
Special attention given to Children's Teeth.
HAROLD V. POGUE,
D.D.S., L.D.S.Some Remarks on Things in General

By "THE STROLLER."

Our friend Kier Hardie, the able exponent of labor and socialism, is travelling around the world, and is at present touring India. It seems that the natives are treating him like a little god, and hanging wreaths around his neck, and otherwise justifying over him. Some of his utterances, however, are not very god-like, for the gods were supposed to speak the words of wisdom when they designed to speak, but our friend Kier has uttered some rapid nonsense. One of his remarks was that he could not see why the natives of India could not have self-government the same as Canada. This, of course, tickles the Indian to death, hence the flow of flattery. A remark like this, coming from an embryo statesman, goes far to show that he has not studied his subject very deeply. The only other party who would make such a statement, would be a Home Rule Irishman, or a radical Yankee, and it would be made simply to pick-nick the British Government.

At the beginning of the 18th century the whole of India was divided between a dozen or more Maharajas, Nizams, Akondas, Moguls, and other little princelings, whose main object in life seemed to be to swat their nearest neighbor as often as they could. Sometimes they succeeded, and at other times they were the other fellow succeeded. The net result was that the whole peninsula was in a chronic state of war all the time, and as life was considered of no value, the amount of blood-letting was something enormous. At this time the French and the Portuguese and the Dutch were taking a hand in the game, and history tells us that matters were not improved any by their presence. No nation outside of Britain has yet shown any capacity to rule inferior races.

In the middle of the century, Oliver fought the battle of Plassey, which was the beginning of the end in organizing the whole of India under British rule. How they have ruled since, is open to the world, and we have the testimony of American missionaries, that no nation could have done as well for the natives as Britain has, not even their own. These natives, it is true, are human, but they are a long way off, from being able to govern themselves, and for Mr. Hardie to make such a rash statement as he is reported to have made, is surprising. It will be remembered that at the time of the meeting, just 50 years ago, very little had been done towards educating this people in the higher things of life.

The predominating force at that time was the notorious East India Company, who ruled the country. It is needless to say that it was not the higher ethics of life in which they were interested, as far as the natives were concerned, but the number of lakhs of rupees they could transfer to London yearly. The meeting opened the eyes of the home people, and the result was that the government was taken over directly by Britain, and from that day to this, the march in all lines has been upward and onward. The horrible practices carried on by the natives in the name of religion, were abolished, educational institutions were established, the missionaries were given a free hand for their work, and have done prodigiously more than any other agency to civilize the natives and lead down the abominable caste that is such a hindrance to the welfare of the people. Another great civilization has been the railroad, and with all these agencies at work, it would be surprising indeed, if out of the countless millions there, a few were not found who would seem to be capable of governing themselves. It is probably some of these, or rather mostly among these, that Mr. Hardie has been spending his time. Before he fully makes up his mind, we would suggest that he place himself in the charge of the missionaries, and allow them to take him around amongst the dense masses, with whom they come daily in contact. He could take one or two in each part of the country, and if he is open for enlightenment, he can no doubt get it. There is no doubt that some day, India will be capable of governing itself, but we rather imagine they will require the heaven to work some years longer yet. We must remember that the people there are not one in either race, religion or anything else, and that there is little love lost between the different tribes.

Our friends, the manufacturers, have met again, and demanded more protection, one of them wanting it as high as Hauman's gullows', whatever height that might be. These manufacturers are great chaps - nothing seems to satisfy them. Since these Grits came into power and made things hum, whether by a new policy of their own, or a more knowledgeable working of the National Policy, it matters not, we don't know of a single class in the community that have done so well, financially, as the manufacturers, and yet they are grumbling. Whether it is within the bounds of possibility to satisfy them is a conundrum. We have the examples of both Germany and the U. S. before us, where the "infant" industries that produce multi-millionaires are constantly demanding more concessions, and it would seem that there is no satisfying this class of people, once they get their hands on the public till. To read the arguments put forth by the manufacturers, one would imagine that dull times never would visit us, were the tariff wall high enough. Their complaint seems to be that they are crowded too closely by outsiders, and they have to do too much humping to hold their trade. We don't know that it does anybody any harm, to have to watch everything about their business, so as to make every ounce count. If money is made too easily, things are apt to go awry, and as a sequence we have a race of Thaws and people of that calibre. A country we are doing very well, and we should let well enough alone. The great industry in this country as yet, is farming, and we imagine it will be for some considerable time to come. As a class, the farmers have done very well, and although some of them rise to be millionaires through farming, yet there are probably a greater proportion of them enjoying the good things of life, than there are of any other body of producers. We are apt to dub the farmers a close-fisted class of people, forgetting that they handle very little actual cash. The farmer on the other hand, imagines that a man who gets $1,000 a year must be rich, as he (the farmer) probably never sees more than $500, overlooking the fact that, besides that, he has his living off farm, whereas the $1,000 man has to pay for his living in cash, and if he has a family, there is not much left at the end of the year. If the farmer does well, the bulk of his production goes into circulation, and the beauty of it is, it is new wealth, adding to what the country already has. If his production is curtailed, as an authority claims it is this year to the extent of 80 millions in Ontario alone, everyone is going to feel it, and no one more so than the manufacturer. If this estimated shortage is correct, there will be fewer buggies, pianos and good clothes sold, than there otherwise would be, and for the manufacturer to butt in, and want higher protection, when the principal man he wants to sell to, is poorer, seems to us a very short-sighted policy. The manufacturer must stand his chances of poor times as well as everyone else. We do not doubt for one moment, that the whole country would vote protection as high as would keep everything out, if the manufacturers would agree to sell as cheaply as if there were free trade, but we know they will not do that. The invariable experience with tariffs is, that the protected ones put their prices just as high as it is possible to get them, and yet keep out the foreigners. They become millionaires, not by their own thrift and ability, but by a process of bleeding the consumer, that is producing the "savage" teeth of the cities. With the immense immigration that is coming into our country, and that must necessarily take up any slack that may be caused by overproduction, it ought not to be unreasonable to expect our manufacturers to be able, with the protection they already have, to cope with any foreigner that tries to do business in this country.

NOTABLE MASONIC EVENT

Fiftieth Anniversary of Faithful Brethren Lodge, Lindsay.

DEDICATION OF THE NEW LODGE ROOMS

Big Gathering of Prominent Men of the Order—Lodge of Instruction Friday Afternoon—Grand Banquet At Night.

Evening Post of Oct. 18.

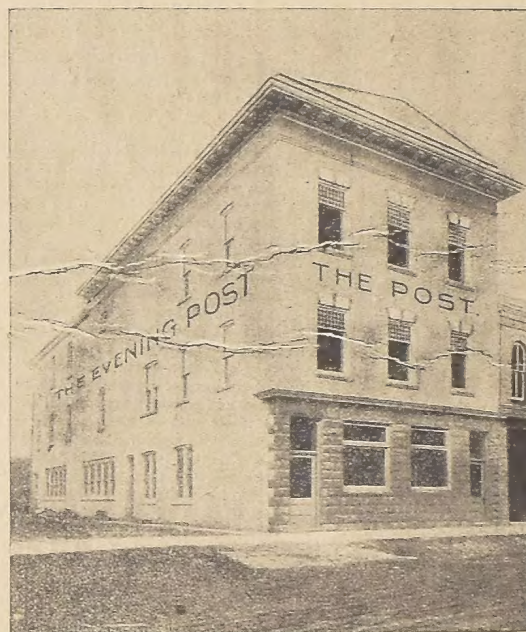

The 50th anniversary of the organization of Faithful Brethren Lodge, A. F. and A. M., is being celebrated to-day in magnificent style by the Masons of this district, in their handsome new lodge rooms in The Post's new block.

This morning the Grand Master of Ontario, A. T. Freed, assisted by the Grand Officers, dedicated the hall with proper dignity and an impressive ceremony, in which about two hundred Master Masons participated. This afternoon special work is being put on for the entertainment of the visiting brethren, and an extra session of the lodge will be held this evening.

To-night at 11 o'clock a banquet will be given the visiting brethren in the town hall, which has been fitted up and decorated for the occasion. Provision has been made for between two and three hundred Masons.

THE NEW ROOM

The new lodge room is one of the finest in the province, its length being 50 feet by 30 feet, with an 18 foot arched steel ceiling, which is most attractively decorated in blue. The walls, carpet, curtains, etc., all harmonize in the same color. The carpet is one of the handsomest in town, and was woven expressly for the order fixed in the fabric. The other furnishings are quite in keeping with the splendid room. Suitable ante-rooms, preparation room, and large banqueting room go to make perhaps the finest lodge rooms in the province. They are a credit and a source of pride to the brethren of Lindsay and district.

THE SPEECHES

After the refreshments were disposed of, Rev. Bro. Jas. Wallace was called to the chair, and in a neat and suitable speech, called for a toast to 'The King and Craft', which was heartily responded to by all in singing the national anthem.

His Honor Judge Harding, in a speech full of interesting reminiscences and good fellowship, introduced a toast to 'The Grand Lodge of Canada', which brought Most Worshipful Brother A. T. Freed, Grand Master, London, to his feet. In a short speech he spoke of the order, and particularly of the Centennial Fund, which aimed to raise a fund of $100,000 for benevolent purposes, and complimented Faithful Brethren Lodge on being one of the first in the province to pay their share towards the fund.

Most Worshipful Brother Hugh Murray, Grand Secretary, Hamilton, also made a good speech in response to the above toast, in the course of which he referred to the great advancement that had been made in the past few years, in benevolence, and also temperance, as it was now a rarity to meet a Mason who was addicted to the excessive use of liquor. He also spoke of the advancement of the order, which now has a membership of 40,000 in Ontario. Mr. Murray is a fluent speaker, and one of the most popular members of the craft. Right Worshipful Brothers Williamson, Hutchison and Fulton also responded to this toast.

W. W. BRO. HUGH MURRAY,
Grand Secretary, Hamilton.

Worshipful Bro. Dr. Wood proposed the toast, 'The Lodges of Ontario District', which was responded to by representatives from the several lodges in the district.

Worshipful Bro. A. L. Campbell, of Faithful Brethren Lodge, thanked the members of Grand Lodge and visiting brethren for their hearty support at the dedication and lodge of instruction.

'The Junior Wardens' toast, 'Happy to meet, sorry to part, happy to meet again,' brought the most successful of banquets to a close.

During the evening Mr. Peter Wilson gave a song which received a merited encore. Mr. R. Vincent also gave a very pleasing song, which was well received. Mr. John Gray rendered a very nice song, which was very much appreciated, and Mr. Ryan gave a most pleasing vocal selection.

The orchestra of the Sylvester Band added much to the pleasure of the evening by their splendid music, which from time to time evoked much applause.

BLAZE IN THE EAST WARD.

Dwelling Owned by Mr. Robt. Hunter Destroyed Last Friday.

Evening Post of Oct. 19

Last evening about eleven o'clock, just after the theatre-goers had gotten home from 'The Gingerbread Man', an alarm was rung in from the east ward. The fire team were out in record time and started their long run of over a mile to the burning building, which belonged to Mr. Robt. Hunter. It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Hunter were moving out of this house to another, and had had all their effects, except the bed in which they were sleeping, a stove and a pump, carted to their new home.

About eleven o'clock, as a young man named Ellsworth was passing, he saw flames around the chimney, and rushed in to awaken the old couple before sending in an alarm. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter got out safely. Owing to the distance from the nearest hydrant to the house, there was not enough hose to reach the fire, and the crowd had to stand by and see the building burn. Mr. Hunter had $500 insurance on the house, but owing to an oversight he neglected to pay the last premium, so that the building is a total loss.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES

The Establishment of God's Kingdom on Earth—Articles Bearing on Church Work at Home and Abroad—Carefully Selected Contributions will be Received for Publication in this Column.

Rev. Mr. Watson, M.H., will preach the anniversary sermon at Millbrook Presbyterian church on Oct. 27th.

Secretary (Thos. Yellowless, of the Ontario Sunday School Association, is conducting a church census by house to house visitation in Stratford.

Words are things of little cost. Quickly spoken, quickly lost. We forget them, but they stand witnesses at God's right hand. And their testimony, dear for us or against us there.

There was a certain man who coveted a plump turkey belonging to his neighbor. He prayed long and earnestly, but without avail, that his neighbor's turkey might be sent into his back yard. Then he changed his prayer, and prayed that he might be sent into the garden where his neighbor's turkey was.

His prayer was answered that very night. A well-known Scottish architect was travelling in Palestine recently when news reached him of an addition to his family circle. The happy father immediately provided himself with some water from the Jordan to carry home for the christening of the infant, and returned to Scotland. On the Sunday appointed for the ceremony he duly presented himself at the church, and sought out the beadle in order to hand over the precious water to his care. He pulled the flask from his pocket, but the beadle held up a warning hand, and then came nearer to whisper, "No, the noo," he said, "no the noo. Maybe after the kirk's oot!"

SERMONS DELIVERED AT THE CHURCHES LAST SUNDAY.

Evening Post, Oct. 21.
AT ST. ANDREW'S.

Rev. Menzies, of the Point au Tremble school, Quebec, filled the pulpit of St. Andrew's church during both services yesterday. The subject of his discourses was French evangelization in the Province of Quebec.

In the evening he chose his text from the epistle of James, 2nd chapter, verse 15. God's fatherhood and man's brotherhood were, he stated, the outstanding features of the Christian religion.

Reverting more particularly to his topic he recalled the opening of the Kirkfield life-lock some few months ago—an event to be long remembered. At that time Rodolphe Lemieux, Postmaster-General, French Canadian and a Roman Catholic, in his speech to the people, appealed to the young men and women, particularly, to give of their best to their country—a country, he added, richly blessed and fully worthy. "I thought," said Rev. Menzies, "at that time was it possible for his (Lemieux's) own fellow countrymen to give their best to their country when a large portion of them go through life in almost absolute ignorance, without education?"

The same gentleman, in his address at a Scotch banquet on the subject, "The Scotch People," attributed their success as a nation, to their love of civil and religious liberty and their passion for education. "How would he answer the question," said the minister, "if he had been asked, 'Has your church stood for civil or religious liberty?'" Of the French Canadian population of Quebec, one-third are illiterate, and the Roman Catholic clergy are responsible. "From the standpoint of illiterate Quebec ranks next to Italy."

Lemieux stated that it was the knowledge of the Bible that made the Scotch what they are. This book is withheld from the French Canadian, if they were able to read it. In their desire to control, the Roman Catholic clergy are teaching the French-Canadians to preserve a unity and gradually invade other provinces. "We cannot meet them in a like manner," observed the preacher. "We should meet them as brothers and enlighten them. This is the course being pursued by the evangelists' churches, and there is a changing attitude coming over many towards Protestantism."

Mr. Menzies then spoke of the progress of the Point au Tremble school, and how many hundreds of French-Canadians were being educated there, from fifty to seventy being turned away year after year for lack of space of the good results from the work, and in conclusion made an appeal for accommodation and equipment. He spoke of the good results from the work, and in conclusion made an appeal for accommodation to extend the school's work.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Blandell, pastor of the Stratford Baptist church, officiated at the local Baptist church yesterday in Mr. Welch's absence. His text for the morning sermon was taken from Isaiah, 41st chap., 10th verse, "Fear thou not, for I am with thee; be not dismayed, for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." These were the promises of God, said the minister. The promise is a five-fold one. "Fear thou not." He says, "for I am with thee." God does not ask us to accomplish our pilgrimage alone. "I will strengthen thee." He gives us of his power to overcome temptation. "I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." This last glorious promise of aid is for the Christian.

The pastor dwelt on the faith we have in earthly promises, and engagements made during the ordinary course of everyday life. How much more should we have faith in God through the promises he gives us in His word.

Yes, Archbishop Casey celebrated high mass at St. Mary's yesterday. Rev. Fr. Collins delivered the sermon. He took for his text the words found in St. Matthew, xiii, 12-13, "Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." The message, which was directed principally to young men, was convincing in its argument and method of presentation.

ON POINT AFFAIRS

Meeting of Village Council Monday Morning.

MR. J. W. FLAVELLE'S OFFER AND OTHER MATTERS.

Messrs. Elliott and Moynes wish to establish an Amusement Park.

Evening Post, Oct. 21.
A meeting of Sturgeon Point Council was held this morning at the office of the village clerk, Mr. G. H. Hopkins. Messrs. J. D. Flavell occupied the chair, the other members being Messrs. O. Bigelow, J. W. Anderson, J. Brown and E. Miller. The property owners in attendance numbered about half-a-dozen.

THE FLAVELLE MATTER.

Clerk Hopkins read the minutes of the last two meetings, also Mr. J. W. Flavell's letter in connection with certain concessions and changes desired, the Council's letter in reply thereto, and finally, Mr. F's letter (already published) relinquishing the plans therein mentioned, and withdrawing the offer made Council. The Council's letter, above referred to, will perhaps clear away some misapprehension in the minds of Point residents. It was as follows:

Lindsay, Ont., Sept. 19th.
J. W. Flavell, Esq., Toronto, Ont.
Dear Sir,—Your communication of 5th inst. came before the Council at their meeting Monday, and they instructed me to inform you that they were willing to comply with your wishes as far as possible, and authorized me to give the necessary notice, and take the necessary proceedings with a view of closing the old and opening the new streets, which will take six weeks to two months. In the meantime they passed a resolution authorizing the putting up of gates on the Fenelon road at once.

What they propose is:
1st.—To close Lake-ave. in front of your property, and convey the same to you in lieu of road 20 feet wide through your property, where the present travelled road runs, this is not to prejudice the rights of either party, so far as the wharf is concerned.

2nd.—To divert Irene-st. as proposed by you, except that they desire to extend First-st. on a slight deviation to the west. This they think will meet with much less opposition, and will not affect you, as you will have a lot west of First-st. in any case.

3rd.—They are desirous of protecting, not only yours, but all the property at the Point, from outside, and think your suggestion of gates a good one. Strictly speaking cattle have no right to run there at all, and can be impounded, but an owner of prevention is worth a pound of cure. There would be various objections to placing gates at the east end of Irene-st. and the proposed Lake Shore road, and they propose authorizing the putting of a gate on the Fenelon road, within the village, which would answer the same purpose as far as you are concerned. These gates would, of course, be subject to removal by the Council in the future, if found necessary, and I trust this will be satisfactory to you. —Yours truly, (Sd) G. H. HOPKINS.

Clerk of Village of Sturgeon Point.
Mr. Bigelow—"Will our consent to erect the gates give Mr. Flavell any rights?"

Clerk Hopkins—"No, the gates are on the road."

Mr. R. J. McLaughlin presented a communication dealing with the roadway leading from Irene-ave. to Constable Graham's dwelling. No action was taken.

NEW ELECTION DAY.

Barrister F. A. McDiarmid presented a petition by 32 ratepayers, favoring the holding of the annual election at a November instead of on Jan. 1st, and praying the Council to pass a by-law therefor.

Clerk Hopkins—"As a matter of fact, we have no by-law fixing Lindsay as the place for holding the election. The blank is filled in yearly."

Reeve Flavell—"We have the power to make the desired change, and I think we should grant the request."

Clerk Hopkins—"The next election must be held in January, as heretofore; it's really a matter for next year's Council to deal with."

Reeve Flavell—"I don't know about that—we must either have power to continue the present Council in office for a year and a half, or to hold two elections."

Clerk Hopkins—"I'll look into that."

Mr. McDiarmid—"I think Reeve Flavell is right; you must have the power to do either one or the other."

Moved by Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. Bigelow, that a by-law fixing the village election in midsummer be introduced at next meeting.—Carried.

With reference to the gates recently placed on the Fenelon road, Reeve Flavell explained that Council had merely assented to their use, and it was agreed to allow them to remain at least until a petition was presented asking for their removal.

THESE ARE TRUE

Five Thousand Facts About Canada, the Young Nation.

Canada's western wheat contains 10 per cent. more albuminoids than the best European varieties. One hundred pounds of Canadian flour makes more bread of high quality than the same weight of any wheat imported into Britain. Lord Strathcona asserts that in ten years Canada can produce all the grain needed by Great Britain. Great Britain imports annually nearly 200 million bushels of wheat. Of this, Canada sold her (1906) only 36 million bushels, worth 30 millions. Western wheat elevators, 1,200; capacity 51 1-2 million bushels. 22,850 harvest hands helped to gather the 1906 grain in the west. Western Canada has 5 times as much wheat land available as is now cultivated in the U. S.—Wm. Whyte, C. P. R. Average price to farmer of western wheat crop of 1904 was 73c per bushel; 1905 crop, 63c., 1906, 65c., calculating all grades. Average cost of production and shipment, 85c. per bushel, average net profit, 30c. per bushel, or $6 per acre. Best U. S. farms yield owners $5 or less per acre. Estimated intrinsic value of western Canadian farm lands now, $100 per acre. Value of western Canada's wheat crop, 1904, $40,900,810; of 1905 and 1906, $53,000,000 each. Wheat growth in U. S. of 600 million bushels has apparently reached its height. Best U. S. wheat lands are either exhausted or gradually becoming exhausted. U. S. was once Britain's chief wheat provider. Annual increased wheat consumption in U. S. is 8 million bushels. Drop in U. S. wheat exports to Britain, 1905, 45 million bushels. Minnesota millers are buying Canadian wheat to mix with U. S. wheat and thus recover their high grade of flour for export. The half-a-billion people in China and Japan are prospective buyers of Canada's surplus wheat. In a single year 50.7 per cent. of all the wheat officially inspected in Winnipeg graded "Manitoba Hard," and 80.6 per cent. "No. 1 Northern," making 81.3 per cent. fall within the two highest market grades. During the same time practically only 1 per cent. of the receipts at Minneapolis graded No. 1 Hard and 2 per cent. No. 1 Northern, a difference of nearly four to one in favor of Canadian wheat.

WATER POWERS

Canada surpasses the world in its possession of water powers. The minimum Niagara flow represents 3 million h. p., one-tenth more than Victoria Falls, Africa. Niagara power is sight when developed will aggregate 700,000 h. p. 400,000 h. p. is in process of development on the Canadian side. 20,000 h. p. will be transmitted to Toronto. Ontario restricts export of Niagara horse power to 50 per cent. Canada will hereafter place an export duty on Niagara power. 11 million h. p. can be developed from Lake Superior on Canadian side. Equaling total amount of power now in use in U. S. for manufacturing.

FARMER'S TEAM RAN AWAY

Leaped Over Buggy and Injured Man Who Tried to Stop Them.

Evening Post, Oct. 21. A heavy farm team, owned by Mr. T. Hogan, of East Ops, became frightened from some unknown cause while standing in the yard of the Royal hotel on Saturday afternoon. They turned quickly, tearing away the scolding to which they were tied. A buggy standing in their way was scolded in their headlong career and badly broken.

Pushing the big waggon behind them, the horses tore down Lindsay at across the bridge, and headed up Queen-st. for home. Near McWatters' bakery Mr. Joe Bell attempted to stop them, but was knocked down and the waggon passed over him, leaving him, badly hurt, lying on the road. They were finally stopped by Mr. Thos. Teevin, in Ops. The horses were not badly injured, but the buggy they ran over was a total wreck.

Young Boys Made Example of in Police Court Tuesday.

Evening Post of Oct. 22.

Railway property has to be respected. Such is the law, and Police Magistrate Jackson is bound to enforce it. In police court this morning Arthur Moore and Ralph Trevor were charged with trespassing on the property of the G. T. R., and fined $4.95 each. They had been in the habit of frequenting the box cars near Flavell's elevator on Sundays and in the evenings, to enjoy a quiet smoke and chat, and kept it up until the minion of the law invaded their rendezvous.

The Magistrate propounded the clause in the statutes relating to their offence, and informed the youngsters that a fine not exceeding $50 could be imposed.

Mr. R. G. McGraw, local agent of the G. T. R., was strong in his denunciation of offences of this nature, and spoke of the danger of fire from smoking and lighting matches.

Mr. J. D. Flavell said a number of boys had been intolerable nuisances around the elevator, and the firm had serious thoughts of putting on a special policeman to get rid of them.

Chief Vincent cited a case, reported to him by the O. P. R. agent, of a young lad who had hurled a stone through a train window. Fortunately no passengers happened to be in the way, or they would have been injured.

They report partridge scarce, as they found no coverts, just old birds in twos and threes. It is supposed that the cold, wet weather in May and June killed off all the chickens. Chief of these was a rare combination of the choicest medicinal roots and herbs found best adapted for the cure of the ill and weaknesses peculiar to the female sex, and Lydia E. Pinkham's friends and neighbors learned that her compound relieved and cured and it became quite popular among them.

All this so far was done freely, without money and without price as a labor of love.

But in 1873 the financial crisis struck Lynn. Its length and severity were too much for the large real estate interests of the Pinkham family, as this class of business suffered most from fearful depression, so when the Centennial year dawned it found their property swept away. Some other source of income had to be found.

At this point Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made known to the world.

The three sons and the daughter, with

WHO SHE WAS

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM

And a True Story of How the Vegetable Compound Had Its Birth and How the "Panic of '73" Caused it to be Offered for Public Sale in Drug Stores.

This remarkable woman, whose maiden name was Estes, was born in Lynn, Mass., February 9th, 1819, coming from a good old Quaker family. For some years she taught school, and became known as a woman of an alert and investigating mind, an earnest seeker after knowledge, and above all, possessed of a wonderfully sympathetic nature.

Yours for Health
Lydia E. Pinkham

The Pinkhams had no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen, where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a gross of bottles. Then came the question of selling it, for always before they had given it away freely. They hired a job printer to run off some pamphlets setting forth the growth and success of the enterprise were assured, until to-day Lydia E. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound have become household words everywhere, and many tons of roots and herbs are used annually in its manufacture.

The wonderful curative properties of the medicine were, to a great extent, self-advertising, for whoever used it recommended it to others, and the demand gradually increased.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising, and from that time the growth and success of the enterprise were assured, until to-day Lydia E. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound have become household words everywhere, and many tons of roots and herbs are used annually in its manufacture.

Lydia E. Pinkham herself did not live to see the great success of this work. She passed to her reward years ago, but till she had provided means for continuing her work as effectively as she could have done it herself.

During her long and eventful experience she was ever methodical in her work and she was always careful to preserve a record of every case that came to her attention. The case of every sick woman who applied to her for advice—and there were thousands—received careful study and the details, including symptoms, treatment and results were recorded for future reference, and to-day these records, together with hundreds of thousands made since, are available to sick women the world over, and represent a vast collaboration of information regarding the treatment of women's ills, which for authenticity and accuracy can hardly be equaled in any library in the world.

With Lydia E. Pinkham worked her daughter-in-law, the present Mrs. Pinkham. She was carefully instructed in all her hard-earned knowledge, and for years she assisted her in her vast correspondence.

To her hands naturally fell the direction of the work when its originator passed away. For nearly twenty-five years she has continued it, and nothing in the work shows when the first Lydia E. Pinkham dropped her pen, and the present Mrs. Pinkham, now the mother of a large family, took it up. With woman assistants, some as capable as herself, the present Mrs. Pinkham continues this great work, and probably from the office of no other person have so many women been advised how to regain health. Sick women, this advice is "Yours for Health" freely given if you only write to ask for it.

Such is the history of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; made from simple roots and herbs; the one great medicine for women's ailments, and the fitting monument to the noble woman whose name it bears.

Mr. Brock bought her somewhere near Cambridge when only a few months old. She was taken to her new home near Swamp Lake on Wednesday by Mr. Thos. Scott.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
We understand Mr. R. James has just returned from a business trip of five weeks in different localities, viz., Brooklyn, Columbus, Oshawa, Toronto, Thornton, Barrie and Orillia, and says the crops in Mariposa far exceed those seen any place he visited, and Oshawa comes next. He there saw some fine fields of corn and root crops, and the harvest was pretty fair. He says the grain is turning out pretty good, according to the straw. One day will thresh the grain off a one hundred acre farm, generally. Feed is going to be scarce everywhere, and high; they are offering ten dollars a load for straw in Barrie—any kind. The potatoes are pretty small, and the crops are light, generally, as there was not much rain there all summer, but yet he doesn't think the farmers will be at much loss, considering the price of grain now, and what it has been in the past. The farmers everywhere are complaining of the price of pork; they say there is no money in hogs now, and if prices don't go higher they are going out of the business. Every person he met is predicting a change in the times. Horses up west can be bought for one-third less now than they could this time last fall, and they will be lower yet after it freezes up. It will have to be a pretty good horse that will be worth wintering if not kept at work. Things are pretty quiet in the different towns he was in.

The road case, between Lee Bros. and the township of Somerville, which has been attracting considerable attention in this locality for some time past, was disposed of on the 15th inst, by a municipal board of arbitrators, composed of Messrs. M. Green, Jr., J. H. Harkins and J. R. Boney. The case hung, chiefly, upon the true location of the road allowance in front of con. A, at lots 2 and 3. Mr. Smith, O. L. S., of Lindsay, who was present at the request of the board, examined fourteen or fifteen witnesses as to the government movements, etc., which resulted in containing the board that Lee Bros. owned only a strip of swamp land, 18 feet wide at the narrowest place between the bay and the con. line. The board awarded Lee Bros. $15 for sufficient of the land to give the Council's forced road allowance access to the lake, the Council to pay, in addition, the costs of the arbitration, amounting to $90.
